General Alexander, His Staff, and Two Regiments Come on the Mount Vernon.

New York's affection for the 77th Division, practically all of the members of which are residents of the city and its environs, was shown yesterday when 10,000 persons, braving a steady rain, went down the bay to greet the Aquitania, bearing the vanguard of the returning soldiers. It was a happy crowd of relatives and friends who did not allow a disagreeable day to dampen their ardor in demonstrating to the nearly 6,000 members of the 305th Infantry, the 305th Machine Gun Battalion and the 306th Machine Gun Battalion aboard the great liner just how glad they were to have them at home again. Fathers, mothers, and sisters stood in the rain on the open decks of the welcoming boats and cheered and waved flags in greeting.

The appearance of the five official boats of the Mayor's Committee of Welcome, and a score of privately owned craft in the vicinity of the Aquitania shortly before 10 o'clock came as a surprise to the soldiers. As many of them admitted after the liner had docked, they had not expected to see their friends and relatives down the bay because of the inclement weather. Never before, according to Grover Whalen and other members of the Mayor's Committee who have welcomed many other units, had there been such a noisy exchange of greetings.

The Patrol, Gaynor, Correction, Bay Ridge, and Gowanus of the Mayor's Committee were able to approach close enough to the Aquitania for those on board to read the placards carried by friends and relatives and even to distinguish faces through the rain. Such signs as "Welcome Home, Joe Tanenbaum, "Hello, Tom Panken," "Welcome back to the U. S. A., Michael Rorke," "We're glad you're back, Ignatz Stern," and "Welcome Home, Lucian Meyer," were raised so that the owners of those names could see them. The efforts made in hoisting up the signs bore good results, as was shown by the number of soldiers who sought out their own names among the placards.

Not to be outdone by the welcomers, the soldiers had provided themselves with similar signs noting the place on the ship of the various units. By cruising around the Aquitania several times the friends and relatives were able to find many of their boys. Private Tom McDonough of the Supply Company, 305th Infantry, was seen beaming all over as a dozen of his admirers noisily told him they were there to greet him. In the same manner the friends and relatives of Private J. J. Goss of Company B, 305th Machine Gun Battalion, discovered him on the ship. These instances are only two of scores which made yesterday's greeting a huge success.

There was music aplenty furnished by the police band and by the 305th Infantry Band on board the Aquitania. The regimental bandmen pleased the welcomers when they demonstrated that notwithstanding the fact that they had been away from New York for many months they knew the latest jazz hits. Emblazoned in bright colors on the bass drum of the band was a picture of the ex-Kaiser, holding his hands in the air and crying "Kamerad!"

Oranges, boxes of cigars, cigarettes, and candy were tossed by the hundreds by the welcomers to the soldiers. Many of the gifts fell short of the liner through inaccuracy of aim, but some of the soldiers succeeded in catching the gifts thrown in their direction.

The Erie County boys in the division, of whom there are about fifteen hundred, were welcomed by a committee sent to New York by Mayor George

Bolsheviki Leaving Orenburg; Many Reds Deserting Army

LONDON, April 24, (via Montreal.)—It is reported that the Russian Bolshevist Headquarters Staff is hastily evacuating Orenburg, in Southeast Russia, and that General Dutoff's army is rapidly advancing on the town. General Dutoff already has recaptured Orsk, 152 miles southeast of Orenburg.

Large numbers of Bolshevist deserters have joined the Siberians and are fighting excellently. Peasants in the liberated districts also are joining Admiral Kolchak's forces in large numbers.

VIENNA, April 23, (Associated Press.)—The Bolsheviki have been driven out of Kiev, capital of the Ukraine, by revolutionary Ukrainian troops friendly to Simon Petlura, the Ukrainian leader.

INDUSTRIES LEAD IN SALE OF NOTES

CASH PURCHASES GROW

Victory Note subscriptions reported in New York City yesterday totaled $37,893,500, making the total purchase checked up by the Liberty Loan Committee $141,694,700 for the four days of the campaign.

The greatest part of yesterday's total was made up of subscriptions reported by the Rainbow Division, which announced sales for the day of approximately $30,000,000. The total reported by banks and financial institutions for the day was $5,893,500, which is the lowest sum from that branch of the campaign work. Purchases of Victory Notes in Brooklyn yesterday were reported at $2,000,000.

The official figures indicate that New York City has made a slow start in this campaign, but these figures do not express the real showing which has been made so far, because they include only a small part of the subscriptions raised by the numerous Committee of the Rainbow Division, which has met with a generous response in its canvass of the trades and industries of New York City. It was announced that the Rainbow Division has obtained subscriptions so far of approximately $100,000,000. If the official figures of the Rainbow Division could be received daily, New York's total for the four days of the campaign would probably be more than $200,000,000.

Plunkett Makes Plea.

Rear Admiral C. P. Plunkett, who spoke from the Sub-Treasury Building, called on the people of New York City to place their subscriptions at once by way of testifying that they were behind President Wilson in his fight at Paris.

"Our President is fighting in Paris almost single-handed," said the Admiral. "There is one way we can all help him. If we on this side of the ocean were to cable today to President Wilson that this Victory Liberty Loan had been subscribed, and over-subscribed, his task would be over to-morrow.

"Some people here think the war is over. It certainly is not over. It is not over until that great soldier, General Pershing, cables that it is over, that it is safe for children to bathe in the Rhine, that arms have actually been laid down."

Although hoping for a big rush of subscriptions today and tomorrow morning, the officials of the Liberty Loan Committee are not surprised that the showing for the first few days has been below the required average per day, because it has been characteristic of the preceding loans to open slowly and make a strong finish which has always carried New York City well past its quota.

The official Federal Reserve returns showed that, during the first three days of the campaign, New York City subscribed 10.3 per cent. of its total quota, when it should have in that time have subscribed 16.3 per cent. of its total in order to keep up a daily average which would meet the quota. The showing by the boroughs for the first three days is given as follows:

HOOVER SENDS FOOD ULTIMATUM TO THE GERMANS

Warns Berlin That Strikes and Disorder Endanger Continuance of Supply.

PRESS STIRRED BY NOTICE

Boersen Courier Says That American Aid Means More Than Terms of Peace.

HOOVER'S CURB ON RUSSIA

Food Director Says Neutral Commission Must Act Independently, as Was Done in Belgium.

BERLIN, April 22, (Associated Press.)—A message to Germany by Herbert Hoover, Director General of the Inter-Allied Relief Organization, was published in Berlin yesterday. In it Mr. Hoover warned against a continuation of the strikes and disorders, saying they were endangering a continuation of the food supply.

The message has brought about serious discussion in the German newspapers, which is best reflected by the Boersen Zeitung. This newspaper says that Mr. Hoover's note is an ultimatum to Germany.

"Mr. Hoover says shortly and sharply," the Boersen Zeitung continues, "'America has no desire to restrict itself in order that its grain ships may be sunk in the Elbe and its fat kegs may disappear through the riot of a few thousand Spartacans, or that its potatoes shall ruin in warehouses because they cannot be transported.'

"America has the good will to save all from starvation, provided there is assurance of a state of order in Germany. Otherwise there will be no more supplies. That is Mr. Hoover's ultimatum, which just now for Germany is of equal importance with the peace conditions of the Entente."

The newspaper then criticises the instigators of the unrest, and articles printed in the radical press. It says the party leaders have directly or indirectly benefitted by the chaos, and charges the whole trouble to the Independent Socialist Party, which, it says, has been guilty of extortion.

Hoover's Plan in Russia.

PARIS, April 23.—"The favorable reply of the associated Governments to the proposals of Dr. Nansen, that a neutral commission should be allowed to undertake the feeding of the people of the principal cities in Russia, is based on three conceptions," said Herbert C. Hoover, the Food Director, in a statement today. "The first is that in giving permission to a neutral commission to undertake the humanitarian work it in no way implies any negotiations between the Allies and the Government of Russia, nor does it imply any approval of their methods of government.

"The situation in this particular is very much akin to that of the Belgian Relief Commission, through which the allied Governments did not make a recognition of the German government of Belgium.

"The second point is that there shall be complete justice in distribution to all classes, regardless of all distinctions, and the guarantees of a strong neutral commission that this will be the case.

"The third is that the Bolsheviki are to keep themselves within a circumscribed area, ceasing all military action and attempts at invasion.

"The primary reasons for this action are purely humanitarian. Hundreds of thousands of people are dying monthly from starvation, and beyond even this it is the wish of the world that fighting and the killing of men should cease.

"Again, the brunt of this famine in Russia is being thrown by the Bolsheviki upon the skilled workmen who refuse to accept their doctrines, upon the merchants, the storekeepers and professional classes, and unless food is put into Russia all these classes will be dead before the next harvest."

Plan Fuller Use of the Elbe to Carry Supplies to Czechs

PARIS, April 24.—The Supreme Economic Council has approved the proposal for a more extensive use of the water route through Germany by way of Hamburg and the River Elbe.

It has abolished the existing limitation of 8,000 tons of food and material in order to supply the present needs of the Czechoslovaks.

It is estimated that the traffic through the Elbe will probably amount to 25,000 to 35,000 tons at a time.

PEACE TREATY DRAFT MAY BE DELAYED

NOT PRODDING GERMANS

Allies Apparently Content That They Take Their Time—Peace Sixty Days After Signing.

PARIS, April 24, (Associated Press.)—A clause has been drafted for insertion in the peace treaty fixing the date for the transition to a state of peace sixty days after the signing of the treaty. If the treaty is signed about May 15, peace thus will become effective throughout the world on July 15.

The purpose of this provision is to prevent confusion among the more than twenty belligerent nations, which might fix different dates in their various ratifications. According to the present plan, each nation will ratify the treaty according to its own laws, but all will unite on a common date, which will become a universal day of peace. This follows the precedent established at the conclusion of previous wars, but is increasingly necessary in the present case, owing to the large number of nations signing the treaty.

The question is being considered whether the United States, as an associated power, but not an ally, should sign a separate treaty of peace with Germany. It would be the same treaty as that signed by the Allies and would be signed at the same time as part of the same ceremony. The effect of the separate treaty would be to preserve the position of the United States as an associated, instead of an allied, power, and would be a direct engagement between the United States and Germany.

Scrutinize the Fourteen Points.

Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, the German Foreign Minister, in his late reply, said the German plenipotentiaries had been designated "with the idea that pourparlers will occur simultaneously with the delivery of the preliminaries of peace." This expectation to engage in discussions from the outset is leading to a careful scrutiny of President Wilson's "fourteen points," as intimations have been received that the chief discussion will be whether the treaty accords with those points. One expert engaged in this scrutiny says the principal discussion will occur over the fifth point, relative to the German colonies, and the second, which provides for "free, open, and absolute freedom of the seas."

The fifth point provides for "free, open, and absolutely impartial adjustment of all colonial claims." The treaty ends Germany's control of her former colonies, with the League of Nations establishing mandatories. Whether this accords with the provision for "free and open adjustment" is expected to figure in the pourparlers. The second point, concerning the freedom of the

Slavs and Rumanians Move on Budapest in Concerted Effort to Overturn Soviet

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, April 23.—Reports received here state that a concentric advance toward Budapest has been begun by the Czechoslovaks on the north, the Jugoslavs on the south, and the Rumanians on the east. The badly armed and disciplined Hungarian Soviet troops are not expected to offer any strong resistance.

It is also reported that the Entente is intending to make Hungary's form of government depend on a plebescite of the Hungarian population.

Rumors of a breakdown of the Soviet are denied by Hungarian Minister Bolgar, who, in the course of a visit to the British Colonel, Cunningham, expressed the readiness of the Hungarian Government to hold further negotiations to settle differences with the Entente.

COPENHAGEN, April 24.—The Rumanian troops continued their advance toward Budapest Tuesday on the entire line between the Theiss and Maros Rivers, and in the evening were before Debreczin, about 120 miles due east of Budapest, according to reports from Budapest today.

On Tuesday evening the Rumanians had occupied Kis-Jeno, on the Maros River, and Mate-Szalka, northeast of Debreczin. South of Debreczin they were advancing on Nagy-Szalonta.

ORLANDO MAKES PROTEST

SEES OFFENSE TO AN ALLY

DEFENDS CLAIMS OF ITALY

Based on "Reason and Justice," He Says, and the Right of Self-Determination.

PARIS, April 24.—Vittorio Orlando, the Italian Premier, issued a long statement today replying to President Wilson in which he says in so many words that he is compelled to withdraw from the Peace Conference after President Wilson's action, which is regarded as a departure from diplomatic customs, and leaves the Italians no other course.

"Yesterday," says the Premier's statement, "while the Italian delegation was discussing counter-propositions which had been received from the British Prime Minister and which had for their aim the conciliation of contradictory tendencies which were manifested concerning Italian territorial aspirations, the Paris newspapers published a message from the President of the United States, in which he expressed his own thought on one of the gravest problems which has been submitted to the judgment of the Conference.

"The practice of addressing nations directly constitutes surely an innovation in international relations. I do not wish to complain, but I wish to record it as a precedent, so that at my own time I may follow it, inasmuch as this new custom doubtless constitutes the granting to nations of larger participation in international questions, and, personally, I have always been of the opinion that such participation was the harbinger of a new order of things.

States Grounds of Complaint.

"Nevertheless, if these appeals are to be considered as addressed to nations outside of the Governments which represent them, (I might say even against the Governments,) I should feel deep regret in recalling that this process, heretofore applied to enemy Governments, is today applied for the first time to a Government which has been and intends to remain a loyal ally of the great American Republic, namely, to the Italian Government."

Premier Orlando says that he might complain that such a message addressed to the Italian nation had been published at the very moment when the allied and associated powers were negotiating with the Italian Government, the help of which had been sought and appreciated in numerous serious questions, heretofore discussed in intimate and complete solidarity.

"Above all," he continues, "I should have the right to complain if the declarations of the Presidential message have the purpose to oppose the Italian people to the Italian Government, because it would misconstrue and deny the high degree of civilization which the Italian people has attained and its democratic and liberal régime.

"To oppose [place in opposition?] the Italian people and Government would be to admit that this great free nation would submit to the yoke of a will other than its own, and I should be forced to protest strongly against suppositions unjustly offensive to my country."

Premier Orlando declares that President Wilson "is treating the Italians as if they were a barbarous people without a democratic Government."

Signor Orlando says that he has never denied that the Treaty of London did not apply to Fiume, but says that the Italian claim is based on the

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 24.—The scene in the Winter Garden of the Hotel Edward VII. last night, when the Italians cheered their leaders till the rafters rang, was like the climax of a romantic play in its sudden poignancy and dramatic emotion.

At 9:30 o'clock the great hall was thronged with all that was most representative of Italy in France. Under the eyes of motionless sentries standing like statues of dark green bronze in war uniforms and bizarre three-cornered caps, groups of soldiers, diplomats, press men, and leaders of the Italian colony in Paris formed and reformed in irresistible agitation. Here and there women's clear voices rang out in excited talk. There was the tall wife of the Marquis Imperiale, formerly the Princess Colonna, and near her the American Signora Brambilla, daughter of the late George von L. Meyer, member of the Roosevelt and Taft Cabinets and former Ambassador to Italy.

Strangers, too, were present—Americans, British, French, and Japanese. Although less moved than the highstrung Latins, we others could not but feel the tension in the air. It was an atmosphere of thrill and electric anticipation that had been unknown in Paris since the maddening days of July, 1914.

Suddenly, at 9:55, there came a hush. As if swayed by a common impulse, the crowd surged toward the far end of the hall, where Premier Orlando had just entered through the folding doors. With a little gesture of greeting the Premier moved forward into the room and stood chatting with friends as the crowd thickened around him, waiting in breathless silence.

Again the doors swung open and the strong, eagle face of Baron Sonnino cast a glance, in which pride, defiance, affection were strangely mingled, over the assembly. At sight of the man who has stood firm from the very beginning—"artisan of the first hour," Italians call him—as champion of Italy's fight to recover "Italia irredenta," the pending emotion of the crowd burst forth.

Quick, nervous handclapping swept across the hall like a train of burning powder, and, like the explosion after it, came a roar of cheering. For a moment Sonnino faced them, erect, with his head thrown back, then, crying, "For the first time I am forced to run away," darted through the crowd almost before his intention was realized.

Yet, swift as was his passage, the quick Latin mind was equally prompt to seize the double meaning of words that referred not only to his own flight but the withdrawal of the Italian delegation. Again a thunder of applause broke out, which only ceased when the doors closed behind him.

Then it was Orlando's turn.

"Evviva Orlando!" they shouted, now aflame with excitement, "Speak to us! Speech! Speech! Evviva Orlando!"

With his right arm high in the air, Orlando replied.

"Do not cheer me," he said. "Cheer Italy—Evviva Italia!"

Then, with his hand still-upraised, he too pushed swiftly through the throng and was gone.

ROME, April 24.—All political differences, personal disputes and dissensions have been put aside by Italians. All stand firmly united, as they did after Caporetto, to defend for a second time their country. The newspapers no longer belittle the gravity of the situation and support Orlando and Sonnino in their energetic stand for the rights of Italy in their determination not to sign the preliminaries of peace unless Italian aspirations are recognized.

Every day solemn demonstrations take place, composed of people whose temper is roused.

An eminent professor from Fiume, M. Lenaz, when asked his opinion of the situation, said:

"If the Italian claims are not recognized tragic incidents may occur. The citizens' enthusiasm is pure and sacred. Italy does not ask for pity. We are Italians. We wish to be such and remain such."

LONDON, Friday, April 25.—Comments in London on President Wilson's statement regarding Fiume differ.

The Daily Chronicle says that "President Wilson's breach with the ordinary methods of diplomacy had immediate consequences which were foreseen." It refers to the President's action as being "more brusque than we were yesterday aware" and adds that "the indications are that on Wednesday at the time of interruption an agreement was not very far off." The Chronicle concludes:

"Even if the Italian delegation should leave Paris, we may rest assured that Lloyd George and Clemenceau will continue their efforts. It must be recognized in regard to Anglo-Italian friendship, as we see that the Figaro says of Franco-Italian, that it is essential 'to save this friendship, which is one of the surest guarantees for the peace of Europe, from emerging in any way weakened from the negotiations.'"

The Daily Telegraph deplores what it calls the lack of restraint with which the alliance view has been criticised in some quarters here and the neglect of human factors in the case. It says:

"Italy, our ally, one with us in sacrifices for the saving of Europe, has been lectured like an intractable child about matters which she understands, to her sorrow, too well, and which her self-appointed correctors do not. When, for example, Italy is informed that those who dispute her claims in the Adriatic are 'her natural allies,' a sensitive people may be pardoned for a gesture of impatience.

ORLANDO REFUSES TO STAY

Has Two-Hour Discussion With Wilson and Other Premiers.

ONLY PRNCIPLES DISCUSSED

TALK OF OCCUPYING FIUME

Italian Attache Says Dalmatia Will Also Be Seized by Military Forces.

PARIS, April 24, (Associated Press.)—Premier Orlando and Signor Barzilai will leave Paris for Rome tonight. This decision was announced after Premier Orlando had issued a statement in answer to President Wilson's, and after the Premiers' return from his conference at Lloyd George's residence with the other members of the Council of Four, including President Wilson, at which, according to the Italian Premier, only questions of principle, and not territorial questions, were discussed.

This is explained as meaning that the discussions centred on the question of prestige involved in the publication of President Wilson's statement, and that no effort was made to reach a settlement on a territorial basis. The conference lasted two hours.

Baron Sonnino, the Foreign Minister, and the other Italian delegates and representatives will remain in Paris temporarily.

While the preparations for the departure of Premier Orlando and the other Italian Peace Commissioners were proceeding there were some indications that there had been no decision to make the rupture a complete one.

The Italian members of certain minor commissions met as usual with the representatives of the other nations, and reports from some of the council rooms were that the Italians had not informed the other conferees of any determination not to attend future meetings.

The French Foreign Office today confirmed the report that Premier Orlando's letter of yesterday to Premiers Clemenceau and Lloyd George, instead of announcing a complete rupture, asked whether, in view of the circumstances, the two Premiers considered further Italian participation in the conference useful.

The British and French Premiers, it is stated, will make a joint answer.

It was stated in Italian quarters today that should the break with the conference become definite, Italy would take steps to approach Germany with a view to making a separate peace.

Lloyd George Calls on Orlando.

Premier Lloyd George called on Premier Orlando before the council met this morning. The two statesmen had a long conference, the British Premier endeavoring to secure a change in the Italian position and induce Italy's representatives to remain.

After Premier Lloyd George's visit to Premier Orlando it was stated that the Italian Premier had postponed his departure from Paris until 8 o'clock in the evening.

According to the Havas Agency, the Premier, when he reiterated this morning that he would leave Paris today, added:

"We do not break with our allies, but hand over our interests to their hands, trusting they will loyally fulfill their mission."

The King Commends Orlando.

King Victor Emmanuel has telegraphed to Premier Orlando commending his action and insisting that there be no recession from the position Italy has taken.

In an interview obtained with Premier Orlando by a news agency late last night he is quoted as saying:

"I have never sought crowds or ovations. When I returned to Rome after the signing of the armistice I had the train stopped at the gates of Rome and entered an automobile without allowing myself to be seen. Now, however, I shall show myself to the crowd, as it is my duty, and it shall express its feelings."

At Italian headquarters the announcement was made that the Italian Parliament would meet immediately on Premier Orlando's return, probably in a day or two. Preliminary instructions have already been telegraphed to Rome.

Predicts Seizure of Dalmatia.

Italian military forces will occupy that part of Dalmatia and other Adriatic territory named in the treaty of London with about 100,000 men, according to a statement made today by Captain Pozzi of Premier Orlando's staff. A similar force, the Captain added, would be sent to the northern region and around Fiume.

Premier Orlando's course in the meantime, Captain Pozzi said, would be to convoke Parliament in special session and obtain from that body the passage of a measure providing for the annexation of the Dalmatian and other Eastern Adriatic territory given to Italy by the London agreement, and also of Fiume.

Reports had been received, the Captain added, that a military demonstration by the Jugoslavs at Spalato was contemplated, in which event the Italians would take proper countermeasures.

The situation in Fiume is complicated by the fact that the town, as the headquarters of the Allied Army of the East, contains French and British, as well as Italian troops. The occupation of Fiume by Italy, it is believed, would immediately provoke a diplomatic and military issue with her European allies.

"If the Jugoslavs had shown the slightest inclination to concede any point in the Italian difficulty, the Italians probably would have been prepared to follow their lead," was a statement made last night in French circles.

"Both sides, however, displayed the utmost stubbornness, the Italians being too proud to give way. First, they consider that, as they fought throughout the war as a solid entity, they were entitled to consideration on that account, while the Jugoslavs, according to the Italian view, became an entity only when hostilities ceased and after some of them had been fighting against Italy."

Efforts to Reach an Understanding.

LONDON, April 24.—An official statement issued by the Press Bureau says that Premier Orlando had another meeting today with President Wilson and Premiers Lloyd George and Clemenceau. All displayed the strongest desire to reach a satisfactory solution of the problem.

The heads of the British and French Governments expressed to Premier Orlando the hope that the Italian Parliament would assist in arriving at such a settlement.

SAY WILSON'S NOTE AIDS SONNINO'S PARTY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 24.—The official Italian spokesman in charge of press work today attempted to minimize the effect of Orlando's proposed departure by suggesting that the prime object of his journey was to consult his people rather than to consummate a rupture with the conference.

However Orlando, who himself is a man of peace and compromise, may wish this view adopted, it is unlikely that he can make it prevail against the uncompromising attitude of Sonnino and Barzilai, the latter of whom, though a republican, is an ardent champion of Italy's claims.

Now that yesterday's excitement has somewhat decreased, it is evident that there have been two currents of opinion in the Italian delegation itself. Orlando has been inclined to compromise, but has been thrust on by the steadily increasing current of public opinion and by the fiery nationalism of Sonnino.

The latter's friends think that President Wilson's action in addressing the Italian people over the head of their leaders has removed the last shadow of doubt whether they will be able to carry the country with them. Also it has forced Orlando right into their camp whether he will or no.

"What," they say, "Does your President think he can treat Italy as he treated the boches? We are not his enemies, that he should try to make trouble between our people and their elected representatives."

Then, too, they allege that the President has been guilty of a serious breach of diplomatic usage in issuing a statement declining the Italians' claims at the very moment when they were discussing a compromise approved by Wilson and giving them nearly all they demanded. Whether this statement be justified or not does not alter the fact that it is being spread broadcast across Italy by Italian press representatives here, nine out of ten of whom are fervent nationalists.

From an authoritative British source I learn this morning that the Nationalist wave is absolutely sweeping Italy. Even the solitary person at the Hotel Edward VII. who ventured today to express his disapproval of the Nationalists' claims admitted sadly that the President's bombshell was more likely to hinder than help.

"As I see it," he said, "the President's action gives the Nationalists the very trump card they might have wanted. It forces Orlando's hand and permits the Nationalists to go to the country with highly popular appeals. Worse still, from my point of view, it will have the effect of embittering the already grave dissension between the Nationalists and the Anti-Nationalist Socialist elements. The latter will either have to swing into line or act against their country.

"I fear the consequences will be regretable and quite other than what the President intended."

California Halts Peace Resolution.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 24.—The lower house of the Legislature refused today to adopt a Senate joint resolution urging the American peace delegation to oppose any policy that would interfere with the rights of nations to control the subject of immigration. The resolution received twenty-one votes as against fifteen. Forty-one votes were necessary to adopt.

WILSON ANTICIPATED ORLANDO'S APPEAL

His Statement Was Hastened by Report of Coming Pronunciamento to Italy.

ADDRESSED TO THAT NATION

Paris Understands It Was Equally a Message to the Rest of the World.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

By Wireless and Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 23.—President Wilson made a remarkable contribution to the documentary history of the Peace Conference today when he issued a formal statement over his signature concerning the crisis in the interallied peace negotiations caused by Italy's threat to withdraw from the conference. It is plain from what the President says that he does not intend to modify his stand against the Italian claim to outright possession of Fiume. The statement—issued in the face of the Italian threat to withdraw—is a notice to Italy and the world that the President intends to insist that the powers shall live up to their acceptance of the Fourteen Points 1. determining the peace terms.

In his statement the President contends that the secret Treaty Pact of London signed by Italy, France, Great Britain, and Russia, by which Italy was to receive certain Austrian territory if the Allies won the war, finds no necessity for existence now, for the reason that the Austro-Hungarian Empire has been dismembered and the danger to Italy from that source has ceased to exist. But beyond this material reason for ignoring the Treaty of London—which did not include a provision for the cession of Fiume to Italy—the President holds that to grant Italy's demand for Fiume would be a violation of the principles which all the Allies accepted as the basis for making peace with their enemies. He points out that Fiume is an outlet of a hinterland which is composed of countries constituting the Slavic State about to be erected, and that it would be unfair to let Italy control this port. Furthermore, he makes clear that the danger to Italy's frontiers has disappeared through the breaking up of Austria-Hungary and the erection of independent States out of parts of that empire.

The President appeals to Italy to live up to the obligation which she, as one of the great powers, has assumed, to see that all nations have a square deal. It is obvious, however, that he has not been deterred in his stand against the Italian claim to Fiume by the threat of the Italian delegation to withdraw from the Peace Conference unless their demand was granted.

Italy's Withdrawal Discounted.

The possibility of Italy's withdrawal has been considered, and it is understood that so far as the American delegation is concerned this course on Italy's part will make no difference in the American procedure in the Conference. Our delegation will go right ahead with the negotiations with Great Britain, France, and Japan, and will hold that it is perfectly proper to make a separate peace with Germany and Austria without Italy's participation.

Italy maintains that the Pact of London, to which she adhered Nov. 30, 1915, which binds all the signatories—France, Great Britain, Russia, Japan, and Italy—not to make a separate peace still holds, and that it will be a violation of a solemn compact if any of these nations concludes a peace arrangement with an enemy country. The American officials combat this view. They assert that this pledge was vitiated when Germany and Austria collapsed. It is believed that the French and British representatives have the same opinion. There is every reason to believe that Clemenceau and Lloyd George are in general sympathy with President Wilson's opposition to the cession of Fiume to Italy.

That the President's statement was addressed as much to the Italian people as to the rest of the world is quite well understood here. In the concluding paragraph he refers to the principles upon which America will consent to make a peace and adds that America hopes and believes that only upon these principles "will the people of Italy ask her to make peace."

Whatever course the Italian Government may adopt, it is plain that the President does not intend to deviate from the principles outlined in his statement. If the other powers should join Italy, it would be necessary for him to determine what his future attitude should be. But the withdrawal of Italy from the Conference will have no effect whatever on the President's participation in the interallied negotiations.

Approved by French and British.

Before issuing his statement the President showed it to Clemenceau and Lloyd George, and it is asserted on the best authority that they approved, Clemenceau saying that it was admirable in every respect, and Lloyd George that he would not change a word. Mr. Wilson wrote the statement last week. He would not have issued it today if he had not heard that Orlando had prepared a pronunciamento to the Italian people. The attitude of Clemenceau and Lloyd George shows that they are fully in accord with Wilson's course. It is explained that the reason why they did not sign the statement jointly with the President was that France and Great Britain had been bound with Italy under the Treaty of London.

When an effort was made to obtain a statement from Orlando word was returned that his answer to Wilson might be a positive act. Some Italians are circulating the report that instructions have been issued by the Italian Government to protect the American Embassy and consulates in Italy. Army officials here say that there are practically no American troops in Italy except a few railroad transport officers, surgeons and military police.

The excitement at the Edward Seventh Hotel, the Italian headquarters, is at fever heat. When Orlando entered the main hall today he was greeted with cries of "Viva Italia!" The Premier announced that the Italian delegation would leave Paris at 2 P. M. tomorrow.

According to the Italians, the President's statement was a breach of diplomatic procedure, because it was not even directly transmitted to them and was only brought to their notice while they were discussing the compromise proposed by Wilson, Clemenceau and Lloyd George.

South Africans Ask a Hearing.

LONDON, April 24.—The South African Nationalist delegation, headed by General J. B. M. Hertzog, has sent a letter to Premier Lloyd George, asking to be received by representatives of the Government. It is understood in semi-official circles that the British Government will be guided in South African questions by the advice of General Louis Botha, the Premier, and his colleagues.

LONDON OPINION DIVIDED ON WILSON

"It is open to any one to hold that the issue of justice and right is nicely balanced as between the rival claimants to the territory in dispute, and those who think so are under the obligation of deciding which they mean to favor—those who fought for the cause which was our own or those who fought against it.

"Statesmanship," concludes The Telegraph, "has to consider and weigh the desires of others only less closely concerned than the rivals themselves in the outcome of the dispute. The wish, for example, of both the Rumanians and Hungarians, is that the port of Fiume, which means so much to them, should remain in Italian hands."

Sharply Condemns Wilson.

The Daily Express says:

"At the critical moment President Wilson rushes into the arena of publicity, waving a red flag. The Italians were dispatching cables to Rome announcing their hopes when the Wilson manifesto confronted them in the columns of the Paris newspapers, an affront after what had passed in the secret negotiations.

"The Americans have always pleaded for open diplomacy. This is a sample of that diplomacy gone mad. It is the rabies of diplomacy. * * *

"And now a final word about Wilson. Can any one find in his speeches one word of praise for the great British Army that fought and endured from first to last during all the years when Wilson adopted the safe post of a conscientious objector against American intervention? What has he said of the British Navy? The plain fact is that Wilson is too much immersed in philosophic generalities to appreciate the actualities of politics, even politics of the highest plane.

"Orlando, Lloyd George, and Clemenceau do not want an Adriatic hornets' nest to take the place of the old Balkan storm centre. Wilson's appeal to the Italian public over the heads of its executives was foredoomed to failure. It may be a weapon he will be sorry to have to face at home in the days that are to come."

London Times Backs President.

The Times in an editorial yesterday morning on President Wilson's statement concerning Fiume says that England and France strongly support the President on the moral claim possessed by the lands to the north and northeast of Fiume to an outlet to that port for their commerce to the sea.

"England and France," it says, "will not hesitate any more than America to act upon this conviction should they be forced to do so. They will not admit the right of Italy to pick out clauses of the treaty which favor her designs and to reject those which favor the Jugoslavs. If she insists upon the treaty she must have the whole treaty, and the whole treaty will leave her without Fiume."

The Rome correspondent of The Times emphasizes the fact that Italian public opinion is practically unanimous in supporting the demand for the Italian possession of Fiume.

Dr. E. J. Dillon, The Daily Telegraph's Paris correspondent, gives the events of Wednesday in the following chronological order:

"About 11 o'clock, discouraged by the deadlock, the Italian delegation had the passports of its members viséd by the Italian Embassy and likewise had a special train to Italy reserved for them. Meanwhile from the British side the conciliatory question was informally put whether the Italians would accept as a basis for settlement the allotment of Fiume and the Dalmatian Islands to Italy and the creation of Zara as a free port. The Italian delegation answered that, being desirous of terminating the crisis, it would make all possible sacrifice for the sake of general peace and agree to the suggestion if it were supplemented by the creation and establishment of Sebenico as a free city.

"Thereupon the clouds seemed to be rolling by. The Italian delegates looked brighter, and reassuring telegrams were dispatched to Rome, where excitement was at white heat. But suddenly Wilson issued his declaration about the Adriatic, presumably unknown to the British delegation, thus suddenly terminating the negotiations, destroying hopes, and creating a difficult situation."

Italian Inconsistency Noted.

LONDON, April 24.—All the London evening newspapers devote their leading articles to President Wilson's appeal in connection with the Italian situation at the Paris conference and to Premier Orlando's decision to withdraw from the conference. The Westminster Gazette indorses the statement of the American Executive, noting that Italy, in her claims, went beyond the Treaty of London in claiming Fiume as well as the Trentino and other territory assigned her by the London pact.

"We are obliged to point out," says the newspaper, "that in this very treaty Fiume was assigned to the Croatians. If, then, the appeal is to the treaty we are as much bound not to give Fiume to Italy as we are bound to give her the other territories."

If the Italians claim Fiume under the principle of self determination, adds The Gazette, that principle also applies to the Slav regions which were assigned to Italy under the treaty.

The Evening Standard says it cannot pretend to be convinced by President Wilson's arguments, while The Pall Mall Gazette says that Italy is claiming the fulfillment of the treaty where she is the gainer by its terms and its abrogation where it stands in the way of her full demands.

"Her statesmen," The Pall Mall Gazette adds, "must realize upon reflection that the second attitude undermines whatever moral force is inherent in the first."

The Evening Globe, which is strongly anti-Wilson, says the President has taken up an impossible attitude. It refers to his appeal as an insult to the Italians and suggests that his best course would be "to retire gracefully from a discussion which concerns neither himself nor the American continent."

Situation Viewed as Serious.

"A thunderbolt," "a bombshell," "an appeal to Caesar," and other descriptive expressions are used by this morning's newspapers in connection with President Wilson's declaration on the Italian situation. The President's step is treated as a dramatic development at the Peace Conference by most of the journals. Apparently halted temporarily by astonishment, some newspapers refrain from making any comment.

Everywhere Mr. Wilson's action is regarded as having created a most serious situation the unfolding of which will be watched with anxious interest. Such editorials as appear were manifestly written with an eye to Italy's possible withdrawal from the conference, though Premier Orlando's announcement of his decision to quit Paris had not reached London when the papers were published.

Opinions as to Mr. Wilson's statement and Italy's attitude vary. The Graphic, while disclaiming any hostility to Italy, refers to her "obdurate attitude" and advocates the Croatian claims to Fiume. It heads its news columns with the caption "Italy Jeopardizing Peace."

A conviction that President Wilson would never have taken such a step except as a last resource, after the failure of all private negotiations, is voiced by The Daily Express. "It would be idle to speculate on what will follow," the newspaper says. "The two antagonistic principles which have been more or less in veiled conflict throughout the deliberations of the conference are now met in a death grapple. One or the other must yield, and the defeat of either will in all probability be final. If Mr. Wilson's principles prevail, all claims such as those Italy is now advancing must be abandoned permanently. If, on the other hand, Premier Orlando's claims are recognized, then there is an end to the principle of self-determination everywhere."

The Express declares that the situation is very serious, but maintains that in questions which threaten the conference with disaster, "the press and public have no power to give any sort of judgment." It urges the British blindly and unitedly to support Premier Lloyd George as the nations representative.

Manchester Guardian Warns Italy.

"A document of decisive importance," The Manchester Guardian terms President Wilson's appeal. Pointing out that the question is one of applying principles, it continues:

"That is what gives to this great deliverance of the American President its supreme importance, an importance going far beyond the particular matter in controversy. * * * Let there be no mistake as to its significance. What the President says he means. These are not merely words, they are an act."

The Guardian analyzes the Italian position in a sympathetic vein, saying it can perfectly understand Italian feeling in a matter where historic tradition played so important a part, but it warns Italy against pressing historic claims too hard.

"After all," concludes The Guardian, "the support of America for a world peace is worth a good deal more than the security which any particular State could hope to derive from adding a strip to its own frontier."

The Liverpool Post, which fully indorses President Wilson's statement, thinks that his appeal was made "with the full privity and consent of Mr. Lloyd George," and adds: "For, not less than America, England lies under moral obligation to square every decision she takes in remapping the world in accordance with the axioms of peace in the Fourteen Points."

PARIS PRESS VIEWS SITUATION AS GRAVE

Sees Errors on Both Sides, but Hopes for an Acceptable Compromise.

PARIS, April 24.—As to the gravity of the crisis in the Peace Conference there were no two opinions in France today. There was agreement also that no stone must be left unturned to find a solution of the existing deadlock.

As to the causes of the crisis opinions differed widely. The more conservative opinion, as represented by such organs as the Figaro, was inclined to deplore President Wilson's action in making his statement public as likely to do more harm than good.

"Its evident object," the Figaro said, "is to transfer to the market place negotiations and discussions much better carried on in calm and privacy. What was only a difference might thus be transformed into a quarrel."

The Figaro in its comment also set forth the view that "principles must sometimes suffer some deviation," and it pleaded against the display of "stubbornness" or of "a haughty, uncompromising spirit."

"The difference between the United States and Italy must be commented on in a spirit of conciliation," says the Temps in an editorial today. "Such is our duty as allies and hosts. The French Government, with the British, has striven to the utmost for four days to prevent the explosion. It has searched for a compromise, which perhaps would have been easier to find had the Italians continued to participate in the deliberations. It has endeavored to delay publication of President Wilson's document."

The Temps then describes the present situation of the Adriatic problem, which it says in no way concerns Germany, and hence the signing of the peace treaty by the German plenipotentiaries need not be delayed.

"If Premier Orlando returns to Rome," the newspaper continues, "his collaborators can remain here so that Italy can sign the treaty.

"The treaty with Austria-Hungary remains to be drawn up. The text of the 1915 treaty must represent Italy's territorial rights. On the other hand, this treaty has no application as regards the United States, which neither signed it nor has recognized it."

St. Brice in the Journal said the incident was the result of the manifold mistakes made by all parties. The Italians, he thought, committed a gross blunder in publishing their claims in advance, thus eliminating all possibility of manoeuvring.

"It was a bad start which weighed heavily on the negotiations from the first," he continued, "and the discussions only accentuated the points of difference. The compromise plan left by President Wilson when he withdrew from the Council of Four on April 21 might have had some chance of success if it had been put forth by an independent arbitrator, but France and England could not very well indorse a proposal at variance with the treaty of London."

M. St. Brice declared that a rupture was so far from the intention of the Italians yesterday that in the morning Salvatore Barzilai called upon Premier Clemenceau in behalf of the Italian delegation and submitted a fresh proposal for a compromise by which Italy would take the city of Fiume and the Jugoslavs the suburb of Susak, across the River Recina, Italy further agreeing to renounce her claim to the Dalmatian coast, getting the islands only and receiving from the League of Nations a mandate to administer the cities of Zara and Sebenico. The horizon was clearing, the writer declared, when President Wilson's statement came like a bombshell.

"We have already sacrificed too much to the Wilsonian doctrine, solemnly condemned by the American voters last November," he said. "The international régime we have accepted for the Sarre marks an act of weakness which will cost our country dear. Are we going still further today in our enthusiasm for the new order? Are we going to tear up all existing treaties? Is nothing to remain of our alliance?"

The Echo de Paris also expressed the belief that because of President Wilson's "direct appeal to the Italian people" France and England would be brought to make known the point of view of their representatives in the Italian dispute. The same newspaper gave its opinion that the dispute would not lead to delay in the opening of the negotiations at Versailles.

L'Oeuvre (Socialist) said:

"We do not disguise the fact that in such a moment we heard with genuine emotion the voice of President Wilson rise above the mutterings of these international confabulations," it says. "President Wilson, tired of the confidential wire-pulling of secret diplomacy, has finally rent the veil and appealed to public opinion."

The Journal des Debats, in an editorial signed by its foreign editor, M. Gauvain, supports President Wilson's action entirely, and says:

"The President has applied the surgeon's knife to a painful wound. The patient will cry out, but the wound will heal and the surgeon will be thanked in the end."

Populaire, the newspaper of M. Longuet, leader of the Minority Socialists—the advanced Socialists—welcomes President Wilson's declaration unreservedly. It praises its inspiration, ability, vigor, and clearness, and regrets that it was not issued sooner.

Other Paris newspapers said that the situation must not be permitted to develop any irretrievable step in the wrong direction. They recognized the seriousness of the incident, but did not think it in the nature of a break, and expressed the hope that an acceptable compromise would soon be reached.

The Gaulois said it was convinced that Premier Clemenceau's skill would evolve the formula for such a compromise before the departure of Premier Orlando.

principles of President Wilson's Fourteen Points.

Referring to President Wilson's statement, Premier Orlando says it purports to demonstrate that the Italian claims beyond certain limits laid down in his message violate the principles upon which must be founded the new régime of right, justice, and liberty among peoples, and adds that he never denied these principles, and that even President Wilson would do him the justice to say that in the long conversations they had had together, he [Orlando] had never relied upon the formal authority of a treaty by which he knew President Wilson was not bound, but merely relied upon reason and justice, upon which Italy's claims were based.

Signor Orlando deplores his failure to convince Mr. Wilson, although he says the President admitted that justice and truth were the monopoly of no man, and that all men erred. The Conference, he points out, has had to change its mind many times, and he does not think himself disrespectful by asking it to change it again.

"I consider as unjustified the application that, in his statement, President Wilson makes of his principles toward the Italian claims," Premier Orlando continues. "It is impossible for me in a document of this nature to repeat the detailed arguments which have been produced in Italy's behalf. I may simply say that no one will receive without reserve the affirmation that the collapse of the Austro-Hungarian Empire should imply the reduction of Italian aspirations."

Citing the President's argument that the concessions granted bring Italy to its natural defenses, the Alps, Signor Orlando says:

"This recognition is of great importance, provided that the eastern flank of this wall does not remain open and that the right of Italy should be interpreted to include the line of Monte Nevoso, [north and west of Fiume,] which separates the waters running toward the Black Sea and the Mediterranean." He recalls that the Latins from the earliest dawn of Italian history designated this mountain as "the Italian limit."

Fiume and Self-Determination.

"Without this protection," says the Premier, "a dangerous breach is left in this admirable barrier of the Alps, rupturing the unquestionable political, economic, and historical unity of the Istrian Peninsula. I contend, furthermore, that he who is entitled to the honor of proclaiming to the world the right of the free determination of peoples should recognize this right for Fiume, an ancient Italian city which proclaimed its Italian nature before the Italian ships arrived—an admirable example of national conscience perpetuated throughout centuries.

"To deny this right only because of the small number concerned would mean the admission that the criterion of justice toward peoples varies according to their territorial extent."

Premier Orlando then points out that Antwerp, Genoa, and Rotterdam are international ports serving as an outlet to divers peoples and territories without having to pay for the privilege by sacrificing national conscience, and continues:

"It is impossible to qualify as excessive the Italian aspirations toward the Dalmatian coast, Italy's boulevard throughout centuries, which Roman genius and Venetian activity made noble and grand, and whose Italian character, defying for centuries implacable persecutions, still shares the same thrill of patriotism with the Italian people."

The principle proclaimed with reference to Poland, that denationalization based on violence does not create rights, the Premier contends, should be applied to Dalmatia.

Passing to the argument of "cold statistical statements," the Premier affirms that among the national reconstructions occupying the Peace Conference none of the reconstructed nations will count within its frontiers a relatively slighter number of persons of alien race than would be attributed to Italy, and asks why only Italians should be suspected of imperialistic cupidity. The history of the negotiations, he declares, will show that the Italian delegation acted not only with firmness, but with a grand spirit of conciliation.

He concludes his statement as follows:

Tells of Friendship for America.

"The Presidential message ends with a warm declaration of America's friendship for Italy. I reply in the name of the Italian people, and proudly claim the right and honor to do this as one who in the most tragic hour of this war proclaimed the cry of resistance at all costs. This cry was heard and replied to with courage and abnegation of which there are few more striking examples in the world's history.

"Italy, thanks to the most heroic sacrifices and purest blood of her children, was able to ascend from the abyss of misfortune to the radiant crest of most glorious victory. In the name, therefore, of Italy I express with all my power the sentiment of admiration and profound sympathy which the Italian people professes toward the American people."

Premier Orlando and the other members of the Italian delegation apparently are much angrier over President Wilson's worldwide publication of his position on the Adriatic questions than over his opposition to their claims, and they resent what they term his violation of diplomatic procedure and the insult which they feel has been offered to the Italian Government in that the President made his position known to the Italian people over the heads of their peace delegation.

American Rejoinder to Orlando.

Discussing this contention today, a member of the American peace delegation said:

"'Fiume or nothing' has been the Italian delegation's unalterable formula for nearly eight weeks, and their insistence upon the settlement of the Adriatic questions before an agreement upon the peace terms forced President Wilson to tell the world where he stood. The atmosphere of the conference simply had to be cleared, and there was no other way for the President to clear it.

"This statement was more for the American public than for the Italian public, and it was of such an unmistakable character that it should not leave any one in the dark as to the American position on secret agreements."

The effort of the Europeans to invoke the rules of diplomatic procedure and the conflicting statements, clouded in obscurity, have been noted by the American delegates and the American correspondents who are endeavoring to obtain the actual facts. The professions of surprise by the Italians at President Wilson's statement are amazing to the correspondents, who have positive knowledge that the statement was submitted to Premier Orlando several days before its publication, and that he sought advice about drafting a reply.

GERMANY'S OWN IDEA OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Congress of States and a World Parliament Are Features of Her Counter-Proposal.

COPENHAGEN, April 24, (Associated Press.)—The German counter-proposals to the League of Nations are outlined in a long dispatch from Berlin.

The German draft proposes that the league shall embrace all belligerent States and all neutral States, which were signatories of The Hague treaty, other States to be admitted by the consent of a majority of the members of the league, but the Holy See to be admitted without this condition.

It is proposed that the league shall function through a congress of States and a world parliament, the former to be the chief administrative body, comprising representatives, with equal rights, of all the governments. The world parliament is to be elected from the parliaments of each State, one representative for every million inhabitants, but no parliament to send more than ten representatives.

Further, it is proposed that two special bodies shall be created, an international tribunal and a mediation bureau, to decide, respectively, questions of law and questions of interests. Every difference between States must be submitted to either body.

The draft regards war as an obsolete method of settling disputes. Therefore, it plans that armaments shall be reduced to domestic requirements, with no armed ships except for the League's naval police force and adequate coastal protection for each country. All straits and canals are to be internationalized. There must be no economic war unless recommended by the League as a measure of compulsion.

The draft also contains a labor agreement resembling the labor charter published in Paris.

Regarding colonial questions, it recognizes the principle of international administration for tropical colonies.

22,000 BRITISH WAR PLANES.

Air Service in October, 1918, Had Nearly 300,000 Men.

LONDON, April 24.—The Air Ministry, in a published report of the work of the air force during the war, says that before the war the air force consisted of 272 machines and 1,647 men, while in October, 1918, there were 22,171 machines, 27,006 officers, and 263,842 men.

From July, 1916, to the time of the signing of the armistice, the air force on the western front brought down 7,054 enemy aircraft, dropped 8,042 tons of bombs, and fired more than 10,500,000 rounds at ground targets.

TO LIFT BAN ON FLYING.

England Open to Aviators May 1 and Air Routes Mapped.

LONDON, April 24.—The ban on civil aviators will be raised May 1 in Great Britain. The Air Ministry, in preparation, has mapped out various air routes along which the civilian aviators will find airdromes and mechanics for their machines.

These thoroughfares will not only enable direct communication between London and Ireland, and London and the north, but also will cater to some of the more important towns in the industrial districts.

Airdromes for traffic to and from overseas are for the present limited to four. At these, overseas machines must land for examination of goods and passengers.

The airdromes are, for continental traffic, at Lympne, in Kent; for Dutch traffic, at Hadleigh, in Suffolk; for Scandinavian traffic, at New Holland, in Lincolnshire, and for traffic direct to London, at Hounslow, in Middlesex.

Hoover in Paris; No Berlin Trip.

PARIS, April 24.—Herbert C. Hoover, the head of the Allied Relief Organization, was surprised and annoyed by the publication today of a dispatch announcing his presence in Berlin. Mr. Hoover has not been away from Paris for weeks. He is unable to account for the report, unless he is being impersonated.

A Berlin dispatch, dated Tuesday, and received in the United States on Wednesday, said that Mr. Hoover had arrived in Berlin on that day with a large staff.

SENATORS APPLAUD WILSON ON FIUME

JOHNSON PLEDGES SUPPORT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The attitude of President Wilson in opposing recognition of the secret treaty of London, as put forth by Italy in asserting her claim to Fiume, met the approval today of Senators at the Capitol. Republican Senators such as Mr. Borah of Idaho and Mr. Johnson of California, who have not hesitated to criticise the President, agreed, with others, that his policy in opposition to secret treaties was to be commended.

That a difficult situation has arisen in the Peace Conference because of Italy's insistence in claiming Fiume was believed by the Senators, but the opinion was expressed that, with the influence of the delegates of Great Britain and France thrown with that of President Wilson, the breach would be overcome. It was felt that Italy would find herself obliged to yield.

Senator Borah argued that the controversy over Fiume, together with that regarding the insistence of the Japanese on racial equality, illustrated the difficulty in which the United States would perpetually find itself through joining a League of Nations. It was a strong argument, he maintained, against this country entering any League that would involve it in entangling alliances.

The United States, he said, would soon find that it was incurring enmities among nations by siding with one against another, and this would go on as long as a League of Nations existed.

Only Stand to Take, Borah Says.

"I quite agree with the President in his refusal to recognize the binding force of secret treaties. He could take no other position," said Senator Borah.

"The question is not alone should we recognize a secret treaty, but what would be a righteous adjustment even if no treaty had been made? If the people of the disputed territory want to be a part of Italy, they should be permitted to be a part of Italy. If not, the territory should not be given to Italy. In other words, the matter should be settled upon the principle of self-determination.

"It all reveals what it means for this country to enter and intermeddle in European affairs. We have been in Europe now about four months seeking to adjust European affairs, and in that time we have incurred the ill-will of the people of Japan and of Italy, the suspicion of China, and the severe criticism of the pepole of France. If we have accomplished this much in four months, how much could we accomplish under the League of Nations in ten years?

"Another thing is already apparent when you take into consideration expressions found in the newspapers of Japan, Italy, France, and England today, and that is that if we undertake to deal with European affairs nothing can keep them from interfering in American affairs. The most powerful argument in the world for a quick and speedy conclusion of the peace treaty with Germany and her allies and our return home is found in the present situation.

"If it were not for the censorship, which denies the American people the actual facts, we would know the very serious feeling which exists today against the American Republic in these countries. We are not happy in the first few months of our departure from established policies of this Government.

Points to Territorial Guarantees.

"After we have adjusted the boundaries of Italy and settled the difficulties between Japan and China, then Article X of the League of Nations comes in. Under this article we agree to guarantee the territorial integrity of these newly adjusted States and to preserve their political independence. We agree to furnish a navy and an army and to keep our men in Europe if necessary to see that these boundary lines remain as we esetablished them for all time to come.

"Enough has happened already in Europe in the last four months to show that America will be under great expense constantly so long as we remain in European affairs.

"We are just now getting an insight into the history of this country after we have taken upon ourselves the burden of adjusting and composing the difficulties of Europe and of maintaining the status which we now fix. It is conceded at the present time that our domestic affairs, our policy of reconstruction, our settlement of our great transportation questions, and those matters which are vital to the happiness and tranquillity of our own people are waiting upon European settlement. And in the future every time a European crisis arises everything will be subordinated to the adjustment of matters in which we are only most remotely concerned, or not concerned at all."

Johnson Offers Support.

Senator Johnson said:

"The President's decision, as I understand it, is that he, as the representative of America, will not recognize secret treaties by which territories and peoples were bartered away during the war. I am in hearty accord with this attitude.

"If the President stands firm, if he maintains what we assume to be his present attitude and declines to carry into execution the secret bargains by which peoples were disposed of without their knowledge or consent, and without ours, if he refuses to compromise, the very humble support I can give him in this matter will be most cheerfully accorded.

"To my mind, nothing more depressing or humiliating to us could occur than to transmute our much-vaunted idealism into territorial acquisitions and dispositions of unwilling peoples secretly agreed upon during the war. It is my hope that the President will persist in his refusal to recognize Japan's secret bargains or Italy's secret bargains.

"The present situation is the supreme test of the professions of our purposes, which the President has so often voiced."

Senator Kenyon, Republican, of Iowa, said:

"I am glad that the President has taken this attitude. I hope that he will succeed in smashing not only the Italian but all secret treaties for all time to come. I also trust that when the Senate is called upon to consider the peace treaty it will do so in open session, and with the fullest and freest discussion, so that the public can know what is being said and done."

Senator Henderson, Democrat, of Nevada, said:

"I heartily approve the President's attitude against secret treaties. It is to be hoped that the Italians will be obliged to abandon their stand for Fiume."

DIPLOMATS HOPEFUL IN ITALIAN CRISIS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Feeling in diplomatic and official circles here late this afternoon was that all chance of accommodation has not been lost in the Adriatic crisis growing out of President Wilson's firm stand against the Rome Government's claims to Fiume and intended withdrawal of the Italian delegates from the Paris Peace Conference.

President Wilson's statement was generally construed here as being an appeal to the Italian people themselves over the heads of the Italian delegates and the Italian Government, and in the event of failure of the British Premier and others at Paris to effect an adjustment, it is anticipated that there will be important developments in Italy, during which the Orlando Government will seek indorsement of its delegation's stand at Paris.

The fact that Orlando and Sonnino did not leave Paris this afternoon at the hour first appointed, was interpreted in Washington as a sign that measures of conciliation were being proposed.

Should the Italian delegates return to Rome it was expected that they would directly ask for the reassembling of the Italian Cabinet and present a report on their inability to induce the Peace Conference to recognize the Italian claims. Under this procedure the Cabinet would first determine whether the delegation should receive fresh instructions or a new delegation should be appointed to go to Paris.

In any event, it is regarded as likely that the Government will submit the entire situation to the Italian Parliament for advice and instructions. In some quarters here there was an inclination to predict that President Wilson's stand will result in the overthrow of the Orlando Cabinet, but there was a disposition in Italian circles to challenge that view.

While no statement was forthcoming from the Italian Embassy, and this is easily understandable in view of the extreme gravity and delicacy of the situation, persons in a position to know something of conditions in Italy, and of Italian national sentiment, asserted that if MM. Sonnino and Orlando had submitted to the demands of President Wilson they would have been overthrown.

Either the present Government or any other, it was said, might be able to maintain itself if it conceded to the Jugoslavs a part of the territories assigned to Italy by the Treaty of London in exchange for the port of Fiume, which was assigned by the same pact to Croatia. Among diplomats here tremendous interest was shown in the possible course of Italy in the event that her return to the Peace Conference is not effected.

The solution of the Italo-Jugoslav controversy is expected to foreshadow to some extent the settlement with Japan, and it is believed that the danger of rekindling the European war, if the Italo-Jugoslav controversy is not immediately solved, will hasten all the powers to a decision. The interests at stake, not only to Italy and the Jugoslavs, but to all Europe, are held to be so vast that no delay is permissible, and a settlement of some kind directly is imperative.

Great Britain is regarded as the only power which might be able to persuade Italy to renounce, even for temporary reasons of expediency, her claim to Fiume. To effect this modification of Italy's claims, it is regarded as probable nothing short of a threat to declare an economic blockade of Italy by the British fleet would succeed.

Should President Wilson's manoeuvre result in the overthrow of the Orlando Cabinet, two names are mentioned as Orlando's possible successor, Nitti and Giolitti, with Giolitti the real power in or behind the Government. Giolitti was Premier until shortly before Italy entered the war. He has been planning ever since the conclusion of the armistice to bring about the downfall of the Orlando Cabinet.

especially President Wilson, saying he favors the Jugoslavs, who fought most fiercely against Italy to the last day of the war, while, when other allied nations' aspirations were brought before the Peace Conference, he stretched interpretation of his principles in such a way as to satisfy their desires.

The temper of the people all over Italy is becoming menacing. Within a few days the soldier poet d'Annunzio is expected here, he who with his eloquence can sway the people to heights never before attained.

MILAN, April 24.—Gabriele d'Annunzio, in a fiery message to a Rome demonstration, reasserts the determination of his supporters to defend Italian possession of Fiume and Dalmatia at the point of the sword should the Paris Conference utter an adverse verdict.

The nationalist press is full of bitter attacks upon Wilson, Lloyd George, and Great Britain generally.

"Fiume or Death!" the Watchword.

LONDON, April 24. (Associated Press.)—Public opinion in Italy, according to a wireless message from Rome, is much excited against the Peace Conference for refusing to recognize the Italian claims. Apparently there is a complete truce in party politics, and the newspapers are unanimous in blaming the Allies. It is declared that feeling is running so high that it might have a disastrous influence on Anglo-Italian relations.

"The Italians consider that they have been betrayed by the Allies," the dispatch says. "The whole nation is aroused and has rallied to the support of Orlando and Sonnino. There is a brave army ready to make every sacrifice for the realization of their program. Many popular demonstrations have taken place, and the watchword adopted is 'Fiume or death!'

"If the Conference does not accept the Italian point of view the situation will become extremely serious."

Cheering Crowds in Streets.

ROME, April 24, (Associated Press.)—An imposing demonstration occurred here yesterday, paraders traversing the principal thoroughfares acclaiming Fiume and Dalmatia and cheering for Premier Orlando and Foreign Minister Sonnino because of their attitude regarding Italy's claims at the Paris Peace Conference. The American, British, and French Embassies and the offices of the Socialist newspaper Avanti were each guarded by 200 soldiers to avoid possible incidents.

Addressing a throng that had gathered, Prince Colonna, the Mayor of Rome, asserted that Italy's right to demand the fruits of her victory "would not have to be compromised by hypocritical combinations."

The Rome newspapers are unanimous in declaring that the Italian program as set forth by its delegation at Paris represented the minimum demands compatible with the dignity and safety of Italy. The Italian press as a whole has taken the position that the withdrawal of the Italian delegation from the Peace Conference was inevitable if Italy's aspirations should not be recognized. It was forecast in political circles that Premier Orlando and Foreign Minister Sonnino would return and offer their resignations to the Parliament, which would unanimously reject them, and they would be confirmed in the tenure of their offices by all parties inside and outside of Parliament, with a mandate to uphold what are considered Italy's rights with complete unity and by all means.

Gabriele d'Annunzio, the author-aviator, has sent a message to Fiume, reading:

"He who is ready to convert a war cry into action needs to fear nothing. I promise you victory. I will be amidst you in the supreme moment. Watch and be silent."

PARIS, April 24.—The possibility of ordering all American Y. M. C. A. workers out of Italy is being considered by John R. Mott of the War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A. There are about 200 American workers in Italy, assigned to various units of the Italian Army. Mr. Mott today was somewhat perturbed over the possibility that they might become involved in manifestations of anti-American feeling.

Reuters, Ltd., learns that the Italian Government is taking measures to protect the American Embassy at Rome and consulates in all Italian cities in the event of demonstrations in that country.

NO SECRET ALLIANCE, SAYS THE PRESIDENT

WAR SECRET IS REVEALED

Foch Asked 600,000 Americans or War Was Lost, Tumulty Says—We Sent 2,000,000.

PHILADELPHIA, April 24.—Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer and Joseph P. Tumulty, Secretary to President Wilson, in speeches tonight at the fiftieth anniversary of the Jefferson Club of Philadelphia, urged the Democrats in the coming political campaigns to beware of ancient standards.

Mr. Palmer said that the Democratic Party today was Progressive, and he warned the members of the party not to listen to "conservative, stand-pat Democrats." He said that Thomas Jefferson, when he wrote the Declaration of Independence, did a radical thing and he insisted that Woodrow Wilson was also a radical.

Mr. Tumulty read to the diners a cablegram from President Wilson in which the President said:

"There need be no fear; I will not consent that the United States be a party to any secret alliance."

Mr. Tumulty said that about a year ago there was a conference in a Washington hotel attended by Generals of the army and members of the Cabinet. A message was read from Marshal Foch in which the French military leader said that unless 600,000 men were sent to France by December the war would end in favor of Germany. When December came around, Mr. Tumulty said, there were 2,000,000 American boys in Europe.

Mr. Tumulty told the Pennsylvania Democrats that they need have no fear of investigations by a Republican Congress. All the talk of harmony in the Republican Party, he said, was "camouflage."

Senator Pittman, speaking on events in Paris, said that the President's declaration with regard to the Fiume incident had not been answered and could not be answered.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Formal denial was issued at the White House tonight of the widely published report that the United States Government had entered into a treaty of alliance with the British and French Governments. The denial took the form of a statement prepared in Philadelphia today by Joseph P. Tumulty, Private Secretary to the President. It was made public by his direction, as follows:

"In view of the fact that certain newspapers of wide circulation throughout the country have intimated that the President had entered into a secret alliance or treaty with some of the great powers, I conveyed this information to the President, and am today in receipt of a cablegram from him giving positive and unqualified denial to this story."

CALLS COVENANT 'TWADDLE'

World Tired of War Only for Time Being, Says Gen. Wood.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., April 24.—Describing as "idle twaddle and a dream of mollycoddles" talk that any covenant will protect the world from future wars, Major Gen. Leonard Wood told men of the United States Army General Hospital 36 this afternoon that "If America wants peace she must always be ready to fight for it."

No allied nation outside of France, declared General Wood, was prepared for hostilities in 1914, and he said that the day the armistice was signed there wasn't an American-made cannon or fast pursuit type of airplane on the line.

"The pacifists, moreover," he said, "tell you lies when they say that war, as an institution, is dead. Don't listen to the mollycoddle. Be a citizen of common sense. The world is tired of war only for the time being.

"This war has simply been a lesson. War will go on. The lesson is that we may not always have somebody to hold the line while we get ready, and that, since war is undesirable, when we go in again we must be ready to go in quickly.

"You're going to be a powerful influence in this country. You will be a dominating force. It's up to you and to me to stand closely together. We did it then and must do it now. Remember, there are 4,000,000 of you coming back. A hundred thousand are dead, but the rest are returning to their old or more important places in our national life. They went where they were ordered, did what they were told, and they deserve equal esteem, whether they got overseas or never went further than the training camp.

"We've got to kill Hun propaganda. Don't forget that. If by bad feeling now the Allies can be separated and set to quarreling among themselves, the boche has won the war."

LEAGUE SUPPORTERS PRAISE.

Message to Wilson Applauds His Appeal.

The League of Free Nations Association yesterday sent this message to President Wilson:

"The League of Free Nations Association heartily congratulates you on your courageous appeal to the public opinion of the world on behalf of a peace settlement, based upon the principles agreed to by the allied and associated powers and accepted by the enemy States at the time of the signing of the armistice."

It was signed by James G. McDonald, Chairman of the Executive Committee.

WHY ISHII OPPOSED CHINA ENTERING WAR

Says Unrest of Vast Population Would Have Resulted Without Aid to Allies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Viscount Ishii, the Japanese Ambassador to the United States, who was Japanese Minister of Foreign Affairs in 1915 when China was trying to enter the war, gave in a statement to THE NEW YORK TIMES today his explanation why he could not then indorse such a plan. It was to the effect that he felt that a declaration of war by China against Germany at that time would have added immensely to the excitement of the people and created confusion throughout all of China, from which China and Japan would have suffered.

The Japanese Ambassador's statement was prepared by himself after he had read the special dispatch from Charles A. Selden to THE NEW YORK TIMES, printed April 22, in which Japan's case was likened to Italy's. In that article it was pointed out that Viscount Ishii, then Baron Ishii, who was opposed to China entering the war, was credited with having said to the European Ambassadors at Tokio: "Japan could not view without apprehension the moral awakening of 400,000,000 Chinese, which would result from their entering the war."

Viscount Ishii in his statement today said:

"Was I apprehensive of the moral awakening of the 400,000,000 Chinese? The idea is fantastic. It is to effect this very awakening of the Chinese that Japan has been putting forth all efforts for these many years; sending professors to China and welcoming Chinese students to Japan. So long as China remains in a state of lethargy, she is in danger of her existence. And that danger is at the same time Japan's danger. Japan's security lies in the awakening and rising to power of China.

"But inducing China to participate in the war of 1915 was another affair, which I could not in conscience indorse. China was then passing through a most critical period. Yuan Shih-kai, President of the young republic, who was fitly called the Huerta of China, had just started his monarchical movement and sought to nip China's new born liberty in the bud by assuming the title of Emperor, with all that that title meant in China. An armed opposition had sprung up in Yunnan and was gathering strength from day to day.

"The whole country was on the verge of revolution and anarchy. China was, moreover, utterly destitute of arms and ammunition. What could we expect from her in such a condition?

"The military value to the Entente of the proposed Chinese participation was almost nil. The mere fact of a declaration of war by China would have immensely added to the excitement of the people, and rendered confusion worse confounded throughout the whole country. The greatest sufferer from such a condition in China would be, next after China herself, her neighbor, Japan. Again, from a humanitarian point of view, it was the duty of every belligerent to endeavor to restrict the spheres of war calamity, unless substantial military advantage were to accrue from their extension.

"I know my successor at the Foreign Office, Tokio, took two years later a different view on this question. He had probably his own reason in the presence of the changed situation."

DENIES TALE OF A TREATY.

Viscount Uchida Indignantly Rejects an Anti-Japanese Report.

By Cable to the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, April 24.—There is no indication to show that any Japanese of the name of Oda, mentioned in your telegram, or of a similar name, stayed at Stockholm either in 1916 or 1917. In any case, Japan indignantly denies the charge that she has ever contemplated the conclusion of any treaty or understanding with the Germans in breach of her plighted faith. She knows what honor is.

VISCOUNT UCHIDA,
Minister for Foreign Affairs.

The telegram to Viscount Uchida brought to his attention a report that a Japanese called Oda, or Oka, had attempted to negotiate at Stockholm, while the war was in progress, treaties between Japan and Germany.

SPURNS OVERTURES FROM MUNICH REDS

NOBLEMEN HAD RED GUARD

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 23.—Munich is now completely cut off, and nobody is allowed to leave the city. The Munich Government tried to enter into negotiations with the Bamberg Government, which, however, arrested the leaders sent from Munich and refused to grant any discussions.

According to a message from my Bamberg correspondent, Dr. Levien told his friends and supporters that the lack of food and money would soon prove disastrous to the Communist Government. The Red Guards are getting beyond the Government's control and are taking the food destined for civilians. How hard up for money the Government is is shown by the fact that tramway traffic has been resumed, so that the Government may seize the fares collected.

The National Guard is believed to be reliable, but several volunteer corps may turn at any moment, and the Government, it is thought, will not be strong enough to deal with them. Airplanes are held in readiness to take away the Ministers, in the event of a collapse, to Budapest.

The situation at Augsburg is again very serious. A general strike is again in progress, and a Soviet republic may once again be proclaimed. Government troops in Augsburg have arrested 220 Spartacides, and those with arms in their possession have been shot. A well-known film actress, Jennie Vorten, has been taken as a hostage by the Spartacides.

The strike in the Ruhr district is practically at an end. The banks in Berlin have opened again. In Brunswick complete order has been restored. It has been proved that there the Spartacides since November have seized and spent a large sum of money.

The general situation continues very bad on the German railways. In the whole of Germany only two express trains are now running, both from Berlin; one running eastward, the other westward. Fifty per cent. of the engines are in repair shops, and during the last few days nearly 700 trains have stopped running.

Trained Officers for Red Guard.

BERLIN, April 21. (Associated Press.)—The Munich Spartacides have obtained the services of six trained military officers as leaders of the Red Guard.

They are Colonels Staubwasser, Langloss, and Baron von Zoller, who led brigades during the war; Major Paraquin, who joined the Majority Socialists after the revolution, led the revolutionary student body of Munich University and worked for the transition of the university into a people's high school; Captain Zwehl, a well-known Bavarian cavalry officer, and the Prince of Wied, a well-known gentleman rider.

The adherence of these men to the Spartacide ranks is the first indication that persons other than of the lowest classes were participating in the uprising against law and order. Spartacides under their command have fortified the Krupp works at Freiman, north of Munich, and attacked the Government troops near Pfaffenhofen with a loss of several killed and fifty captured.

The Red Guard newspaper is appearing regularly in Munich with reports from the front. They resemble the old German régime war reports and are said to tell of victories and often mention battles which are declared by the loyal Government forces to have occurred only in the imagination of their authors.

The fate of the hostages in Munich is still a matter of doubt. The Spartacides are said to have determined to shoot one hostage every twelve hours until the Hoffmann Government releases the Red leader, Braig, who has been imprisoned.

The Communists are now forging Bavarian money and paying for their restaurant and drink accounts with it. Every person who manages to slip out of Munich brings tales of increasing terrorism and horror.

Volunteer militia is forming rapidly in Swabia and Bamberg. Hundreds of soldier students and many older men are volunteering. The Communists are trying to send the bourgeoisie to Northern Bavaria rather than starve them. The Red Guards receive daily training. Plundering is increasing.

BRITISH LABOR STANDS WITH WILSON ON PEACE

Message to President Expresses Belief That Italians Will Join in International View.

LONDON, April 24, (Associated Press.)—Prominent British labor leaders have sent a telegram to President Wilson congratulating him "On your magnificent declaration for peace based on the fourteen points."

The telegram adds:

"We are certain that the Italian workers will associate themselves with the international workers in supporting you."

Among those signing the telegram are Arthur Henderson, former member of the War Cabinet; Charles W. Bowerman, Secretary of the Trade Union Congress; John Hodge, former Minister of Pensions; George Lansbury, former Socialist member of the House of Commons; Robert Smillie, the miners' leader; James Henry Thomas, General Secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, and Sidney Webb, economist.

A message was also sent to Premier Lloyd George commending him for the support he was giving to President Wilson, and another telegram was sent to Deputy Turati, leader of the Intransigeant Socialists at Rome, appealing to the Italian workers to support the President of the United States.

PEACE TREATY DRAFT MAY BE DELAYED

seas, has not figured during the discussion of the treaty, and the attitude to be finally adopted has not been announced.

One of the men drafting the treaty has expressed the belief that it would be physically impossible to complete the instrument in time for the arrival of the Germans and that it might even take until May 15 to consummate the tremendous task. This leads to some discussion of presenting parts of the treaty already completed, such as the League of Nations and the reparations provisions, but it is understood that President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George insist that no parts be presented by themselves and that the entire document be presented. This may lead to some revision of the plans for the delivery of the treaty to the Germans, and there may be a brief period of inaction until the document is ready.

Not Hurrying the Germans.

The date of the arrival of the German peace delegation at Versailles is still not determined. The allied representatives are apparently not pressing for haste, in view of the fact that the uncertainties of the Italian situation may make an early inauguration of formal discussions between the representatives of the allied and associated powers and the Germans impossible. Delay in framing the treaty of peace is also a reason for not desiring the speedy arrival of the enemy plenipotentiaries.

The German delegation will be larger than was announced. General Nudant, Marshal Foch's representative at Spa, has been officially informed that, in addition to the peace delegates, there will be a party of seventy-five persons, including experts, and some forty electricians and telegraphers. Three minor German officials who are now at Spa will leave immediately for Versailles to make arrangements regarding telegraphing and facilities for feeding the delegation.

It is stated that no final decision has been reached as to according freedom of movement to the Germans, as requested by Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, nor regarding possible access by allied newspaper men to the press representatives of the German delegation. André Tardieu, who is in charge of arrangements, has flatly opposed any freedom being given to the Germans and has insisted that they must continue to be treated as enemies until the treaty is signed.

The supposition that the delay in the completion of the draft of the treaty has been due entirely to material difficulties has been abandoned, it being admitted in conference circles that final decisions have not yet been reached on a number of secondary questions, which must be included in the document. Among these questions are the details relative to the disposition of the German cables, some aspects as to the reparations, the agreement of the organization commission to sit after the conclusion of peace to supervise the collection of reparations, and the dates when the later installments of the indemnity from Germany shall be paid.

CLEVELAND DISTRICT LEADING ON LOAN

115 Communities There Are Reported to Have Attained Quotas—Toledo Near Top.

TOTALS NOW $376,000,000

This District Is Officially Credited with $124,000,000 in Subscriptions—Navy Pledges $3,500,000

WASHINGTON, April 24. — Nearly $150,000,000 additional Victory Liberty Loan subscriptions were reported to national headquarters today, bringing the total pledged so far up to $396,496,000, distributed among the twelve districts as follows:

District.	Subscription.
Boston	$61,047,150
New York	124,000,000
Philadelphia	26,422,100
Cleveland	27,835,200
Richmond	18,959,000
Atlanta	1,601,700
Chicago	64,628,950
St. Louis	40,918,100
Minneapolis	13,138,100
Kansas City	9,027,450
Dallas	1,737,650
San Francisco	7,181,150

Differences appear to be developing between loan campaign managers of Iowa and Michigan, the two States which have subscribed their quotas, over the question of which was first to achieve this record. The Treasury expressed no opinion as to which should receive first honors. The official summary of the campaign said, however, that a message from C. M. McNider, the Iowa sales director, received at 10:36 A. M. today, said that Iowa passed its quota yesterday afternoon at 3:30. A telegram from F. R. Fenton of the Michigan committee, also received today, said that Michigan had passed its quota, but gave no time of passing. Workers in each State are continuing to roll up subscriptions.

The Cleveland district continued tonight to lead all other districts in the number of communities reaching their quota, having 115. Toledo expected to obtain its quota by Friday, and Cincinnati reported that it had obtained about half of its quota. Sales were reported moving more slowly in the Kentucky area than in any other part of the district, only one-sixth of that section's quota being raised.

Wiandot County, Kansas, which includes Kansas City, Kas., obtained its quota and 28 per cent. additional today, and Lansing, Mich., wired tonight that it had obtained its quota solely by the use of the volunteer subscription loan.

A letter from the Lynn, Mass., Victory Loan Committee today said that the city's courier, Michael Doyle, is proceeding to Washington on foot carrying the names of the first hundred subscribers in Lynn and that he hoped to present a report to the Treasury Department on his arrival here about May 1, that Lynn had oversubscribed its quota. If the city fails Doyle, the letter promised, he will return and go back to Lynn and raised the quota.

The Women's Liberty Loan Committee is receiving very satisfactory reports of work among its representatives throughout the country.

The country having officially subscribed more than $395,000,000, the Victory Ship, which is making the trip from San Francisco to New York, was able today to leave San Diego. At noon the Victory Ship pennant and the letter from the Mayor of San Francisco to the Mayor of New York was transferred from the U. S. S. Marblehead to the U. S. S. Crane, and the Crane steamed out of port headed for the Panama Canal. On the long trip from San Diego to the Panama Canal radio messages will be sent daily to the destroyer Crane giving instructions to proceed the number of miles which the nation's subscription justifies.

Reports from stations and ships all over the world poured into the office of Rear Admiral Cowie, Navy Victory Loan Officer, today, showing that the navy subscription is approximately $3,500,000. This is more than the entire navy subscription to the First Liberty Loan.

Captain W. B. Wells of the battleship Kentucky, which is steaming down the Atlantic coast from Portland, Me., to New York, reported that the farmers of Aroostook County, Maine, could find no market for their potatoes, and consequently were not subscribing heavily to the loan. A few hours later came this message:

"Aroostook County situation improving. Officers and men of the Kentucky have come to the rescue by buying 40,000 pounds of spuds to help out subscriptions."

Subscribers to Victory Liberty Loan notes are encouraged by the Treasury to buy registered instead of coupon notes to eliminate danger of theft or loss. In explaining this today, Treasury officials said the desire of the Treasury to issue registered securities, wherever possible, was emphasized in this loan because the registered notes carry one interest coupon for the Dec. 15 payment, thus saving the Treasury the expensive routine of sending out interest payment checks at that time.

Unofficial reports show that most subscriptions so far have been for coupon notes, which may be converted later to registered securities. Most subscriptions appear to be for the 4¾ per cent. partially exempt notes rather than the 3¾ wholly exempt securities.

CLEVELAND TOTAL $107,380,000

More Than One-fourth of District's Quota Already Subscribed.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 24.—Victory Loan subscriptions in the Fourth Federal Reserve District reached a total tonight of $107,380,000, more than one-fourth of the quota. Three new counties passed their goal. They were McCreary, Ky., and Marion and Paulding, Ohio.

Armstrong County, Penn., withheld official figures, but announced that a house-to-house canvass is not necessary to put it over the top.

HEAR APPEALS BY WIRELESS.

Visitors on Victory Way Also Get Correct Naval Time.

Visitors at Victory Way, which the Liberty Loan Committee constructed on the Park Avenue esplanade above the Grand Central Terminal, had the official naval time transmitted to them through the loud-speaking wireless telephones every quarter hour in the same manner as the navy wireless station at Arlington flashes the correct time to ships at sea. Other features included the transmission of a soldier quartet singing at Camp Upton.

Overhead the bi navy dirigible C-4 from the Rockaway station sent down a telephone message to the crowd to "buy Victory notes." There was all afternoon speaking at the various booths around Victory Way, among the speakers being Sergeant J. M. McCormick of the 26th Infantry and Sergeant J. Liner of the Lost Battalion.

Tonight is Greek Night at Victory Way. Among the speakers who will address the crowds are the Greek Ambassador to the United States, M. Tsmadas; Professor Andrew Andreades, and the Right Rev. Bishop Alexander Rodostolou, head of the Greek Church in America. Greek boys and girls in national costume will give folk dances and songs.

Tomorrow Mrs. William G. McAdoo, President Wilson's daughter, will speak at the Way. She will address the crowd at the Victory Loan booth south of the speakers' rostrum. Mrs. Newton Baker will send a message to Victory Way from Washington.

The Bond Issue Division of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York announced yesterday that 100,000 Victory notes of the fifty-dollar denomination and 13,000 of the one-hundred-dollar denomination, of the 4¾ per cent. series, have been distributed to banks in the Second Federal Reserve District. These were distributed to banks in all parts of the district because of the insistent demand from the public for cash sales over the counter. Banks in various parts of the Second District have sent in applications to the Bond Issue Division for more than 200,000 of the fifty-dollar notes and more than 100,000 of the one-hundred-dollar notes.

The news of the demand at the banks for small Victory notes was received enthusiastically by officials of the Liberty Loan Committee, as showing that thousands of people who had never bought a security before the war were eager to buy notes, and went to banks to demand them without waiting to be solicited by Victory Note salesmen and saleswomen.

Women's organizations are taking a most active part in selling notes all through the Second District, and with the experience of the earlier campaigns, the women have been selling bonds at a brisk rate, especially in small communities. Mr. John T. Pratt, Chairman of the Woman's Liberty Loan Committee, said yesterday:

"In twenty-five communities of the district, small towns for the most part, the women are handling the new loan exclusively, the men having voluntarily turned it over to them because of their past loan records. The large cities in the district have worked out their selling problem in various ways, taking into consideration their special problems. The more remote country places are reached by the women workers through the school centres for the most part."

RAINBOW DIVISION SETS $30,000,000 FOR DAY

The Rainbow Division of the army of Victory Loan workers, on which the Liberty Loan Committee puts most of the labor of a wide distribution of Victory notes, yesterday reported through its staff, the Advisory Trades Committee, that subscriptions obtained so far by the division total nearly $100,000,000. More than $30,000,000 worth of subscriptions were announced for the results of yesterday's canvassing by the division.

The banner unit of the division continues to be the Petroleum and Allied Products Committee under the leadership of Howard E. Coles, which has a total of $6,000,000. This organization is being closely pressed by the Tobacco Industry Committee with a total of $5,620,000. The Chairman of the Tobacco Committee is Edward Wise. Following the two leaders come a number of other committees, including the Hardware, Metals and Allied Committees, the Export, Import, and Shipping Committee, the Hides and Leather Committee, the Department Stores Committee, and the Woolen and Worsted Industry Committee, each of which has turned in a report of more than $2,000,000 worth of notes subscribed.

AQUITANIA MAKES RECORD TRIP HERE

Liner Bearing Vanguard of 77th Sets Mark for Transports From Brest.

TELL OF PART IN FIGHTING

The big Cunarder Aquitania arrived yesterday from Brest with the first units of the 77th Division, having made the voyage in 5 days 17 hours and 58 minutes, at an average speed of 22.2 knots. This is the fastest passage made from Brest to New York by any transport during the war.

The Aquitania left Brest at 5 o'clock on the afternoon of April 18 with the Leviathan, just twenty-four hours after the United States naval transport Mount Vernon had sailed for New York with Major General Robert Alexander, commanding the Seventy-seventh Division and the Headquarters and the 306th Infantry.

"I received wireless messages yesterday from both the Leviathan and the Mount Vernon asking when the Aquitania would arrive in New York," said Captain Charles of the liner. "I replied that I expected to be at the Ambrose Channel Lightship at 5 o'clock this morning, and the Captain of the Leviathan said he would be there at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. There was no reply from the Mount Vernon after she received my message. Both transports may have had to reduce speed as we did when we ran into a fog.

There were 218 officers and 5,199 enlisted men aboard, of whom all but 100 officers and 150 men belonging to various casual companies were of the 77th Division. The units included the 305th and 306th Machine Gun Battalions and the 305th Infantry complete. The troops while on board were under the command of Lieut. Col. Charles T. Herr of the regular United States Army. The units were taken in ferry boats to Long Island City on their way to Camp Mills with the exception of 19 officers and 645 men of the 306th Machine Gun Battalion, who were sent to Camp Upton.

Men in Fine Health.

The men of the 77th Division looked the picture of health when they ran down the gangways yesterday from the Aquitania to the pier. Two days out from Brest a slight epidemic of influenza broke out on the lower decks, which was detected by Major Wharton, the medical officer, early enough to prevent its spread. There were nine cases the first night after it was discovered and thirty-five more developed the next day and twenty more on the second day, which ended the epidemic. All of the men who had been exposed were isolated.

Conspicuous on the shoulders of the troops was the insigna of the division. This consists of the Statue of Liberty on a blue background.

The 305th Infantry Regiment had 2,100 replacements, according to Captain John D. Kenderdine, the Adjutant, who comes from New York. These men represented nearly every State in the Union, as the regiment had been replaced four times through the heavy casualties.

There were altogether 2,600 casualties, sick and wounded and gassed, which included 25 officers and 450 men killed in action. The reason that the casualties exceed the replacements by 500, it was explained, is that a number of the wounded, sick, and gassed came back to the regiment after they recovered.

In giving a brief account of the doings of the 305th Infantry, Captain Kenderdine said:

"We sailed from New York on April 16, 1918, for England, and were sent to Flanders to join the British, and remained there until the first of August, when we went to the French sector near Toul in Lorraine, and then we drove the Germans from Château-Thierry to the Vesle River, where the 4th Division relieved us for a few days. From there we chased the Boche to the Aisne River, where we arrived on Sept. 18, and then we were sent to the back of the Argonne.

"On Sept. 26 the 305th Infantry took part in the big drive against the Germans, driving them right across the Aisne River. On the night of Oct. 15, when the regiment was relieved by replacements, the casualties were very heavy, amounting to 200 officers and men. From there we went on to the Meuse and took part in the last attack launched against the enemy on Nov. 1, when the casualties were again very heavy. The Germans had a concentrated line of machine guns concealed in the brush which could not be seen by our men as they advanced until their front ranks were suddenly sprayed with bullets. One of our platoons was the first to cross the Meuse in that sector under a heavy fire."

Captain Frank B. Tiebout, Intelligence Officer and Historian of the 305th Infantry, also described the activities of the unit and commented on the heavy casualties when in the thick of the fight. "On the night of Nov. 2 we went through the enemy's position," he said, "and drove them back from ten to fifteen kilometers a day until Nov. 6, when the regiment sustained heavy casualties on the Meuse. After that the regiment had a five days' rest and then the armistice was signed."

The officers and men on the Aquitania said that they had no complaints to make and were jubilant at getting home ahead of the others. The opinion of the men concerning fighting in France was phrased by Private George W. Leonard of Company L, 305th Infantry, as follows:

"Fighting isn't so bad," said Private Leonard on the boat deck yesterday afternoon. "It's the hard work attached to it that beats me. To read the papers you'd think that all the Yanks had to do in France was to walk around between meals and shoot Germans. The amount of walking we had to do between the scraps was something fierce. The Jerries never thought we wanted any sleep. They moved back so fast that our boys had to keep hiking day and night to catch up to them.

"We generally found their camping places just after they had eaten their hash and beaten it, and they left nothing behind them except the hot ashes of the fires where their cooking stoves had been. Then, just after you'd get curled up as warm as you could among the dead leaves, the Sergeant of the guard would come around and say the Jerries had got away from us again. For four days and nights we only had bread and water to keep up our strength because the kitchens could not catch up with us. Directly they did, the order would come to do another hike and leave all the grub behind us.

"Then the bunch would fall into line walking through the forest like the Chinks do in Mott Street and now and then there would be a rustling among the brushes ahead of us and a lot of gas jets would pop out with a bang, bang, bang, and knock over a lot of our boys. I got so darned tired of the walking without sleep that I almost hoped something might hit me so that I would be sent back to a hospital to get some sleep for a day."

Among the casual officers on the Aquitania was Lieutenant Kingdon Gould, who had been abroad since May, 1918. He had been promoted on June 14 to a Lieutenancy in the Corps of Interpreters.

Chaplain Duncan H. Browne, who has the rank of Captain, of Christ's Episcopal Church, New Brighton, Staten Island, returned after a year and a half abroad. At the opening of the Argonne drive he rescued ten wounded soldiers who were lying within forty yards of the enemy trenches. Later he rescued two men lying on a bare hillside swept by enemy fire. He has received the D. S. C.

ASKS ARMENIAN ARMY.

American Delegation Wants to Equip Force for Far East Protection.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Formal request was made of the State Department today by the Armenian National delegation that the Armenians in this country be permitted to raise and equip a force of 10,000 Armenians among those already trained in the United States Army for service in Asia Minor in protecting non-Moslem peoples from further massacres by the Turks. The request was presented to Assistant Secretary Phillips by Miran Sevasly, Chairman of the Armenian National Union of America.

Mr. Sevasly urged upon Mr. Phillips the necessity for an immedaite modification of the armistice terms with Turkey, including evacuation of Armenia by the Turks. He also asked that the Allies recognize at once the Armenia National Council in Paris as the Armenian Government.

NEW YORK GIRL MISSING.

Miss Knowles, Ward of Mrs. Gerald Borden, Disappears at Guelph, Ont.

TORONTO, April 24.—The Toronto police were notified today of the disappearance at Guelph, Ont., of Miss Millicent Knowles of New York. Miss Knowles arrived at Guelph a week ago, accompanied by Mrs. Storey, wife of Admiral Storey of Halifax. She had been attending a convent school in Montreal.

Miss Knowles, who is 22 years old and said to be a ward of Mrs. Gerald Borden of New York City, has been missing since Sunday morning, when she started for church alone.

At the home of Mrs. Borden, 35 East 51st Street, a woman caretaker was the only person found yesterday. The caretaker said Mrs. Borden had left the city for Canada, but she did not know when. She disclaimed any knowledge of Miss Knowles.

Standard Oil Barge Sinks Lightship.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., April 24.—A four-masted steel Standard Oil barge in tow from Boston to New York crashed into the steel relief Lightship No. 51 stationed at Cornfield Reef in the Long Island Sound this afternoon and ripped a hole in the lightship, which sank in twenty-seven feet of water. All of the crew of seven escaped in small boats and were picked up by the tug, which landed them here tonight.

PARIS, April 23.—The French Senate today passed the Eight-hour Labor bill, which now becomes a law.

10,000 GREET 77TH VETERANS

S. Buck. The committee included William F. Conway, Robert Summers, the Rev. Father T. J. Timmons, ex-City Comptroller Joseph E. Gavin and Dr. C. Frank Bruso. The committee, through a megaphone, told the boys from Erie that special Pullman cars had been engaged by the City of Buffalo to take them home. The answer they received was "Oh, Boy!"

When it became apparent at 10 o'clock that the Aquitania could not proceed up the river until the tide was higher, most of the welcoming fleet gave a final greeting and returned. Just as the Correction was leaving the scene a private on the liner was seen to throw his hat up in the air and wave wildly in the direction of the departing boat. The soldier had at that moment discovered a streamer, twelve feet long, on which was inscribed, "Welcome to Private Samuel Stutzer, Company C, 305th Infantry." The streamer had been waved constantly by Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Stutzer, the soldier's parents. They seemed recompensed for their long wait in the rain by the sight of their boy.

Escorted by the Patrol and the Correction, the Aquitania, at 11 o'clock, under her own steam, proceeded up the North River to Pier 52, at the foot of Fifteenth Street. The debarkation of the men began within a half hour after the liner had been made fast to the piers.

While the men were waiting to be taken aboard ferry boats, which were to transport them to Long Island City on the way to Camp Mills, representatives of the Y. M. C. A., the Jewish Welfare Board, the Knights of Columbus, the Salvation Army and the Red Cross supplied them with sandwiches, coffee, fruit, candy and cigarettes.

Praises Valor of Soldiers.

Major Bozeman Bulger of the Second Battalion of the 305th Infantry on his arrival paid a tribute to the Jewish and Italian members of the division. He said that their heroism was all the more amazing when one considered that they had never had military experience prior to going to Camp Upton. Major Bulger said that when Tony went over the top, as he expressed it, the Germans found a fighter who was not to their liking.

"New York may well be proud of the 77th Division," Major Bulger said. "My own regiment received twenty-one decorations and we expect to get eight more."

The members of the division, Major Bulger said, resented the prohibition amendment, not because they were necessarily "wets," but because they felt that the law had been "put over on them" while they were away. In talks with the men he said he had found many abstainers opposing the prohibition idea because of the reason given.

Corporal Edward Hagenmiller of the 305th Machine Gun Battalion said that the men were anxious to get out of uniform and back to their jobs. He said that the men of the 305th Battalion were amazed when they learned that prohibition laws had been ordained without giving them a chance to express their own feelings on the question.

Mt. Vernon Docks Early Today.

The Mt. Vernon, with Major General Robert Alexander, commanding officer of the 77th Division, and his staff, the 153d Infantry Brigade and the 306th Infantry on board, was due at Ambrose Channel late last night, according to officials at the Port of Debarkation, Hoboken. It was planned to dock the transport at 6 o'clock this morning.

The announcement of an early docking upset the plans of the Mayor's Committee of Welcome. Tickets have been issued to several thousand persons who were told to be at the Battery before 8 o'clock. It had been understood by the Mayor's Committee that the ship would dock at 10 o'clock this morning.

Mrs. Robert Alexander, wife of General Alexander; Mrs. H. H. McGee, whose husband is Chief of Staff, and Mrs. Michael Lenihan, wife of the commanding officer of the 153d Infantry Brigade, had been invited to go down the bay on the Patrol, which will carry Mayor Hylan and members of the Mayor's Committee.

The Welcome Committee for the Jewish Boys Returning from the War sent the following message by wireless to General Alexander yesterday:

"The Welcome Committee for the Jewish Boys Returning from the War, formed for the purpose of giving a whole-hearted reception to the heroic boys of the 77th, extend to you a hearty welcome. Please assure the boys under your command that the Jews look forward to their homecoming and are anxious to pay a tribute to their undaunted bravery, shown so magnificently on the field of battle under your distinguished leadership."

The wireless message was signed by John L. Bernstein, President of the committee, and Dr. Max Girdansky, Chairman of the Executive Committee.

At Long Island City, where the first contingent of the 77th entrained yesterday for Camp Mills, the men received an ovation from a crowd which had assembled in the Plaza and neighboring streets. A special train was waiting, and the men lost no time in getting aboard. At Mineola the troops were marched to Camp Mills and assigned to quarters. No leaves will be given until forty-eight hours after the men arrived in camp, according to an official announcement.

READING HAS FAITH IN PEACEMAKERS

British Ambassador, Guest of Foreign News Men, Sees Hope in Fiume Dispute.

BIG MINDS WILL CONQUER

Thinks Bolsheviki Cannot Last Because of Taking Wrong Economic Law.

Lord Reading, British Ambassador to the United States, speaking last night at a dinner given in his honor by the Association of Foreign Press Correspondents in the United States at the Hôtel Plaza, intimated that the Italian dispute regarding Fiume was the greatest problem that has arisen at the Peace Conference. He said he would not indulge in gloomy forebodings, but rather would hold the thought that the "intellectual giants at the peace table would find a way to reconcile their differences."

In his address, which was received with great applause by the distinguished gathering of diplomats, journalists, financiers, and men of affairs, Lord Reading discussed the question of feeding Russia, paid a tribute to the newspaper correspondents, defended Great Britain and the United States from the insinuations that they did not desire to see France obtain absolute security from danger of war, and awarded high praise to the financiers of America for their sentiments toward the Allies even before this country entered the war.

The other speakers were Maurice Casenave, Minister Plenipotentiary of France; Marcel Knecht of the French Bureau of Information; M. Tasmadios, Minister in Charge of the Greek Legation; George W. Wickersham, P. W. Wilson, and Percy Bullen. The Chairman was Frank Dilnot of the London Chronicle.

After bantering the newspaper correspondents on the methods of their craft, Lord Reading said that although he had confided to the correspondents many things that they could not divulge there never was the faintest suspicion that any confidence he imparted to them had ever been divulged to any one.

"Whatever the reports are we must know that at the Peace Conference we cannot get an ideal solution as one would wish," he said. "There must be concessions, there must be compromises; what they have been we are not yet officially informed, but on this day we need not be reminded that new problems are arising."

It was here that Lord Reading said that there were problems during the war and since the war, but he was not so sure but that the greatest of the problems has arisen since. Although he did not specify that he meant the Italian dispute on Fiume, his auditors accepted the earnest declaration that followed as referring to that situation.

"Today we learn that there is a condition of great difficulty and that there may not be a solution," he continued. "I am one of those who do not indulge in gloomy forebodings. I rather indulge in the thought that the intellectual giants at the Peace Conference may find a way to reconcile their differences and once more there may prevail that harmony and unity and freedom from trials and tribulations that prevailed during the war period; that this condition may be restored at the peace table and I doubt not that attempts are being made at this moment to accomplish that end."

Lord Reading said that there were rumors and rumblings "on the highest authority" that a little while ago America and Britain would not support France in her desire for security from future aggression. He said that those who knew Great Britain and the United States could not credit that view. He paid an eloquent tribute to the love for France borne by Britain and the United States, and turned toward M. Casenave as he told of the great suffering endured by his countrymen in the desire to free themselves from the shadow of the shining armor and the mailed fist across the frontier.

Turning to the question of Russia, the speaker said that democracy has conquered in the west but was menaced in the east; that it has destroyed German militarism and now has to reckon with Russian Bolshevism.

"One book is closed but the other book is still open," he continued, "for one was conquered by force of arms and the other, so it is said, it is proposed to meet by food. Whether the conditions will be fulfilled or not I do not say, but I do know that food at the present time is as potent as valorous armies. The great problem will be how to distribute the food.

"One thing be assured of, and of this I speak my personal conviction. Bolshevism cannot long exist, with all its accompanying terrorism, because it has been carried on in defiance of all economic law. Lenin and Trotzky are learning at this moment that no system of government can continue to exist for long if it is based on false economic laws. No one can get away from that. I do not profess to put forth the ultimate solution of the problem, but I do say that the Bolsheviki have not come to stay. They cannot survive long unless they extend to the west. Otherwise they will be confined to their own country, for their transgression of these economic laws must bring about ruin and failure. So far its progress has not been marked in the west.

"There has been much speculating as to whether Germany will sign the peace or not. I do not propose to give an answer to that, but peace is essential to all the nations. It is more vital to Germany than to any other nation. Germany has to pay the penalty of defeat. She must meet and satisfy the just terms of the just victors. The sooner Germany makes her people understand this the better and the sooner will we be able to restore former conditions."

Thanks the Newspapers.

Lord Reading asked the newspaper correspondents present to accept from him for the press of the allied countries the tribute of thanks for all the assistance the press gave to the allied cause at all times during the war, particularly with the manner in which the newspapers impressed their readers with the unalterable faith in the ultimate victory no matter how long delayed it appeared to be.

Recalling that he arrived with the allied financial mission to this country at a time when the United States was not at war with Germany, Lord Reading said it was difficult for him not to commit himself. However, he added, no man of the mission, either French or British, had a doubt in forty-eight hours after his arrival as to the attitude of the bankers when the requirements of the Allies were placed before them.

"I realized then what I had not known before," he declared, "and that was that your bankers were anxious to help the loan and make it a success, not because of the profit they expected to accrue to them, but because in truth their hearts beat with the cause of the Allies and this was their first opportunity of showing it."

Lord Reading said he wondered if the newspaper correspondents ever had any idea as to his fears when the vessel that bore him here on his first trip reached Quarantine. He had heard of the newspaper reporters of the United States and of their questioning of new arrivals, and after counseling with himself he said he concluded that the best course would be to treat them frankly and openly, simply asking them not to divulge the things that could not be divulged because of public policy. He added that there never was the faintest suspicion that any confidence he had imparted to them had ever been divulged to any one.

Among those present were James M. Beck, Lieut. Col. Norman G. Thwaites, Martin Vogel, Dr. Oreste Ferrara, Paul Warburg, F. Cunliffe-Owen, George Foster Peabody, R. D. Blumenfeld, Consul General Yada of Japan, and Henry Clews.

DINNER FOR DR. GARFIELD.

Fuel Administration Executives Present a Bronze to Retiring Chief.

Dr. Harry A. Garfield, Federal Fuel Administrator, was guest of honor at a farewell dinner given in the Waldorf-Astoria last night by the executive heads of the United States Fuel Administration. About forty were present. William B. Symmes, Jr., solicitor to the Fuel Administration, presided.

A bronze reproduction of the familiar "Soldier and Miner" poster of the Fuel Administration was presented to Dr. Garfield by his hosts, the presentation speech being made by W. E. Hope. Other speakers were J. D. A. Morrow, General Director of the Distributing Division of the Fuel Administration, and M. L. Requa, General Director of the Oil Division.

URGES MORE SHIPS TO SOUTH AMERICA

W. G. McAdoo Would Operate Them Even at a Loss at First, He Tells Chilean Mission.

WHAT ONE VESSEL IS DOING

Former Secretary of Treasury Advocates Government Aid—Elihu Root Also Speaks at Dinner.

Former Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo, who spoke last night at the dinner of welcome given in Sherry's by the Chile and Northern News Association to the Chilean Financial Mission, urged that the United States should apply to the ocean-borne commerce of the Western Hemisphere the policy which proved so beneficial to the country in the early railroad building days when roads were run at a loss to develop sections which soon became great wealth-producing parts of the nation.

"One single ship," said Secretary McAdoo, "is now plying between here and Chile and makes the trip in eighteen days. I am of the opinion that this single vessel is doing as much as any other instrumentality to strengthen the relations between the two countries.

"When I think of the many vessels we now own, it seems to me that there is a great opportunity and that we should give Chile by means of these the opportunity for more frequent communication with the United States.

Favors Government Help.

"Trade cannot be developed unless there is a certainty of transportation. No part of our country could have been developed to the point where it is today if there had not been transportation. In many cases it proved necessary for these railway lines to operate at a loss until the country that they reached had been developed because of their presence. The same applies to South American trade.

"People will not venture to establish businesses until they are sure of transportation; it is advisable and necessary to make use of the Government ships for this purpose, even if at a loss, until commerce can be established on a stable basis and lines made self-supporting, and so I should like to impress on you the great importance of co-operating with these gentlemen for the promotion of international trade.

"Heretofore their markets have been in Europe, but now we are becoming the international financial power, and we will find it to our advantage to go into the field of foreign investments. It will be well for us to extend reasonable credit to the business men of South America."

Business Formerly With Europe.

Mr. McAdoo spoke of the war's disturbance of South American commercial and financial relations, which previously were mostly with Europe, and said that efforts to establish such relations with this country should be encouraged. Speaking of the International High Commission created in 1916, he said it was established with the idea that it would create an agency in each country to deal with the problems arising out of commerce and finance between the powers. He said that it has already accomplished much and is in position to be a great asset to all of the countries concerned.

It handles, he said, many matters such as the standardization of customs regulations, bills of lading, warehouse receipts, and other matters that could not fittingly be dealt with through treaties or diplomacy, and its agency in each country looks after whatever legislation is necessary to bring about the need standardization. He said that it had brought about ratification of trade mark and copyright treaties in all the countries but one, and that it had improved the legislation in South America governing licenses to be required for commercial travelers. The High Commission, he said, is being conducted at a cost of only about $25,000 a year.

Mr. McAdoo expressed confidence that the relations between the two countries would become constantly more cordial, and that he believed a great destiny awaited the Americas.

The speech of welcome to the Chileans was delivered by ex-Secretary of State Elihu Root. The response was made by Eliodoro Yanez, the head of the Chilean Financial Mission.

Mr. Root's entire talk was in the nature of an eloquent welcome to the Chileans. He said that he desired the friendship of Chile for his country and that on behalf of his country he offered them its friendship. He also expressed the desire that the commission should succeed in its purpose.

"Every one of us must desire that their visit should accomplish its wise purpose," he said, "and that the intercourse and commerce between Chile and the United States should spread year after year into the ever brightening future to teach the world that the two great republics, without sinister designs or policy, can be friends."

Mr. Yanez spoke in Spanish, and his remarks were afterward interpreted into English by another of the Chileans. He said it was his duty to express the Chilean aspirations clearly and freely at this time, and that these aspirations were to harmonize the material interests of the two countries and establish cordial relations that would be reciprocally advantageous. Chile, he said, was ardently in favor of American unity, and this was unfortunately retarded at the present time by difficult land and water communication. He said the Chileans were deeply interested in seeing this obstacle removed.

Dwight W. Morrow of J. P. Morgan & Co. presided. The Chilean guests included Beltran Mathieu, Chilean Ambassador to the United States; Augustin Edwards, Chilean Minister to England; Mr. Yanez, Augusto Villanueva, President of the Bank of Chile and a member of the Financial Commission; Jose Enrique Tocernal, and Admiral Luis Gomez of the Chilean Navy.

Among the Americans present were many prominent in financial circles and international trade. They included A. M. Anderson, Leopold Frederick, James S. Alexander, Mortimer G. Buckner, Albert V. Breton, Lewis L. Clarke, Allan B. Forbes, Eugene G. Grace, Daniel and Isaac Guggenheim, N. Dean Jay, R. L. Morris, Edward D. Adams, Thatcher M. Brown, Francis D. Bartow, James H. Carter, Pierre D. du Pont, and James Imbrie.

RESCUED WIDOW FROM LAKE

Carpenter Says Mrs. Clark, Husband Just Dead, Attempted Suicide.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I., April 24.—Mrs. David Crawford Clark, 60, of 820 Fifth Avenue, Manhattan, whose husband, a wealthy banker, died last week, was rescued from Lake Agawam yesterday by W. C. Schaeder, a carpenter, who was at work near the lake. He says he saw Mrs. Clark wading into the water, and that when he went to her rescue she tried to fight him off. He says he heard her tell her daughter, Miss Mary Clark, that she wanted to "end it all."

Following Mr. Clark's funeral in Manhattan last Monday, Mrs. Clark, her sister-in-law, Mrs. George C. Clark of 1,027 Fifth Avenue, Manhattan, and her daughter came to Southampton and were staying at the Claridge Cottage.

GREGORY OUTLINES ARMY COURT PLANS

ANSELL CITES 100 TRIALS

Witness Urges Report by July to Aid in New Law—Formal Action May Wait Till September.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Correction of the army court-martial system should proceed from the bottom upward, according to opinion expressed today by Judge S. S. Gregory, Chairman of the Investigating Committee of the American Bar Association, in a statement of the tentative conclusions based upon disclosures in the committee's inquiry. His statement was made at the opening of today's session.

Lieut. Col. Ansell was before the committee again, completing his lengthy argument against the existing system of military justice. He dealt today with remedial legislation he regarded as necessary, and again indicated his feeling that radical revision of the entire system was all that could effectually safeguard army enlisted men in their constitutional rights to fair and impartial trials.

Judge Gregory interjected the statement of his own views with the explanation that he did so for the information of Colonel Ansell, who might wish to discuss some of the points presented. The Judge added, also, that he spoke for himself alone, and regarded his own state of mind as wholly tentative. Reforms of military justice should begin in the practice of the courts, Judge Gregory though, which largely would obviate necessity for extensive revision of cases.

He specifically enumerated, among changes he now believed desirable, the appointment of a qualified legal officer as presiding judge of courts-martial, to rule upon all law questions; requirement of a unanimous verdict by the court in all death sentences, or those involving dishonorable discharge or more than two years' imprisonment; creation of a system of trial by commissioned officers before courts composed of commissioned officers, and of enlisted men before what would in practice be juries of enlisted men, with a qualified officer presiding as judge; creation of a power for revision of findings, and sentences for legal error, to be lodged in the War Department; and, finally, promulgation of verdicts of acquittal in open court, with immediate release of defendants.

Colonel Ansell replied that Judge Gregory's statement indicated that the committee already was arriving at the conclusion that radical amendment of the military legal practice is necessary. The broad result of the adoption of a policy such as the Chairman had outlined, he said, would be, in his opinion, to reduce the number of courts-martial in the army by at least one-half.

Cites 100 Cases of Clemency Board.

Something of a clash occurred between Colonel Ansell and Colonel Hinkley, of the committee, over Ansell's desire to submit abstracts of 100 cases taken from the records of the Clemency Board, of which Colonel Ansell is the head.

Colonel Hinkley said he would rather spend the time discussing remedies with Colonel Ansell, as the committee "understands very well that there have been many excessive sentences," and already had many instances in its records.

"I am not talking about excessive sentences," Colonel Ansell replied. "That is where we get off the track."

To this Colonel Hinkley retorted that he understood also that there were many instances of badly tried cases.

"There are great numbers of cases," Colonel Ansell said, "where they have been so poorly tried that no human being can now say that the trial sustained the punishment." He added that he would talk of cases of this sort "in the thousands" if necessary.

Colonel Hinkley objected, and a rather sharp argument followed, in the course of which Colonel Ansell asserted that he had felt an air of patronage toward him by the committee because he was a military, not a civil lawyer, and had also felt a tendency to limit him.

Chairman Gregory intervened to say that neither Colonel Hinkley nor the committee had the least desire to limit his presentation. The discussion resulted in Colonel Ansell reading the extracts and discussing the specific cases of poor trials contained in the 100 specimens from the records of the Clemency Board.

During the examination of these specimens, a question brought out the fact that Colonel Ansell was opposed to the inauguration of a system of enlisted courts or juries to try cases where enlisted men were the accused. He had no doubt, he said, that with a proper assignment of a law officer as presiding judge such courts or juries would function well, but he had seen no necessity for inaugurating so radical a departure, he said, believing that courts composed of officers, other things being equal, would return better verdicts as a rule.

Colonel Ansell also submitted a list of about twenty lawyers, former officers of the army, or others with knowledge and experience with court-martial practice, whose views he thought would enlighten the committee. He said he had selected only men "now out of the service" because officers could not testify frankly "without being in danger of punishment by the military machine."

May Delay Report Till Fall.

Chairman Gregory said he would telegraph to those within reach and would ask the others for their views in writing, Colonel Ansell to formulate statements showing the scope which these written inquiries were to take, if he so desired.

The committee will hear tomorrow such of these witnesses as present themselves. Later the committee may sit at Chicago.

Colonel Ansell objected to the suggestion that the committee might not report before July. If the system is to be revised it should be revised on the Army Appropriation bill, which will be enacted before July 1, he said.

Judge Gregory replied the committee had no control, as it was to report to the Executive Committee of the American Bar Association, and the association would not itself meet before September. The record of evidence taken by the inquiry committee might, however, be made available to the committees of Congress, he thought, if the Executive Committee so desired.

BRITISH OFFICERS DEPART.

Last of Those Sent Here to Co-operate Are Going Home.

Major L. H. Beesley and Lieutenant Arthur Percival Barry, two English officers who have been in America co-operating with the American intelligence forces, are to sail on board the Adriatic next Monday. They have made many friends here and in Washington, who warmly praise the services they have contributed.

Major Beesley comes from Wirkworth, Derbyshire. He was in the trenches in 1915 and was invalided out of active service through shell shock. In December, 1916, after he came out of the hospital, he was attached to the Military Intelligence Staff, then sent from London to Liverpool, and afterward to the United States. He came here in May, 1918, to succeed another officer who had been performing liaison work.

Lieutenant Barry was attached to a London regiment when in the trenches. He was shot in the legs and then transferred to a branch of the British military intelligence. His work proved extremely valuable owing to his knowledge of foreign languages. He was ordered to Halifax in February, 1917, and was at breakfast there when the great explosion took place.

When the United States and Great Britain decided to examine vessels in New York to hasten the arrival and departure of passengers Lieutenant Barry came to New York and he and other officers had offices in the Custom House. The other officers engaged in similar work have since returned and Lieutenant Barry is the last of that contingent left.

Fricke Case Nears End.

The summing up of counsel in the case of Albert Paul Fricke, on trial in the Federal Court for treason, was concluded yesterday. Judge Mayer will charge the jury this morning. A verdict is expected before the close of the day.

"That Well-Groomed Look"—The Result of Perfect Corseting—

Nemo Corseting

Hundreds of women in professional or business life—whose personal appearance is so valued an asset—know what a Nemo Corset means to them. Freedom from corset worries, greater and insured well-being, the ability to a sustained effort through being perfectly poised in carriage and absolutely comfortable.

A Nemo Corset is fundamentally a "better health" corset—and in its aids, which are like that of no other corset made, it achieves the silhouette of fashion.

Come to Gimbels to-morrow—let one of the expertly trained corsetieres fit you with the correct Nemo Corset from the twenty-six distinct styles—each of which has its remedial function toward better health and smarter appearance.

The Nemo Wonderlift Corset—
As much for the slender and medium full figures as for the stout, the Wonderlift Corset, with its Wonderlift bandlet, is an inestimable boon. It prevents the weakening of the abdominal muscles or holds fallen muscles in the healthful, natural position.

The Nemo Back-Resting Corset—
Many a nervous headache has been traced by physicians to the need of a suitable backrest which the average corset does not supply. The Nemo Back-Resting Corset gives the necessary bracing effect, while producing correct poise and better carriage $4

The Nemo Self-Reducing Corset—
This is a Nemo Corset most desirable for the stout figure. There is a model for every type of figure from the short stout to the very tall. The Nemo Relief bands or the Nemo Lastikops bandlets in the Self-Reducing models give the appearance of immediate reduction and gradually effect actual reduction .... $6 and $7

The Nemo Kop Service Corset—
Among which is a model particularly designed for those who need thigh and hip reduction. There is a model for the slender figure inclined to plumpness. There is a model of extreme flexibility for very slender figures. All have the Nemo bridge at the diaphragm permitting perfect freedom there .... $3 to $10

Mothers! Fathers!

Do You Want Your Children To Be "Just Ordinary" Men and Women?

Your children are two, three, or four of millions of children. Of course, "they are different" because they are your children. That is what we parents like to think about them. But let's face the facts.

Do you realize that only one child in a thousand ever grows to be more than "just ordinary?"

Do you realize that only one in 50,000 ever rises to pre-eminence in any particular vocation?

There are 20,000,000 children of all ages in the United States—about 1,000,000 more boys than girls. Of the total, 3,250,000 are 15 to 17 years old, which is a most important period in their lives.

Are you preparing your children to take their chances among these millions? Are you giving your boy or girl the educational advantages that are the means to success?

School training is not sufficient. Life's problems are not worked out through abstract theories, but through a broad knowledge plus the ability to think and reason and do. Give you children a chance to acquire practical information on subjects connected with real life.

What the Britannica Will Do for Your Boys and Girls

It will make school work easy, interesting and doubly profitable.
It will show them the connection between school work and real work, why it pays to learn lessons.
It will train them to use their minds, think accurately and reason keenly.
It will provide them with a teacher for any subject they wish to study.
It will show them the easiest and best way to do whatever they choose to do—the short cut. It will save them making the mistakes others have made.
It will give them ideas and initiative.
It will stimulate them with stories of what others have done.
It will cultivate their taste for reading the best books and make them dissatisfied with anything else. It will give them an interest in the world of nature.

Give them an opportunity to find out for themselves what they are ambitious to do. Remember a child's natural inclination is a big determining factor in a successful career.

Therefore, you should own the new Encyclopaedia Britannica for the good your children will derive from it. Nothing you may do for them will go so far to keep them out of the "just ordinary" class of men and women—because a Britannica training is insurance against ignorance. It means knowledge, which is the source of success in life.

Don't make the mistake of thinking that the Britannica isn't for children. It is—which is further proof of the many-sideness of this marvelous library of facts and information.

The Britannica is not "juvenile" literature, but it appeals to the interest and imagination of active-minded boys and girls. It not only gratifies their curiosity and answers their multitude of questions, but it stimulates and promotes an earnest desire for practical, usable knowledge.

It will help them with their school work—for it supplies the "human interest" that isn't found in dry-as-dust text-books; it supplements facts-to-be-memorized with a vast fund of equally important information which is never forgotten.

Thousands of parents have bought the Britannica primarily for the educational advantages it affords their children. Your children need it—and you owe it to them, because it is part of your duty to give your boys and girls every possible advantage.

But you must not delay—this is your last chance to own the Britannica printed on genuine India paper.

The Miracle of Milk
DRINKING YOUR WAY TO HEALTH

Did you know that MILK is the greatest unpatented medicine, a truly scientific cure-all, a legitimate panacea for the conquest of more diseases that can be genuinely accredited to any other healing agent known to man? These are strong statements, but milk is a strong fluid, a life-giving, strength-building food medicine for the ailing adult as well as the helpless babe.

The milk diet INTELLIGENTLY used, helps in the cure of anemia, constipation, indigestion, and all manner of diseases of the stomach, liver, kidneys, heart, bladder, etc. Many ills for which no reliable medical cures are known are being helped today by the right use of milk, the great food-medicine.

If you or any members of your family are among those 96% of the population that systematic examination shows to be other than in perfect health, then you owe it to yourself to get the MAY issue of PHYSICAL CULTURE Magazine and learn from the pen of one of the world's most experienced physicians in milk diet how to use milk. Read it by all means, and the many other interesting articles appearing in the MAY PHYSICAL CULTURE MAGAZINE, out today. 20 cents.

The Weakest Link

How aptly the epigram about a chain being as strong as its weakest link applies to the human body.

And there is one physical link that carries many times its share of strain and shock, and is consequently most likely to give way: That link is your feet.

To protect them from the eternal pound, pound, pound, of walking is only ordinary foresight. It is necessary that foot nerves be thus guarded for the sake of the whole nervous system. A felt and cork inner sole in Dr. A. Reed Cushion Shoes protects that weakest link.

MEXICO FLOUTS MONROE DOCTRINE

Will Not Recognize Any That "Attacks Her Sovereignty and Independence."

RECALLS MINISTER PANI

MEXICO CITY, April 23, (Associated Press.)—The non-recognition of the Monroe Doctrine by the Mexican Government and the recall from Paris of Alberto J. Pani, Minister to France, to await orders in Spain, formed the substance of two statements printed identically by all Mexico City papers tonight as having been given out officially by Salvador Diego Fernandez, Chief of Staff in charge of the Department of Foreign Relations. One statement reads:

"Since December last year, Alberto J. Pani has held credentials as Minister to France signed by the President of Mexico. Notwithstanding the fact that the French Government last November expressed its willingness to accept Señor Pani's nomination, he has been unable to present his credentials to the French Government throughout his long stay in Paris. In view of the above circumstances, President Carranza, through this department, has ordered that Señor Pani, together with the Legation Corps, proceed from France to Spain, there to await cabled instructions."

The other statement follows:

"The conference now meeting at Paris has considered the recognition of the Monroe Doctrine. Some Governments, friends of Mexico, have asked Mexico for its opinion regarding the Doctrine, and the Mexican Department of Foreign Relations has answered that the Mexican Government has not recognized and will not recognize the Monroe Doctrine or any other doctrine that attacks the sovereignty and independence of Mexico."

The recall from Paris of Minister Pani has been rumored unofficially for more than a week. There have also been reports that General Eduardo Hay, who has been nominated Mexican Minister to Italy, will also be recalled, although there is no official information relative to the latter report.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Failure of the Allied Powers to invite Mexico to participate in the conference of neutrals at Paris has aroused President Carranza to bitter resentment, which has been enhanced by the incorporation of recognition of the Monroe Doctrine in the covenant of the League of Nations without consultation with Mexico.

This was the explanation in well-informed quarters today of statements issued by the Mexican Foreign Office disavowing adherence to the Monroe Doctrine and announcing the withdrawal of the Mexican representative in France. It was indicated that the developments were not unexpected here, because Carranza had been awaiting an opportunity to get his agent away from Paris for the real reason that he had been unable to secure recognition from either the French or the British Government.

It was learned authoritatively that, so far from according recognition, the Allied Powers have made it clear to Mexico that the Carranza Government is looked upon with suspicion because of its treatment of foreign investors and its attitude toward foreign nationals.

The State Department late in the day announced it had received advices from Mexico City giving the text of the statements by the Mexican Foreign Office and published in Mexico City newspapers.

Officials recalled that on at least one occasion Mexico recognized the Monroe Doctrine. At the close of the civil war the United States applied the Monroe Doctrine in Mexico to the case of Emperor Maximilian at the behest of the Mexicans, and the friendship of the United States for Mexico had a large part in giving that country the moral strength to throw off the imperial yoke and execute the Emperor.

BUENOS AIRES, April 24.—The Mexican Minister to Argentina today delivered to the Argentine Foreign Office a telegram from the Mexican Foreign Minister regarding Mexico's attitude toward the League of Nations covenant. The telegram says that Mexico does not adhere to the Monroe Doctrine.

A FANTIN-LATOUR LEADS PICTURE SALE

"Summer Idyl" Brings $2,800 at Auction of Collection of Late Charles S. Smith.

There were returns of $36,580 for the eighty-four pictures, the first half of the collection of old and modern paintings belonging to the heirs of the late Charles Stewart Smith and other estates and private owners, sold under the auspices of the American Art Association at the Plaza Hotel last evening. The highest price of the evening was brought by Fantin-Latour's "Summer Idyl," three young women, including two bathers, on the shores of a lake, which went to C. W. Kraushaar for $2,800. Frito Thaulow's "Village in Brittany" went to J. Stevenson for $2,600. A "Landscape" by Cazin, houses in the background, with a man loading a cart in the centre of the foreground, went to J. Stevenson for $1,450, and "Rivière," a Ermenonville, by Corot, a grassy road between trees, went to Knoedler & Co. for $1,450. GUILT OF WAR TOLD IN OFFICIAL REPORT

Paris Temps Gives Text Showing 'Barbarities' for Which the 'Highest' Should Answer.

PARIS, April 24.—Le Temps publishes in detail the report of the Commission on Responsibility for the War. This report was presented some time ago, but the Council of Four has since taken action differing from the original draft.

The report as published contains four chapters. The first reviews the history of the origin of the war, and formally concludes that Germany and Austria-Hungary were responsible. The second presents thirty-two indictments for violations of the laws and customs of war, as formulated in international conventions, and concludes with the statement that the Central Empires, together with Turkey and Bulgaria, conducted the war by "barbarous and illegitimate methods."

The third chapter declares that all persons belonging to enemy countries, "however high their station," may be objects of judicial prosecution. The fourth demands the constitution of a high tribunal to judge crimes committed during the war, without, however, excluding competent tribunals of the different nations from acting in cases not coming under the jurisdiction of national courts.

The newspaper points out that the report of the commission places violation of the rules of war in the category of ordinary crimes, and, therefore, it is possible to bring former Emperor William to trial, as he has twice been charged with complicity in war crimes. Such a trial would have no effect on a trial on charges of having committed political crimes.

The report of the commission is summarized as declaring the necessity and the possibility of trying and punishing the authors of war crimes, and even the former Emperor for complicity in them.

$1 a Week Buys a Victory Note!

ANY ONE can afford that. Many of us waste more every week.

These wasted dimes and quarters, saved for the purchase of a Victory Note, will pay for it almost before you know it—and you have something worth-while to show for your money. But more important still, buying your limit of Victory Notes shows you to be the kind of American that the country needs to-day.

Here Is the Plan:

$50 Victory Note
$2 Down, $1 a Week

Go to any Bank or Trust Company in Greater New York, to any Victory Loan Booth, authorized Victory Loan agency, salesman or saleswoman, pay $2 down on a $50 Victory Note, and you will be given a vest-pocket-size Victory Coupon Book in which to attach your receipts.

Weekly Payments

Your $1 weekly payments may be made at any Bank or Trust Company in New York City. For each payment made you will be given a receipt in the form of a stamp. These stamps (or receipts) must be attached to the pages of your Victory Coupon Book.

Delivery of Victory Note

After completion of all payments, and upon surrender of your Victory Book with all receipts attached, any Bank or Trust Company in the Metropolitan area will exchange it for a $50 Victory Note.

$100 Victory Note
$4 Down, $2 a Week

$500 Victory Note
$20 Down, $10 a Week

Any Bank or Trust Company, Victory Loan Booth, Victory Loan Agency, Salesman or Saleswoman will be glad to furnish further information.

Diamond
SQUEEGEE TREAD
Tires
Mark those 3
Continuous Bars
on the Tread

How quickly a railroad coach would pound to pieces if it had to jump three inches from one rail to the next. Skips or gaps in the rolling surface of tires are equally disastrous.

Those three continuous ribs on the Diamond Squeegee Tread give as smooth a rolling surface as though it was a smooth tread tire. "More-Mileage Ribs" we call them, for they put more rubber right where the wear comes.

Yet that scientifically designed Diamond Squeegee Tread halts forward and side skids. It adds mileage—you'll run a Diamond thousands of miles before you wear down those Squeegee-Ribs. Cut your tire upkeep with a Diamond.

NEW FACTORS IN PRESIDENTIAL VOTE

Washington Leaders Believe Women and Soldiers Will Swing Next Election.

PROGRESSIVES FOR WOOD

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Political gossip on the coming Presidential contest is now centering around the recent statement issued by Gifford Pinchot, as a representative of the Republican Progressive element, emphasizing that General Leonard Wood would meet with the approval of the Progressive element as he fully represented the policies and views of Colonel Roosevelt.

Discussion, stimulated by this statement, and the coming convention of the American legion in St. Louis, according to the well-wishers of General Wood, has spread the Wood boom wonderfully and made him one of the leading figures in view for the Republican nomination.

General Pershing's name has not been mentioned with any persistency, but Washington is expecting Frank M. Hitchcock to return from Europe soon and launch a Pershing boom.

In the next Presidential election there will be several new elements. There will be fully 12,500,000 women representing twenty-six States, who will be entitled to cast their ballots, and in eleven of these States women can vote for President for the first time. It is estimated that fully 2,500,000 returned soldiers will vote in the 1920 election.

In the opinion of old-time political leaders, the bulk of this vote will be cast under the stimulus of an organized effort directed by the women and the soldier organizations.

So far, with President Wilson out of the country, aspirants for the Democratic nomination have not appeared with any such degree of seriousness as in the Republican ranks. Ex-Speaker Clark recently announced that he was willing to be a candidate, and only last week a report came from Ohio that friends of Secretary of War Baker are seeking some of the delegates from Ohio, where Governor Cox has begun a determined fight for the Democratic delegates.

An active cancass is now under way in Pennsylvania and Maryland for Attorney General Palmer. His native State, Pennsylvania, undoubtedly will send its seventy-eight delegates to the convention pledged to Mr. Palmer.

Senator Harding's boom for the Republican nomination, started because of geographical considerations and the recognized prestige Ohio has always had in national elections, has not gained much headway.

The belief among politicians here is that neither former President Taft nor Mr. Hughes will figure as serious candidates in the Republican Convention and that the Republicans seem to be as much at sea for a strong standard-bearer as the Democrats.

Senator Knok of Pennsylvania has been mentioned, and he was not on the proscribed list put forth by Gifford Pinchot. Reports coming here are that Mr. Knox would not be objectionable to the Progressive element.

CHAMBERLAIN ON STAND.

American Army Flier Insists He Brought Down German Planes.

PARIS, April 24.—Captain Edmund G. Chamberlain of San Antonio, Texas, took the stand in his own defense today at his trial by an American naval court-martial for alleged falsification of reported aerial exploits on the British front last Summer.

Captain Chamberlain testified that he stood by the original story he told on his return from the unofficial flight he made on July 28. He declared he was certain that he had brought down two German machines but was not certain about two others.

Favors Private Wire Service.

The earliest return to the owners of the telephone, telegraph, and cable lines now under Federal control is favored by the Queens Chamber of Commerce. The Board of Directors have adopted the report of a special committee consisting of Charles G. Meyer and Ray Palmer, who were appointed Feb. 3 to study this subject. The resolution has been sent to the United States Chamber of Commerce, the two United States Senators from New York, and Congressment Charles Pope Caldwell and Frederick S. Hicks, Representatives from Queens Borough.

THE first issue of Ingenieria Internacional was published April 15, and contains 232 pages.

Now comes Ingeniería Internacional, to do for Industry in All Spanish Speaking Lands What the Other Nine McGraw-Hill Engineering Publications, Have Done for American Business at Home

THIS week in Chicago there is being held a business conference that vitally affects the interest of every man in America. It is the Sixth National Foreign Trade Convention, called by the National Foreign Trade Council.

Foreign trade is no longer a mere department of American industry; it is a vital necessity for the future of our industry.

The McGraw-Hill Company, Inc., has recognized this fact. The resources of the organization, and of its nine engineering publications, have been put behind a tenth publication—Ingenieria Internacional (International Engineering) published in Spanish, and designed to promote the best American engineering practice in Central and South America, Cuba, Porto Rico, the Philippines and Spain, as the other nine publications have served American industry at home.

Fifty Years of Serving the Great Engineering Industries

Before a nation can have great buying power it must first have industries. Before it can have industries it must first have engineers. The engineering industries are the great service industries, the pioneers, on whose broad foundations all subsequent development is laid.

For more than half a century—since the establishment of the first McGraw-Hill publication in 1866—the powerful publications that have been developed under this ideal of service have been ministering to the five fields of engineering industry.

Last year American manufacturers testified to their faith in these nine publications by placing in them 55,000 pages of advertising.

The World-Wide Circulation of the McGraw-Hill Publications

The problem of foreign markets is not a new one to the McGraw-Hill organization. It has its own large foreign market. More than 16,500 copies of its publications circulate outside the United States, reaching literally into every corner of the world.

No effort has been made to recruit these readers. They have voluntarily paid from $7 to $9 for one of these publications, because it was vital to them in their enterprises.

In answer to a similar demand the English edition of the American Machinist published in London, was established.

Ingenieria Internacional represents merely an extension of this service to 15,000 Spanish-speaking and reading engineers and their associates.

These men for whom Ingenieria Internacional is designed are the pioneers of industry in the Spanish speaking countries, men of the Herbert Hoover and John Hays Hammond type; and their co-workers. On the plans and foundations of this type of man the future development of their respective countries will largely be laid.

Let McGraw-Hill Service Help You

To the National Foreign Trade Council and to all American manufacturers who are interested in foreign markets, the McGraw-Hill Company, Inc., offers the service, not merely of Ingenieria Internacional, but of its whole organization.

If your product lies within the scope of these publications the Company has the information you want or knows where it may be obtained. It stands ready to help you or your advertising agency, in analyzing your market, laying out your campaign, and preparing your advertising copy. A letter addressed to the McGraw-Hill Company, Inc., which is on Tenth Avenue at Thirty-sixth Street, New York; or to any branch office, will put this service entirely at your command.

GOLDEN RULE IS KEY TO LABOR, SAYS KAHN

Banker in Pittsburgh Address Takes Up Workers' Problems Brought by War.

DAWN OF NEW CONDITIONS

He Favors Share of Industrial Control by Labor, Better Housing, Fair Play for Capital, Too.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., April 24.—Otto H. Kahn was the principal speaker at a celebration of Founders' Day at the Carnegie Institute here today. His subject was "The Morning After," by which the banker said he meant both the promising and problematic conditions arising from the war. He declared the principle on which to deal with the labor question was "very simple"—it was the principle of the Golden Rule.

"I think the formula should be," said Mr. Kahn, "that, first of all, labor is entitled to a living wage. After that, capital is entitled to a living wage. What is left over belongs to both capital and labor, in such proportion as fairness and equity and reason shall determine in all cases.

"The application of that formula is, of course, complex and difficult, because not unfrequently the laborer and capitalist overlap and merge into one. You have skilled labor and unskilled labor and casual labor; you have the small employer, the large individual employer, the corporate employer, the inventor, the prospector.

"It is impossible to measure by the same yardstick everywhere, but the principle of fairness can be stated, the desire can be stated to do everything possible to bring about good feeling and good understanding between labor and capital. It seems to me that, in the main, right-thinking men of capital and of labor would concur in the points I am about to mention.

"The workman is neither a machine nor a commodity. He is a partner with capital. He must be given a full voice in determining the conditions under which he works, either through organization in each factory or other unit, or through labor unions, or through both. The workman would come to realize that capitalists are not, perhaps, quite as wise and deep as they are given credit for, but, on the other hand, a good deal less grasping and selfish than they are frequently believed to be, a good deal more decent and well meaning, and made of the same human stuff as the worker, without the addition of either horns or claws or hoofs.

"The worker's living conditions must be made dignified and attractive to himself and his family. Nothing is of greater importance. To provide proper homes for the workers is one of the most urgent and elementary duties of the employer, or, if he has not the necessary means, then of the State."

"It is utterly inadmissible that, because industry slackens, or illness or old age befalls a worker, he and his family should therefore be condemned to suffering or to the dread of suffering. Those unable to work must be honorably protected. The only ones on whom a civilized community has a right to turn its back are those unwilling to work.

"The worker must receive a wage which not only permits him to keep body and soul together, but to lay something by for a rainy day to take care of his wife and children, and to have his due share of the comforts, joys, and recreations of life.

"Labor, on the other hand, must realize that high wages can only be maintained if high production is maintained, and the primary cause of poverty is under-production. It must not give credence, for instance, to the absurd preachment that practically all wealth other than that produced by the farmer is the produce of the exertions of the working men. There are other factors that enter into the creation of wealth.

"The 'directive faculty,' the quality of leadership in thought and action, is not only one absolutely needful in all organized undertakings great or small, but it becomes increasingly rare and consequently increasingly more valuable as the object to which it addresses itself increases in size, complexity, and difficulty.

"Let us take as an example the case of Mr. Henry Ford. Through the organizing genius and enterprise of a self-made man, not by monopoly but in keen competition with other manufacturers, the automobile, instead of being a luxury of the few has been brought within the reach of those of modest means.

"New wealth has been created, at the expense of no one. It cannot be said that it was created by the workingman, except in the physical sense. By far the largest percentage of this new wealth goes to pay the wages of workingmen and other expenses of the business, but out of what is left Mr. Ford's share is, by common report, in excess of $1,000,000 a year.

"Did Mr. Ford earn $1,000,000 in one year? If not, how much did he earn? By what scale would you measure the proportion due to him of the new wealth created mainly by his faculties? Is there any instance where communistic or even merely co-operative undertakings have produced similar results? Is there any instance where governmental management has produced similar results?

"The way to progress is not to pull everybody down to a common level of mediocrity, which means ultimately a common level of wretchedness, but to help everybody up. It is not material success which must be abolished; it is poverty and justified discontent which must be abolished. It is not by the spoliation of some, but by creating larger assets and broader opportunity for all, that national well-being can and must be enhanced."

VISIT OF THE FLEET HERE NEARING CLOSE

GETTING MANY RECRUITS

Lord Reading's Reception on Flagship Postponed Owing to Weather —Today's Entertainment Program.

The stay of the Atlantic Fleet in New York waters is drawing to an end and only a few more days remain during which visitors will have an opportunity of going on board the dreadnoughts and destroyers of Admiral Mayo's command. Despite the unfavorable weather conditions, a large crowd visited the ships yesterday afternoon, and arrangements are being made to handle on Sunday an even greater throng than the one that swarmed over the vessels last Sunday afternoon.

Lord Reading, the British Ambassador, was to have been a guest of the fleet yesterday, but owing to the weather the visit was postponed to a later date, probably next Monday. Lord Reading will be received and entertained on the flagship Pennsylvania and will be taken on a tour of inspection of the newer dreadnoughts and destroyers. He probably will be accompanied by Captain Snagge, the British Naval Attaché in Washington.

The recruiting campaign to bring the fleet personnel to war strength is proceeding satisfactorily, and already more than 1,000 young men have indicated their intention to do a tour of service in the fleet. A large number have already enlisted. The recruiting rallies will continue every day until the fleet leaves for its annual Spring manoeuvres in Southern waters.

The program arranged for today by the seven war welfare organizations for the entertainment of the bluejackets and marines is as follows:

Sightseeing by W. C. C. S., Y. M. C. A., K. of C., and S. A. Buses will leave Forty-sixth Street and Broadway at 9 A. M.; Ninety-seventh Street landing at 10 A. M., 1 P. M., and 2:45 P. M.; 55 West Twenty-seventh Street twice during the day; 50 East Forty-first Street at 10:30 A. M.; Forty-second Street and Sixth Avenue at 2:30 P. M.
Theatre tickets for matinee and evening performances will be distributed by the W. C. C. S. from the booth near Forty-second Street and Fifth Avenue.
Luncheon and entertainment by the J. W. B., 80 Park Avenue, at noon.
Afternoon tea by Y. W. C. A., Headquarters Hostess House, 30 East Fifty-second Street, 4 to 5:30 P. M.
Dinner and entertainment by the J. W. B., Ninety-second Street and Lexington Avenue and 89 Park Avenue, 6 P. M.
Dinner by the K. of C., 54 East Thirty-eighth Street, 11:30 A. M. to 2 P. M. and 15 East Thirtieth Street from 5:30 to 9 P. M.
Dinner by the W. C. C. S., 55 West Twenty-seventh Street, 6 P. M.
Convalescents' dinner by W. C. C. S., Pershing House, 115 East Twenty-first Street, 5:30 P. M.
Dinner dance by the J. W. B., Essex and Canal Streets, 8 P. M.
Convalescents' dance, W. C. C. S., National Arts Club, 15 Gramercy Park, 7 P. M.
Dance and refreshments by K. of C., 157th Street and Broadway, 8 to 11 P. M.
Dance by the K. of C., 367 West 123d Street and 126th Street and Fifth Avenue at 8 P. M.

The destroyers which have been selected to act as patrols and guides for the naval transatlantic seaplane flights will probably be announced within a few days. It is expected that the vessels selected will all be of the new and recently commissioned flush-deck types.

There isn't enough space to tell you here about the twenty exclusive features that make the "Royal" Typewriter choice of big business everywhere. But we can mention a few to show why a "Royal" demonstration is worth while.

Take, for instance, the "Royal" accelerating typebar. It's the fastest, strongest ever invented—flashes to the printing point with cumulative speed—requires less energy per tap, means more work per day.

The "Royal" personal touch adjuster enables your typist to tune the tension of the entire keyboard to her liking in just the twinkling of an eye. She can best tell what that means to her.

Inbuilt card devices make possible the neatest, most exact typing on a card or label of postage stamp size. And "Royal" perfect letterpress work gives a uniquely clear-cut beauty of type impression—tells you why we say "compare the work."

Better phone for a "Royal" demonstration and find out about the other features—you will see why the "Royal" is the logical choice.

CENSOR WILL PASS ON POLICE ORDERS

WALLSTEIN IN NEW ATTACK

Says Enright Seeks to Promote Two Officials of the Lieutenants' Benevolent Association.

The publication of Chief Inspector John Daly's recent confidential warning to his staff, concerning preparedness for an investigation by the Bureau of Municipal Research, which the bureau later said had not been planned, had its aftermath yesterday when Third Deputy Commissioner A. D. Porter was appointed a sort of editor and censor of all orders, rules, or regulations that originate at Police Headquarters.

The appointment of Mr. Porter to his new duties was not announced officially, and headquarters yesterday appeared to know little about the new job. It was learned, however, that the establishment of the visé system on orders was not the only innovation of the day.

From now on, it was said, there would be a conference every Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Special Deputy Commissioner Harriss's office. This conference will be attended by all Deputy Commissioners, the special Deputies, and Commissioner Enright. No statement was made as to the object of the conference, but it was said that general police affairs would be the chief topic.

Leonard M. Wallstein, counsel to the City Government Committee of the Citizens Union, made the charge yesterday that the reason Commissioner Enright requested the Board of Estimate to provide for the appointment of nine new Captains in the department was his desire to promote two Lieutenants who are officials of the Police Lieutenants' Benevolent Association, of which Commissioner Enright for many years was President. These Lieutenants, he said, were Charles A. Zanes, Recording Secretary, and William T. Davis, Treasurer, of the association.

Lieutenant Zanes is sixth and Lieutenant Davis ninth on the eligible civil service list promulgated on May 1, 1915. This list expires on April 30. Mr. Wallstein contended that with the expiration of the civil service list next week it would be impossible for either Zanes or Davis to be promoted, and in order to bring about their promotion Commissioner Enright had asked for the power to appoint nine new Captains.

The Committee on Finance and Budget of the Board of Estimate has approved the Commissioner's request and the matter is on the board's calendar for action today.

HOPE TO PREVENT STRIKE.

Railway Men and Longshoremen Say Differences May Be Settled.

Officials of the Railroad Administration expressed the belief yesterday that the threatened strike of longshoremen would be adjusted today at a conference between Paul A. Vacarelli, head of the Longshoremen's Union and W. P. Harden, Assistant Regional Director. Freight Handler's Union 796, International Longshoremen's Association, voted on Wednesday night to declare a general strike to secure the reinstatement of 150 New York Central employes who refused to work at night.

"We have hopes of adjusting the difficulty," said Vacarelli last night, after he had been notified that if the 250 freight handlers on Piers 34 and 35, North River, so wished, they could return to work on the basis of an eight-hour day, commencing at 8 o'clock in the morning. The United States Railroad Administration issued this statement last night:

> The statements of certain labor leaders regarding the alleged grievances which threaten to precipitate a strike of freight handlers on the railroads serving New York Harbor are not in accordance with the facts, and their publication tends only to mislead the public and workingmen affected.
> No question of the eight-hour day is involved, because they all are enjoying the eight-hour day in accordance with their agreement with the Railroad Administration and the order issued by the Director General based thereon last February. The settlement with the men provided that they should have the eight-hour day, should receive extra pro rata pay if they worked two hours extra, and if an emergency should compel and they were willing to work beyond ten hours they should receive time and a half for such services.
> Since that time the men have seldom worked more than eight hours and for them to work over ten hours is practically unknown. The Railroad Administration merely insists that they abide by this agreement. Such men as have left work have gone because they refused to obey the instructions issued in accordance with this agreement and the managers of the various railroads were compelled to fill their positions with competent applicants.
> The question precipitated now by the union leaders is with regard to the working of the forces in the so-called scattered shifts. Adequate freight service is vital to New York and the railroads are striving earnestly to supply it.

KLAW AND ERLANGER SILENT

Refuse to Discuss the Rumor They Are to Sever Partnership.

Marc Klaw and A. L. Erlanger, the dissolution of whose partnership in theatrical booking and producing has been expected for nearly a year, yesterday maintained their traditional policy of silence when asked about a revival of the rumor that the present season will be their last together. The two men have not spoken since Mr. Erlanger discharged Mr. Klaw's son, more than a year ago, from his place in the K. and E. office, and since then the quarrel between the two has become so bitter that a formal statement of their parting has been expected for months. They have been partners for thirty years.

Mr. Erlanger is already engaged in several theatrical enterprises in which Mr. Klaw does not figure, and the latter is known to be planning to become an independent producer. Mr. Erlanger has affiliated himself with Charles B. Dillingham and Florenz Ziegfeld in the operation of a Boston theatre and in the production of a musical comedy in which Raymond Hitchcock appeared. As their various theatre leases throughout the country expire, they are being renewed by the men as individuals, not as partners.

Mr. Erlanger has made Mr. Klaw an offer for his interests in the firm, and it is said that this will probably be accepted before the coming of another theatrical season. In this event Mr. Erlanger, who has been the most active of the partners in recent years, will carry on the booking business, and Mr. Klaw will become a producer.

The centralization of the booking of plays in the offices of the two theatrical syndicates—Klaw and Erlanger and the Shuberts—and the difficulties which this arrangement makes for the other producers, were said to have been among the reasons for the organization on Wednesday night of the Producing Managers' Association. This meeting, held at the Hotel Claridge, was attended by representatives of nearly all the large producers except the Shuberts and Klaw and Erlanger. Sam H. Harris, of Cohan and Harris, was elected President. Another meeting will be held next Tuesday afternoon, and the aims and objects of the association will then be outlined.

Daylight Saving in Theatre Time.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Theatregoing in Washington has been more or less affected by the daylight saving law. Darkness does not come until long after the advertised time of opening. In consequence of this fact, Adolph Klauber, whose new farce, "Nightie Night," is playing here at the Shubert-Garrick, started a new movement yesterday by advertising the opening time as 8:45 instead of 8:15. The result was a crowded house tonight.

Pianist and 'Cellist Give Recital.

A sonata recital by Olga Samaroff, pianist, and Hans Kindler, 'cellist, was given last evening at Aeolian Hall. Three names filled the program: Brahms, Bach, and Saint Saëns. The first was a sonata for piano and cello in E minor, Opus 38, and the last a sonata for the same instruments in C minor, Opus 32. The Bach number was a suite in C major for the 'cello alone, played by Mr. Kindler. The audience was small, but enthusiastic in its reception of the musicians.

GOV. SMITH ORDERS BOLSHEVIST INQUIRY

ENVOY MARTENS A SPEAKER

At the request of Governor Alfred E. Smith, the Police Department and the District Attorney's office in Brooklyn have been making an investigation as to whether the law prohibiting seditious statements was violated at a meeting of Bolsheviki at Brownsville Labor Lyceum on April 11. District Attorney Harry E. Lewis would not tell yesterday what the results of his inquiries had been. He asserted that he would make his report to the Governor and if the facts warranted it he would begin proceedings in a Magistrate's Court.

In a letter which he wrote to Mr. Lewis and to Police Commissioner Enright Governor Smith said he had been informed that speakers at the meeting had indulged in very radical language, and asked both the District Attorney and the Police Commissioner to let him know if any of the statements were seditious or advocated the overthrow of our Government.

The meeting mentioned in the Governor's letter was a welcome by the Bolsheviki of Brooklyn to Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, the recently arrived Russian Soviet "Consul" in the United States. Martens spoke in Russian and English. James Larkin, the labor agitator, advocated a general strike in sympathy with Eugene V. Debs, who was recently sent to prison. The band played the "Marseillaise" and the "Internationale," and three cheers "for the Bolshevists of America" were called for and given.

The Governor has been informed that at the meeting copies of The Rebel Worker, an I. W. W. publication, bearing the caption "Revolution" in large letters across the front page were on sale. The Class Struggle, a magazine devoted to international Socialism, was also sold. Eugene V. Debs is one of the editors of this magazine and extracts from an article written by him were read by the chairman of the meeting. One sentence written by Debs, which was loudly cheered by the audience, was: "From the crown of my head to the soles of my feet I am Bolshevik and proud of it." Albert Rhys Williams and other lesser known speakers also addressed the meeting.

Bodanzky Will Lead New Orchestra.

The New Symphony Orchestra's recent invitation to Artur Bodanzky of the Metropolitan, as announced in THE TIMES, has now been accepted with the consent of Mr. Gatti-Casazza, the opera impresario. Mr. Bodanzky is to lead his first concert with the new society on Thursday evening, May 1, in Carnegie Hall, repeating the same program on Friday afternoon.

He will conduct Brahms's first symphony, two works of French composers, including the "Benvenuto Cellini" of Berlioz and the Debussy "Faun," with Mendelssohn's nocturne and scherzo from "Midsummer Night's Dream," and the "Tannhauser" overture of Wagner.

Princeton Play at Waldorf May 10.

The Princeton Triangle Club, which has been inactive during the two years of the war, will present "The Hon. Julius Caesar" at the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria on Saturday night, May 10. The play was written by Booth Tarkington for the first production of the club, in 1893, and has now been made into a musical comedy. Erdman Harris has written the music.

Father Duffy to Tell the Story of the 69th!

And who could tell this story in the way Father Duffy can! And where is there a more thrilling story to be told than that of the Fighting Irish regiment that went over the top in defence of God given Liberty? Well, come to Carnegie Hall next Tuesday night (April 29), and if you can get inside you will have it to say that you were present at the first public appearance of the famous Chaplain of a world-famed regiment.

The foundlings have an enviable place in the heart of the Chaplain of the 69th, which prompts him to give them the benefit of his first public appearance on a platform. The lecture is under the auspices of Archbishop Hayes and the Campaign Committee of the New York Foundling Hospital. United States Senator David I. Walsh will preside.

Seats on sale Saturday at Carnegie Hall box office and at all of the McBride Theatre Ticket Offices at box office rates. Lecture begins at 8:30 P. M.

Russia Calf - The Energetic Shoe

THE suggestion of vigorous activity in the alert, up-to-the-minute lines of these new Russia Calf Spring Oxfords, in tan and black appeals especially to the man or woman of active habits and wide-awake discrimination.

Slightly heavier than the dressy Australian Kangaroo, they partake of its distinctive Custom-Made appearance, while suggesting through virile line and rich, Fashion-ful finish the energy and keen perception of Youth.

For the particular taste there is promise of especial satisfaction in these new Russia Calf models. These models duplicated also in other leathers, including the popular Kangaroo.

ITALY'S PROFIT AND LOSS.

It is the entire Adriatic question, not Fiume alone, which is now before the world. The Italians cannot fall back on the Treaty of London as a sacrosanct minimum, for they themselves were the first to propose to break it by violating the clause which left Fiume to the Jugoslavs. The theory that we must have all of our treaty rights, and anything else that we want though it was left out of the treaty, is not sound, either in law or in ethics. And it is the entire Adriatic question which the President lays before the world in his statement.

"On the north and northeast," he says, "Italy's natural frontiers are "completely restored, along the whole "sweep of the Alps from northwest "to southeast to the very end of the "Istrian peninsula, including all the "great watershed within which "Trieste and Pola lie." Apparently this is the boundary which seems just to Mr. Wilson. What would Italy gain by a settlement on this basis, and what would she lose? Assuming that his words mean that he would favor a frontier running across Istria, ending either along the River Arsa or on Monte Maggiore, it appears that this would give Italy Gorizia-Gradiska, Trieste, and the larger part of Istria. About a quarter of a million Jugoslavs would be included within this boundary; the Italians left outside of it, in Eastern Istria, Fiume, and Dalmatia, would not reach a third of that number. And Mr. Wilson speaks of "adequate guarantees" for the cultural rights of this minority, of a sort which apparently Italy is not to be asked to give to the Jugoslavs whom she would annex. In the matter of race, then, such a boundary would be favorable to Italy.

The strategic argument which has played so great a part in discussions of the Treaty of London was based on the need of protecting Italy from Austria-Hungary, or from a possible eventual extension of Russian influence to the Adriatic. Austria and Russia as imperialistic States are dead. Italy could hardly need strategic guarantees against the Jugoslav State, with only one-third of her population and a small fraction of her wealth; and the President speaks of requiring a limitation of armament, which undoubtedly means that the Jugoslavs will agree to maintain no fleet except a few small revenue and police boats. Since Italy will be asked to place no such restriction on the size or distribution of her navy, her Adriatic coasts will be wholly safe. Moreover, a friendly policy toward Jugoslavia will open the way for Italian engineers and Italian business men in the economic upbuilding of this rich but undeveloped country. Italy's geographical position will give her an enormous advantage over all competitors, if her people choose to be on good terms with the Jugoslavs.

If Italy chooses to do what one of Mr. Orlando's aids said yesterday she was about to do—to proclaim the formal annexation of the territories assigned to her by the Treaty of London, as well as Fiume, and quite possibly some of the territory further down the Adriatic now occupied by her troops—she will complete the unity of the Italian race; there will be no fraction left in Jugoslav territory. But along with the Italians thus recovered she will annex something like 550,000 Slavs in Gorizia-Gradiska, Trieste, Istria, and the southwestern corner of Carniola; four or five hundred thousand in Dalmatia, depending on how much territory she chooses to take, and almost a hundred thousand in the coastal territory about Fiume. She will have added a million aliens by force; and whether the Jugoslavs resist or not, those who are so annexed will never be satisfied.

The Treaty of London, incidentally, provides for the annexation by Italy of the Dodecanesus, the Aegean islands occupied since 1912 and inhabited by more than 100,000 Greeks. Sonnino and Orlando can doubtless annex and hold these territories, if they choose. They will do it at the price of the bitter enmity of Jugoslavia and Greece, enmity which may be latent but which cannot die out; at the price of adding a million unwilling subjects who, if annexed in this way, may be as troublesome to Italy as the Italian Irredentists were to Austria; at the price of losing to other nations the exceptional commercial field in Jugoslavia and the Balkans which nature has given to Italy, but which depends on a certain amount of good feeling between the peoples. It will mean the maintenance of strong garrisons east of the Adriatic, hence no lightening of the military and naval expenses of the Italian people; hostility to Italian commercial expansion on the part of the Balkan nations, and the loss to Italy of a very large share of friendly opinion in the world outside, which gladly credits her with the principal share in the destruction of the oppressive Hapsburg monarchy, but did not expect her to put herself in the place of Austria as the opponent of small peoples asking the right to live.

ANOTHER INVASION OF THE PARK.

How long will it take some of our eminent citizens to find out what a park is for? Here is the American Institute of Safety crying for a permit to install permanently in the Arsenal Building in Central Park the exhibition of appliances to prevent accidents in industrial pursuits. The Secretary of the Institute, Mr. William J. Moran, delightfully illustrates in his application for a permit the absolutely topsy-turvy notion of the proper objects of the Park which even so many intelligent men seem to be unable to get out of their heads. "The cultivation of the idea of safety," he writes, "is as essential as the cultivation of grasses, shrubs, and flowers." Very well; but a park is not the place for the cultivation of safety. The cultivation of tanning, of glass-making, of the manufacture of steel and iron, is as essential as the cultivation of grasses and shrubs and flowers, but the Central Park is not the place for those useful cultivations.

"A great park playground," says Mr. Moran, "is not invaded if a small "percentage of its area is set aside to "the promotion of the safety of the "people." A great park playground is invaded when any percentage of its area is devoted to a purpose entirely inconsonant with the proper functions and use of a park. A park is a breathing spot and pleasure ground of the people. It is a bit of country in the city. It brings to the city dweller something of the green delight and woodland loveliness of the country, lawns and flowers and trees and lakes, rocks and water and quiet nooks, and "breathless glades cheered by shy Dian's horn." The park is a little rural interspace, a refuge from the eternal urban. It is not a place for the exhibition of safety appliances, or airbrakes, or automatic couplers. Governor Smith knows what the insertion of the American Institute of Safety in the Arsenal Building "means to the people themselves." It means something very different from what the Governor supposes. It means the first step, the fatal step, in the perversion of the Park, in the monopolization of the people's playground by all sorts of sideshows and exhibits, the diminution of the people's pleasure, the ultimate ruin of the Park.

A New York Institute of Safety for Central Park, insuring it against the unending procession of attempts to spoil it, is greatly needed.

"THE WORLD'S STEEL CENTRE."

The payment of five millions cash for a single building is interesting in itself, but is important rather for the reasons of the purchase than for the price. One reason is local, the other international. If it were not for the dual subway, the building's site would not have its value. In Judge Gary's words, "the recent very great im"provement and concentration of "transit facilities in this hub of the "financial district" influenced him in the purchase of the Empire Building for the Steel Corporation. Wall Street is one of the three districts which are served by all branches of the rapid transit system. Until it is displaced by air transit, or something undreamed of yet, the subways will control all realty values dependent upon quick and cheap transit. The shopping district of Fifth Avenue below the Park and the residential district on "the Avenue" above the Park are independent of nickels and minutes. Cheap transit is detrimental to high-class residential values. Subway riders are on business errands, for the most part, and go only where they make business. It is important to property owners to appreciate that never again will there be talk of moving the financial district or danger of ruining residential or shopping centres in the manner which has cost the city hundreds of millions of loss in tax values, and similar sacrifice to property owners. The city's horse transit era was its infantile age. Its adolescence was the cable and early electric stage of transit development. The subway expenditure of a million dollars for every day in a year provided the bony structure of maturity. Until other hundreds of millions can be found to finance any further innovation now beyond the imagination the city will develop along the map as it is. There remain adjustments to be made, for the strategic effect of transit facilities is slowly appreciated, but these adjustments will be mostly for personal reasons, and will not repeat recent destructive experiences.

Even more important is the declaration of Mr. Kelsey, President of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, that the purchase was made for reasons which it was more becoming for him to state than for the spokesmen of the Steel Corporation. Judge Gary uses big ideas rather than big words, and he would hardly say that he bought the office building because it is the centre of the "permanent steel "centre of the world, for the seat "of any great industry is the place "from which it is financed." Pittsburgh overmatches Birmingham, and must be content. New York is more to Pittsburgh than London is to Birmingham, for New York will control world finance and industry on a scale surpassing London of the past. As yet it is only possible to say that London does not now control either the gold or steel markets. The condition of sterling exchange sufficiently shows that London is debtor beyond any possibility of correcting the exchanges, that is of balancing them, by gold payments. That she cannot balance them by goods payments is apparent from the prices on the day when Mr. Kelsey made his statement that New York is the centre of the steel industry. Prices of plates, according to this week's Iron Age, are $79.22 in England and $59.36 here. Bars are $88.54 and $52.64. Rails are $69.90 and $45. British pig iron is to be advanced $10.50 May 1. The prospect of England producing more cheaply depends upon the prospect of cheaper labor and coal. That is unlikely either here or there, but the chances favor us rather than England. England is still mistress of the seas, but with the difference that she has more ships than goods. We still have more goods than ships, but soon we shall be overprovided with ships unless we fill them with goods for export.

We have long been competent producers of steel in an industrial sense, but not before have we been competent in a financial sense. Now for the first time we have both the gold and goods, and soon will have ships. Our English friends will defend their primacy sturdily and will play their trumps more skillfully. We are sure to be hampered by our lawmakers, already busy with plans for exclusive tariffs and precautions against "dumping," when we have become the world's low-cost producers and need to receive whatever our present debtors and future buyers can deliver in payment for their bargains. An eagle eye must be kept on those seeking to throttle down our industrial machine.

THE SEVENTY-SEVENTH'S WELCOME.

The van of the 77th Division arrived at this port yesterday, and in a few days every unit will be here, with a strength of 31,000 officers and men, New York's Own, representative of every part of the great metropolis and drawn from all classes of the cosmopolitan community. General James Franklin Bell, a Kentuckian and a West Pointer, said that this division, which he trained at Camp Upton, was the finest body of men he ever commanded, and he predicted that it would do big things in France. As General Bell, who should have lived to see his boys return, was no coiner of compliments, but an honest and loyal soldier, New York bade its National Army division good-bye with a feeling that it could not fail to justify his outspoken faith in it.

What a record they have made, these city men from the shops, the factories, the department stores, the office buildings, the trades and professions—the most thoroughly democratic division that sailed for the battlefields of France! Rich, industrial, commercial New York has always made a name for valor and sacrifice in war, and in the greatest of all wars its Metropolitan or Liberty Division has won imperishable renown; no troops have fought better and died more bravely, and if the past can match it it cannot surpass their achievements.

Search the records of the civil war and you will find nothing finer than the indomitable spirit of the "Lost Battalion," no more gallant and desperate fighting than marked the thrust of the 77th through the Argonne Forest, with a machine gun behind every tree and rise of land and a tenacious enemy thick in front, disputing every foot of the advance and resolute to stop and throw back the audacious Americans. Hero is a word too lightly used, but if these soldiers of New York who forced the Argonne Forest do not deserve the title, then fighting men never deserved to wear it in the story of warfare.

If New York is not proud of them and does not delight to honor them, it must have a short memory indeed, or little realizes its debt to the 77th. But that is not like New York. There is no more generous and grateful community. The sight of the insignia of the Statue of Liberty on the uniform coats of these hardy, youthful soldiers will have a thrill to bring moisture to the eye and a cheer to the throat. No one can be insensible to the experience of welcoming home the survivors of the National Army division that acquitted itself so well in France that to be one of them will always be a distinction and a claim on the good-will and sympathy of the people of New York.

These veterans who will soon be seen about the streets and will march in one of the most impressive parades the city has ever looked on have returned with a consciousness that they met the supreme test of patriotism creditably and are better men and more thoughtful citizens for the searching ordeal of battle. They have a right to expect that their fellow-citizens will be sensible of what they have risked and done, and will greet them with a civic pride that has counted the cost. It is not a little thing that the 77th advanced further in the Meuse offensive than any other division engaged. New York's Own will have a welcome that comes from the heart and befits such an achievement.

MEXICO MISUNDERSTANDS THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

Mexico announces that "she has not "recognized and will not recognize "the Monroe Doctrine." Nobody has asked her to recognize the Monroe Doctrine. The enforcement of the principles enunciated by President Monroe does not depend upon Mexico, upon anybody's recognition or non-recognition. The countries concerned in the Monroe Doctrine are the United States on the one hand, and countries not of this hemisphere on the other. The Doctrine does not establish a protectorate over Mexico or any other country.

As set forth in President Monroe's message of Dec. 2, 1823, the Doctrine rests on the assertion that it is "a "principle in which rights and inter"ests of the United States are con"cerned." No mention is made of any rights or interests of Mexico. The Doctrine declares that the two American continents "are henceforth not to "be considered as subjects for colo"nization by any European Power." No mention of Asiatic Powers was made, for the reason that no Asiatic Power was then in any condition to colonize the American continents. The Doctrine further declares that, since it was desirable to retain amicable relations between the United States and those Powers, it was only fair to tell them plainly "that we should consider "any attempt on their part to extend "their system to any portion of this "hemisphere as dangerous to our "peace and safety."

To our peace and safety, mind, not to Mexico's. The purpose was not primarily altruistic or humanitarian; we were looking out for our own peace and security. Mr. Monroe went on to say that, while we should not interfere with any existing European colonies, any interference by any European Power with other American countries would be viewed "as the "manifestation of an unfriendly dis"position toward the United States."

Mexico, according to her official statement just issued, regards this Doctrine as one that "attacks the sov"ereignty and independence of Mex"ico." It is simply a declaration that no Power on another continent shall colonize or annex Mexico or any other American country. That, we think, does not "attack the sovereignty and independence of Mexico."

Nearly sixty years ago France invaded Mexico, and the Mexicans were forced to declare that they wanted an Austrian Archduke for Emperor. Supported by French bayonets, Maximilian took the throne in Mexico City. We were busy at the time with a civil war of our own, and we contented ourselves with warning the French Emperor that the Monroe Doctrine applied to this case. The moment our war was over President Johnson sent General Sheridan with some 70,000 veterans to the Mexican border. The result was, in the language of Mr. Depew, that "Napoleon "III. got out of Mexico so fast that "you could have played chess on his "coat-tails." In this proceeding we did not consult Mexico; we did not ask her whether she recognized or did not recognize the Monroe Doctrine.

WITH A SINGLE THOUGHT.

The Socialist Congress at Paris on Tuesday voted, by a majority of 894, that it was willing to join the Second Internationale provided that those who were Socialists only in name were excluded. But the Congress drew a line against the Third Internationale, that is Lenin's, and a motion to adhere to it commanded only 270 votes. The denunciation of the Bolsheviki is good reading, and far be it from us to say anything in their defense. The dictatorship of the proletariat is hateful. But why should the Socialists denounce it when practiced by the Third Internationale, forgetting that it was the fundamental and original pronouncement of the First Internationale? In the words of the Communist Manifesto, never repudiated by any Socialist authority:

> The first step in the revolution by the working class is to raise the proletariat to the position of the ruling class * * * wrest all capital from the bourgeoisie * * * by means of despotic inroads on the rights of property.

The first test of the orthodoxy of Socialists by the First and Second Internationales alike was adhesion to the program of "conquest of the public "powers by the proletariat organized "as a class party." Admittedly, there are some peccadilloes chargeable to the Bolsheviki, but who can say that they have not conformed to the first requisite of orthodox socialism?

Who are the First or Second Internationalists that they should point the finger of scorn at their brethren guilty of excess of zeal? Excess profits, tax discrimination against the too rich, restriction of railways and banks—these are not the touchstones of socialism, whether they be good or bad. In short, socialism is not social reform, and there is equal need of disavowal of all the Internationales, as well as the Third, by those who are sticklers for propriety. The denouncers of the Third Internationale as a caricature of socialism are themselves guilty of the same fault, unless they disavow the dictatorship of the proletariat, the "conquest of the State," and the confiscation of capital. These tenets are not voided because those who practice them are guilty of other "errors," in the words of Lenin, in the interview cabled to The Times, in which he reiterated adhesion to the platform of the Internationale as quoted above. There is too much sailing under false colors.

NEWS FROM NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Our wise old friend, The Manchester Union, brings us both pain and pleasure. On May 1 New Hampshire will have been dry, or pretty dry, for a year. It appears that the State enjoys "practical prohibition," "just that, no more and no less." The sale of liquor "has been tremendously curtailed." Standard "red-eye" is quoted at $6 a quart, a price that indicates a difficult supply or an irresistible demand, as you please. At any rate, "the old law of the social "side of the saloon is wholly done "away with." Solitary drinking with all its charms and moral benefits has been substituted. The enthusiast of stimulation, the Manchesterian tells us with a proud satisfaction, "has to get it stealthily."

So far, so good. Prohibition in the Granite State is not entirely theoretical, and the cup must be drained in solitude. These are moral improvements to be proud of; but what must be the sorrow of the good to learn that "new inhabitations of the sale "of Jamaica ginger and similar sub"stitutions for booze are about to take "effect"? Was it worth while to tear down the temples of the forbidden juice for the purpose of building Jamaica ginger houses in their stead? Must we not assume that "inhibitions," not "inhabitations," was the word intended?

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

An Ancient Rule Is Reversed. When Judge Mayer, in the trial of the Fricke case, this week, ignored the objection of the Government's counsel and permitted the prisoner's wife to be called as a witness for the defense, he abrogated, and so far as lay in his power abolished, the ancient, well-established, and hitherto reverently observed rule of law that a wife cannot testify either for or against her husband.

Whenever a Judge does this he shocks the lawyers severely, for he removes one of the not many certainties of their professional practice, and for the time being makes them feel that they do not know where they stand or where they are going. All this Judge Mayer doubtless understood and appreciated, but apparently he rather rejoiced in the utilization of an opportunity for which he said he long had been waiting. Of course, his action was far from unprecedented, for legal history records not a few other overturnings of just such rules as the one which he characterized as archaic and not in accord with modern ideas or jurisprudence. He was quite right in saying that, but one cannot help remembering that the same thing could be said of many other rules of law that are still treated with utmost respect in all courts, and also of a good many statutes into which rules of law have been formulated.

Both laws and rules of law have a habit of outlasting the conditions on which they originally were based, and it is especially in criminal procedure that archaisms survive, in spite of having no merit except that they are old.

Duality at Last Recognized. As for the rule of law which Judge Mayer declared out of date, it came down to us from the ages when nobody questioned that man and wife are one, with the man most emphatically the one. On that theory, to let the wife testify either for or against the husband would obviously add nothing to the court's enlightenment, as it would be assumed either that the wife would not desire, or would not dare, to say anything against the husband's interests, and that what she might say to further them he could better say for himself.

In slavery days there was the same rejection of slave testimony for or against the master, and for much the same reasons. Now there are no slaves, and husband and wife, for most or at least many purposes, practical and others, are very distinctly not one but two.

Whether or not the time has come for full judicial recognition of the wife's new social and legal status is a highly interesting question, not to be settled until after other and higher courts than that of Judge Mayer have spoken on the subject. They may or may not be ready to move ahead into the position he has taken; they may even insist that he has moved backward, not ahead.

Meanwhile common folk can go on ascribing evidential value to the testimony of wives both for and against husbands, just as common folk have done long, and perhaps always. For in nothing else do common folk, in the conduct of life's ordinary affairs, differ so much from courts as in the rejection and acceptance of evidence.

Their Action Certainly Indefensible. When certain Philadelphia dock workers, as was recounted in one of yesterday's dispatches, repeatedly ducked in the river two propagandists who insisted on preaching to them the doctrines of Bolshevism and the desirability of an immediate general strike, those dock workers unquestionably were guilty of a lawless act—one that must be reprehended seriously by all good citizens. Care must be taken, however, not to make the reprehension too strong. If that were done, what would be left to say about other workers on docks or elsewhere who should carry out what was the original plan of this particular group?

For it is stated that had it not been for the arguments and exhortations of their foreman, instead of throwing the Bolshevist orators into the river and drawing them therefrom in a soaked and silenced but uninjured condition, the Philadelphia dock workers would have hanged them then and there by the neck until, as the Judges say, or used to say, they were dead, dead, dead—a deadness from which, evidently, there is no recovery. Criticism of these dock workers, therefore, must be carefully restrained or modulated.

And so must, or at any rate can be, sympathy for the ill-treated agitators. That they suffered wrong, in that illegal instead of legal measures were taken against them, is true. But really they are fitter objects of congratulation than of commiseration, so much less were their woes than what their woes might have been and came near being. That they will realize this fact is somewhat doubtful, for their experience with the limitations on free speech that are set in Philadelphia was a painful one, but it is possible to hope so. They are still alive, and that is something. Indeed, it is much, even in these days of untoward happenings and incalculable progressions.

A Stamp Hard to Admire. If the Postmaster General were not having so many other troubles just now, much could, and probably would, be said in criticism of the new Victory stamps he is now selling. Even as it is, a mild complaint about these stamps can be made without an unpardonably great departure from that kindliness and consideration which we are all in duty bound to show to everybody, and especially to the unhappy and the unfortunate.

For, as art, the Victory issue is really very trying. Crowded and confused in design, it takes close inspection to decide what it was the intention to picture on them, and—well, the reward is not commensurate with the labor expended. Of a type so large and meaty is the figure among the flags that there is difficulty in evading the suspicion that the artist went to Germany for his model, or brought her from there in pre-embargo days.

On a mere hasty glance the stamps suggest or recall the work of the artists who have decorated the front of New York's Public Library—artists who evidently drew their inspiration from the older editions of Captain Cook's "Voyages"—the editions containing the pictures of scenes in the Fiji Islands on festal days before the missionaries went there.

After all, however, these stamps do stick, and they do carry letters, so they serve a purpose.

STATEHOOD FOR PORTO RICO

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is unfortunate that Joseph G. Cannon, former Speaker of the House, should have given way, in such a childish manner, to the impatience which he evidently felt in having to explain to the Legislature of Porto Rico why the people of that island had not been granted Statehood. Moreover, it is hoped that he gave other and better reasons on that occasion to support his views than those quoted in The New York Times of April 19, 1919.

What a blot upon our boasted democracy that this docile and intelligent people, who number more than a million souls and who are alleged to belong to the greatest republic that has ever existed, should be doomed indefinitely to forego their political rights! Twenty years have elapsed now since our military and naval forces took possession of Porto Rico, after very slight resistance on the part of the inhabitants, and not a single event has occurred in that time to indicate that the Porto Ricans are not capable of handling their own affairs. There are several of the States of the Union which have either a higher percentage of illiterates or of non-English-speaking people than has Porto Rico. In some of the latter class these foreigners hold the balance of power and dictate who shall hold the public offices.

I was with the Army of Occupation in 1899-1900 in Porto Rico, and know whereof I speak. These people are well fitted for Statehood and should no longer be subjected to the humiliation of being obliged to beg for admission. They have shown by their obedience to the laws and their patience under injustice that they possess the highest qualities of citizenship.

It does not behoove Mr. Cannon to attempt to impose further upon them.

We harp about freedom for the Italians, the Poles, the Jugoslavs, and others residing far away. Let us wipe this little West Indian mote out of our own eye and perhaps we shall be better qualified to ask that the other peoples of the world shall be free.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I noticed in your issue of March 30 that a committee is collecting funds to send to Bishop Lucien Lee Kinsolving for his work in Brazil, on the occasion of the twentieth anniversary of his ordination.

I need hardly say that Bishop Kinsolving has carried on for these many years a most useful work in Brazil and is deserving of the support of all who are interested in the development of that part of South America.

The Chairman of the committee is Mrs. J. N. Blanchard, and checks to the order of Louise A. Blanchard may be sent to her at 1,105 Madison Avenue.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Just a line to remind the people that General Leman, that iron defender of Liege, still lives. It grieves me that he is not recognized as he should be.

FLORENCE VEYER.

LEND.

Lend, that the crimson mists be swept away
From acres erstwhile husbanded with care;
That souls shall faint no more at breaking day,
Whose wan light reddens with the cannon's flare.

Lend, that the searching eyes on sea rims far
Shall strain no more to spot the lurking death;
Or they no longer drift with battle scar
Whose prayers were broken with the fleeting breath.

Lend, that the diamond dawn of peace may break
Across a mad world, peace without an end;
On this dear venture all your future stake,

PUTS DELAY ON WILSON.

G. W. Perkins Says Attitude Toward President Has Changed.

George W. Perkins, who returned yesterday after having been abroad since December last in the interest of the War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A. and other relief organizations, issued a statement in which he declared that President Wilson's League of Nations plan had delayed the making of peace with Germany and that the feeling in Europe toward President Wilson had changed entirely from what it was in December, when he was acclaimed on all sides. The President, said Mr. Perkins, is regarded more and more every day as the one man responsible above all others for delay and in action in effecting peace. This is Mr. Perkins's statement:

"The situation in Paris, when I left there ten days ago, seemed to have three outstanding phases.

"First, there is a marked change in the attitude of the people of Europe toward President Wilson. The acclaim with which he was received in France, England, and Italy was without precedent. The people seemed to feel that a man with a magic wand had arrived and that he would immediately bring 'peace on earth and good-will to men.' Every word he uttered was read with eagerness by all classes. As his words were all on the subject of a League of Nations, it was very natural that the minds of the people got away from the question of making peace with Germany and on to the League of Nations question.

"I, for one, feel that this was a serious mistake, because it has unquestionably delayed the making of peace with Germany. Not only that, but it has given time for the injection of other questions into the general settlement which have involved the whole project in such grave complications. The feeling toward Mr. Wilson is now entirely different from what it was in December. In place of being acclaimed as the savior of the situation, he is being regarded more and more every day as the one man responsible above all others for delay and non-action in effecting peace.

"Second, there was growing evidence that Germany does not feel that she was whipped. She did not surrender her sword and has the feeling that the war was more or less of a draw. From what I have learned in Germany and elsewhere I believe this feeling is growing among the German people, and I fear it will make for further complications and trouble. The time to have made peace with Germany was the very first hour possible after the 11th of November. Her ruling class, her military class, the people generally, were in a far more humble frame of mind on the 11th of November than they are today.

"Third, because of Mr. Wilson's methods and activities, there is a rapidly growing tendency throughout Europe to blame the United States for any mistakes or failure in working out a satisfactory peace settlement. During the last two or three weeks, in increasing numbers and with increasing frankness the editorials of the European press have openly mentioned Mr. Wilson as responsible for the present chaotic situation.

"These three phases, taken together, have placed us by this time in a very exposed position, one that is full of grave dangers and consequences to the United States. The almost universal respect in which we were held when the war closed and the universal friendship that we enjoyed are fast disappearing, and unless the utmost care is taken we will have incurred heartburnings and resentments in Europe that will be detrimental to this country's future usefulness in the great new world upon which all nations are now entering."

Mr. Perkins said he would issue a formal statement regarding his official visit in a few days. Regarding more domestic matters, Mr. Perkins was asked as to the outlook for the steel industry.

"If you can tell me what the next tariff is going to be," he replied, "or whether the Sherman anti-trust law is going to be repealed, then I can tell you about the steel outlook."

Mr. Perkins avoided politics in his informal talk. He said that a Paris physician had told him that 4,000,000 men were buried within a radius of fifty miles of Paris—buried during the war. He said that he noticed while in Great Britain that nearly every woman wore mourning. He declared that the American soldiers were "tearing up the ground" to get home, and he also said that General Pershing had made good and was highly regarded in Europe.

When asked for his opinion regarding Bolshevism, Mr. Perkins made no comment, but cited conditions in France. In Paris, he said, apples were selling for $1 apiece and butter at $3 a pound. He said the French peasants felt that Germany would shoulder the full cost of the war.

READY TO SUE HYLAN.

Schieffelin Demands Retraction Preliminary to Libel Action.

William Jay Schieffelin, head of the Citizens Union and senior member of the drug firm of Schieffelin & Co., wrote to Mayor Hylan yesterday demanding a complete retraction of the Mayor's recent charges in a letter to Health Commissioner Copeland that the drug firm manufactured and sold narcotics "which make criminals by the wholesale." This is his letter:

Dear Sir: On April 15, 1919, you gave wide publicity through the newspapers to a letter from you to Dr. Royal S. Copeland, making serious charges against me.

I hereby demand an immediate and complete retraction by you of all the charges, including those not made in terms but by implication or suggestion. Yours truly,

WILLIAM JAY SCHIEFFELIN.

Clarence M. Lewis, attorney for Mr. Schieffelin, explained that the latter's letter was "preliminary to the commencement of Dr. Schieffelin's libel action against the Mayor."

PLAN CONCERT IN GERMAN.

Boss Bakers' Leader Says He Has Hylan's Approval.

According to P. Albers of 6,914 Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, the Boss Bakers' Singing Society of Brooklyn, of which he is President, will hold a concert in the German language at Prospect Hall, Prospect and Fifth Avenues, Brooklyn, on Tuesday evening, April 29. A similar organization of Manhattan stopped its entertainment at Palm Garden on Sunday evening following the arrival of many soldiers and sailors who objected. Mr. Albers said last night that he had received the approval of Mayor Hylan eighteen days after he had inquired if such a concert could be held. Notice of the proposed concert was sent to the Salvation Army Service Club at 15 East Forty-first Street. Copies of the circular were sent at once by soldiers to all the soldiers' and sailors' service stations and canteens with a view of having a large representation of service men at Prospect Hall on the night of the concert. The unsigned circular said that the details of the concert have been withheld as it was planned that "only persons in entire sympathy with the use of the German language shall receive invitations to attend."

WANT SAFEGUARDS FOR FOREIGN TRADE

JOHNSON THE PRESIDENT

Fred I. Kent Urges Steps by the Banks to Back Industrial Competition.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 24.—More than 3,000 delegates from all parts of the country were in attendance today at the opening session of the Sixth National Foreign Trade Convention. Among the first things accomplished was the appointment of a committee which will formulate a program of legislation and industrial co-operation to extend America's commerce abroad.

The convention was called to order by James A. Farrell, President of the United States Steel Corporation. After an address by Mr. Farrell, the election of the presiding officer of the convention was held and Albert B. Johnson of Philadelphia, President of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, was unanimously chosen. O. K. Davis of New York was re-elected Secretary of the National Foreign Trade Council.

Mr. Johnson, in outlining the program of the Trade Council for the coming year, placed emphasis upon these fundamental requirements, which he said that the Government and the industries of the country must meet:

Extension and operation under private management of the merchant marine, at a cost which will make possible competition in freight rates with other countries, including Japan.

Development of imports to balance exports, and keep down dollar exchange, which would otherwise rise to such a premium as to form a barrier to business with foreign countries.

Reduction of costs of production to a basis which will make competition with Germany, Great Britain, and Japan possible.

Reorganization of the railroad and telegraph systems under private ownership to escape the expense and inefficiency of Government control.

As a last, but important item on the program, Mr. Johnson demanded:

"An authoritative statement from our Government that American investments abroad will receive equal protection with those of other countries. So long as American investors retain vivid recollection of comparatively recent events in Mexico and China there will be continued reason for misgivings which will react unfavorably upon American foreign trade."

Tells of Need of Shipping Plan.

The American merchant marine will be the special topic for discussion Friday morning. This is considered to be the most important question before the convention. President Johnson said in part concerning it:

"Our ships cost more to build than the ships of any other nation and they will cost more to operate. Mr. Hurley has proposed recommendations of much interest as to the disposition of our ships to private owners, but no progress has yet been made in solving the problem of operating our ships upon a competitive basis with other countries. They will have to accept rates established by the nations operating at the lowest costs, such as Japan, Norway, Italy, and Spain. How is the gap between high costs and low receipts to be filled?

"If the American people are in earnest upon any subject they intend never again to permit their flag to disappear from the seas, but they have discussed no plan to such a point as to indicate a probable agreement upon Mr. Hurley's admirable recommendations, nor upon any other."

Banking Help to Foreign Trade.

President Johnson's speech was followed by an address by Fred I. Kent, Vice President of the Bankers Trust Company of New York, upon "America's Financial Equipment for Foreign Trade." Mr. Kent said in part:

"It is important that banks members of the Federal Reserve System in the principal cities of the country, having a capital and surplus of say $1,000,000 or more, and doing a large foreign exchange business, be authorized by Congress, upon approval of the Federal Reserve Board, to accept up to 200 per cent. of their capital and surplus, provided 50 per cent. only is available for domestic transactions and the other 150 per cent. for foreign exchange transactions based on foreign trade, of which up to one-third, or 50 per cent. of the capital and surplus, could be used for the purpose of creating dollar exchange, or for foreign trade, at the discretion of the acceptor."

Under such authority American banking institutions would be in position to successfully compete with foreign banks in connection with a well developed and liquid acceptance market.

"The United States is to receive $500,000,000 annually in interest from those countries to which it has made loans. Its own foreign interest payments have been reduced through the purchase of foreign held American securities to such an extent that it is reasonable to expect an annual net balance in favor of the United States, based upon normal foreign trade conditions, of $1,000,000,000."

Unless this sum is absorbed in some manner through additional imports, increased services purchased abroad or foreign investment, our natural export trade cannot be maintained nor increased. The amount is so large that our financial institutions cannot and should not absorb the whole amount, or even such portion of the total as will probably be left after deducting possible increased imports.

Suggests Debenture Issues.

"It is going to be necessary, therefore, if we would hold and increase our export trade, to import such high-class foreign investments that the public will see fit to purchase them. To do this to the extent required, it may be necessary to organize companies in this country whose business it shall be to investigate and purchase foreign securities in all parts of the world, where they can be surrounded by proper safeguards, and to issue against such securities for sale to the public their debentures based upon them."

Edward Prizer, President of the Vacuum Oil Company of New York, made an address on "The Export of Industrial Products," in which he said that the United States must awaken from its provincial attitude toward foreign countries and begin at once to take its part in international trade relations.

William Piggott, President of the Seattle Car and Foundry Company, spoke on "The Element of Cost in American Exports." He warned against "the flagrant and extravagant overhead expense of our American manufacturers."

PUBLISHERS HONOR SECRETARY LANE

Newspaper Owners Hold Annual Dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria.

SEND MESSAGE TO WILSON

Tell President Press of the Country Is Solidly Behind the Victory Loan.

The annual dinner of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association was held last night in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria. There were more than five hundred diners, and the principal speaker was Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane, the other speakers being Governor Henry J. Allen of Kansas, Augustus Thomas, the playwright, and Marcel Knecht of the French High Commission to the United States.

Behind the speakers' table were grouped the entwined flags of Great Britain, France, and the United States, with a single Canadian flag in the centre beneath three large American emblems. Secretary Lane was born in Canada, and the Canadian flag was in his honor.

John Stewart Bryan of The Richmond (Va.) News Leader was the toastmaster, and the only toast was to the President of the United States.

At the guests' table with Secretary Lane, Mr. Thomas, and Mr. Knecht were Cyrus H. K. Curtis, Governor Walter E. Edge of New Jersey, Frank P. Glass, the President of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association; Dr. Talcott Williams, Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, George McAneny, Charles R. Miller, Frank B. Noyes, President of The Associated Press; H. F. Gunnison, Dr. Henry E. Cobb, W. W. Hawkins, Robert McLean, Sr., Hopewell L. Rogers, Louis J. Wortham, Melville E. Stone, D. D. Moore, John M. Imrie, Elbert H. Baker, J. E. Atkinson, H. L. Bridgman, T. R. Williams, Harry Chandler, and Gregorio Nieva.

In the course of the evening the following message was cabled to President Wilson in Paris:

> The membership of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association in convention assembled send greeting and wish you to know that the press of this country, mindful of its national responsibility, is solidly behind the Victory Liberty Loan bond sale, which is the happy liability of a people in victory.

Mr. Bryan, in his opening address, told the story of a visit he recently made to the American troops in France. He paid a tribute to the American enlisted man, and said that in all history there had not been created "an army of such clear-eyed, loyal, well-behaved, lean and athletic boys as are those who made the rank and file of the American forces in France."

Governor Allen was the first speaker. He began with a reference to his recent controversy with Secretary Baker concerning certain things that the Governor said happened in France. He also mentioned the name of Postmaster General Burleson, and added that the best advice he could give the members of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association was to insist "on the demobilization of those national industries that we don't need any more for war purposes."

Secretary Lane's speech was a plea to the publishers of the country to support his plan of placing returned soldiers on the reclaimed lands of the South and West and for the other proposition, of which he is also the sponsor, which calls for the Americanization of the foreigners, citizens as well as non-citizens, who make their homes in this country.

"These are days," said Secretary Lane, "of reconstruction of all kinds. Since the war closed men, it seems, have discovered more things that are wrong in the United States than were ever discovered in all our history as a nation. Of course, this nation is not perfect. I am glad that it is not. America is not a perfect, but it is a perfecting, a growing, country, and I hope that the day will never come when there is not something in America that can be bettered. We have erected a great bridge, the pillars of which represent property, democracy, marriage, religion, and civilization. Yet I have heard it said here in America that our democracy is now a failure; that property is a social crime; that marriage is an offense against society; that religion is a form of insanity, and that civilization no longer exists.

Says America Is a Success.

"There is one answer to be made to all this criticism, and that is that America was and is a success. It has just come through the greatest war in history, and can you say that a nation like that is a failure? America says to those nations of Europe that are just pecking out of the shell into democracy to look to us and not to the East. We did not tell them that democracy was a panacea for all ills, but that it was a bit of machinery with the aid of which they might become the rulers of their own land. It is not merely a political institution. It is a social philosophy, and so it is that we of America must harbor within our soul the spirit of Christ, and it must be our duty to translate into action the essence of what we know as Christian civilization. That is Americanism, and when men come challenging America there is and must be no apology to make.

"We have had in the Department of the Interior what is known as the Reclamation Service, originally organized to reclaim by irrigation and other means the desert lands of the West and Southwest. When it was realized about a year ago that the war could not last much longer than a year or a year and a half, the bill that has been given my name was sent to Congress. It has been a policy of our Government in the past to give our soldiers land. So why not expand that policy and make a new domain out of the desert and swamp wastes of America? This can be done, and it will add to the United States land that will equal in size seven States of the size of Virginia.

"Today we have in America 215,000,000 acres of unused land. Of this land 40,000,000 acres skirt the Gulf Coast and it is a crime against the world that this land is not today producing meat and fruit for our distressed world. Why not say to our soldiers as they land in New York, go home, see your people, and then go to the desert and make for yourself and your girl a home, receive wages while you are making that home and pay your Government back in forty years' time."

In these reclaimed sections of the country the plan is, said the Secretary, to follow in a way the French plan of central communities, with schools, churches, stores, &c., in each little settlement as well as co-operative establishments to aid the farmers in buying what they need and to sell what they produce.

"I have today in my office in Washington," added Secretary Lane, "letters from 37,000 American soldiers asking permission to go on these lands and work and win a home for themselves. So I appeal to you to support this bill, and also to support that other bill which was before Congress, and the purpose of which is the Americanization of the people of foreign birth who are in our country. Do you know that it was revealed a year ago that of 1,500,000 men who were taken into our army there were 400,000 who could neither read nor write in any language? That was a condition that was as appalling as it was unforgivable. Yet it can be remedied, and we can make every boy and girl in America read and speak the English language within the next eight years if the way to do it is provided. And that will mean 8,000,000 more men and women who can read the newspapers you publish. We must translate America to these people who have come to us from foreign lands. There is only one way to make them Americans and that is to teach them to love the America that we love, to make them feel that America is a living thing, a splendid new thing in the world, the spirit of which they should have in their own souls."

Lauds Wallace Appointment.

Mr. Knecht's speech was devoted to Franco-American amity, a friendship which he said was certain to last, and to the sacrifices of the war journalists of France in the great war. In closing Mr. Knecht paid a tribute to Hugh Wallace, the new American Ambassador to France. President Wilson, he said, could not have appointed a man more acceptable to the people of France, "for," he added, "there is among Americans no truer or more sincere friend of France than is Mr. Wallace."

PUBLISHERS TO FIGHT BOLSHEVISM HERE

Prepare to Join Forces with Conservative Union Labor Against Radicalism.

The relations of the members of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association with the International Printing Trades Unions and the advertising situation in the United States were the two principal topics of discussion at yesterday's meeting of the association in the Waldorf-Astoria. The heads of the four great unions concerned were present in person or by proxy, and in their speeches all agreed that the arbitration contracts now in effect had been lived up to by both sides, and that, due to the fairness of the contracts, the publishing business had not been disturbed as have other businesses as a result of labor troubles during the war.

The association's own Labor Committee, as well as two of the union officials, referred to the menace of Bolshevism and were agreed that it was a matter that should be taken seriously. The report of the Special Standing Committee on Labor, of which H. N. Kellogg of San Francisco is the Chairman, said that its members considered it necessary to warn the members of the association that "the danger of Bolshevism is by no means past."

The reference in the report to Bolshevism, in the concluding part of the document, said:

> In conclusion your committee deems it necessary to warn you that the danger of Bolshevism is by no means past. At a public meeting in New York City on Feb. 29, the President of one of the local pressmen's unions said:
> "It might be a good thing for us to have prohibition. The moment the Government took liquor away from the people of Russia the people took the Government in their own hands. Presses will be smashed and windows broken on July 1st. What happened in Russia will happen here. We ought to be men enough to say, 'Take beer away from us and we will take the Government away from you.'
> "We have waited long about calling a general strike. It is time we went back to our organizations and told them to stop work now. Or, if later we are told to starve to death, we will starve, but starving, we will break into the grocery stores. The world is ripe for revolution and the sooner we get it the better."
> Remarks of that character have been made at labor union meetings.
> No doubt all present are familiar with the agitation for a new trial in the Mooney case and the proceedings of the Mooney meeting in Chicago, at which many delegates uttered sentiments that were almost treason.
> Members of the association should lose no opportunity to both publicly and privately call attention to the danger and fallacy of the radical theories and in every possible way assist conservative officers and members of labor unions to maintain their supremacy. It is vitally important that all questions raised by officers or members of local unions be given prompt attention and in instances where any unfairness or injustice has prevailed, remedies be applied without delay.
> It is possible that employers generally may help to stabilize conditions and quiet the unrest among employes by adopting some form of profit sharing. If any members present have such systems, they are urgently requested to send full statements respecting them to the Chairman of your committee.

William H. McHugh, Acting President of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union, after a reference to the negotiations now under way for an arbitration contract between the association and the union of which he is the acting head, said that it was a fact that "there are many members of local unions who have been carried away by the doctrines of the Bolsheviki." The officials of all the printing trades unions, he added, realize fully the fallacy of the doctrines of Lenin and Trotzky, and are as one in active opposition to the spread of these doctrines in the rank and file of union labor.

Matthew Wall, another of the union heads present, testified to the value of the arbitration contract, as did also John W. Hays, the Secretary and Treasurer of the International Typographical Union. Another union leader who spoke along similar lines was James J. Freel, President of the International Stereotypers and Electrotypers' organization.

The committee in charge of the Bureau of Advertising of the association reported that "the rapid movement of world events brought unusual opportunities to the Bureau of Advertising for useful service in war, peace and reconstruction." The beginning of the war, the report states, found advertising at a low ebb and surrounded by obstacles and uncertainties, while "its close finds an unprecedented volume of business with prospects for a record-breaking year."

The meeting of the association will be concluded today with two sessions, one this morning and the other this afternoon. At this afternoon's session the annual election of officers and directors will take place.

Luncheon for Mrs. B. G. Lathrop.

Mrs. Charles M. Chapin will give a luncheon at the Colony Club today for Mrs. Benjamin G. Lathrop, who has just arrived from Paris, where she was in charge of the American Fund for French Wounded. Mrs. Lathrop will explain the plan for the hospital which is to be built as a national American memorial in Rheims.

Miss Emily P. Call Betrothed.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Payson Call of Larchmont, N. Y., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Emily Payson Call, to Berford S. Oakley, son of Mrs. William J. Moran, also of Larchmont. Mr. Oakley returned recently from overseas, where he was in the Air Service of the United States Army. Miss Call's father is business manager of The Journal of Commerce.

Miss Russell to Wed R. L. Benson.

Archibald D. Russell of 34 East Thirty-sixth Street has announced the engagement of his daughter, Miss Helen R. Russell, to R. Lawrence Benson of Philadelphia and Princeton. Miss Russell is a niece of Percy Rivington Pyne. Mr. Benson belongs to the Union, Racquet and Tennis, and University clubs of this city.

NC-3 FAILS TO FLY IN ROCKAWAY TEST

RUSHING WORK ON NC-4

The NC-3, one of the seaplanes which it is hoped will bring to the United States the honor of being the first to fly the Atlantic, refused to leave the water yesterday at Rockaway Beach. The test was made in the late afternoon, and the machine, loaded with 29,500 pounds, sped around Jamaica Bay and several miles out to sea ineffectually trying to take the air. The speed of the hydroplane was so great that the spray which she threw completely hid her from view when only a couple of hundred yards from shore.

Commander H. C. Richardson and Lieutenant David McCullough alternated as pilots during the tryout. Lieutenant R. Emerson Byrd, and expert navigator, who went aboard to test the direction finder, was among the ten passengers on the trip. As the plane did not leave the water he had no opportunity of testing the efficacy of the new apparatus designed to give warning of the nearness of land and to record driftage.

As was the case in the flight the day before the starboard motor "balked" and the propeller was rendered useless. "That balky motor is a mule," said one of the officers on alighting, "but it is nothing serious and will respond beautifully when we take the ship out again tomorrow." The machine balked all day yesterday. An extra number of "gobs" were called to coax her out of the hangar, and when the machine was finally brought out it started to slide down the marine railway. The unruly plane was stopped just before she hit the water and was then dragged back to the launching tracks by a tractor motor.

Dr. Charles Omstead, inventor of the new propeller shaped like a cross section of a ten-pin, was at the station yesterday. Commander John H. Tower of Washington, who is in chaarge of the transatlantic flight plans, said that within a few days a definite announcement would be made.

Strength was added to the belief which prevails among officers and aviators at the naval station that all the machines would not be sent to Newfoundland as a taking-off place when Commander Tower admitted that the three planes would not necessarily all leave at the same time. The present plans provide that each will be sent out as soon as the equipment and trial flights are satisfactory.

It was admitted at the station last night that the preparations on the NC-4 were being rushed, and she will probably be put in commission the first of next week. Immediately following the reconstruction NC-1 will be tested probably the middle or latter part of next week. The NC-1 will be equipped with the wings taken from the NC-2, which was tested this week and partly dismantled.

Twelve men who are to be placed at one of the stations along the Atlantic route will leave Rockaway Point today for Manhattan, where they will probably be placed aboard one of the supply ships due to start very soon. Another group of twelve will start away from here tomorrow for the same purpose.

To make it as easy as possible for the American aviators to follow the "path" in their flight across the Atlantic, it has been decided to use buoys, which will belch forth smoke clouds by day and at night will give out an illumination which can be seen for miles. These buoys are expected to prevent the pilots from getting "lost" on the ocean.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Officers and men of the naval aviation service who are to man the three seaplanes in the transatlantic flight next month have been selected exclusively from among those who could not be given duty overseas during the war. Commander John H. Towers will command the fleet, which has been officially designated as "NC Seaplane Division One." The complete personnel will not be announced until Monday, but it is understood that in addition to Commander Towers, four other officers who have been associated with him in preparing plans for the flight will make the trip They are:

DISCUSS PRIZE RULES.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. JOHNS, Newfoundland, April 24.—Captain Raynham, the pilot of the Martinsyde entry for the Daily Mail's $50,000 Atlantic flight prize, showed himself to be a humorist and a philosopher today when, just after the receipt of an Air Ministry meteorological bulletin announcing that the weather was no better, he journeyed downtown through the fog and bought packages of morning glory, sweet william, and sweet pea seeds. Motoring to the Quidi Vidi Aerodrome, the young flyer calmly planted his seeds in rows all about the canvas hangar which shelters the machine with which he hopes some day to essay the Atlantic flight.

As a further evidence of his unfaltering faith in ideal flight weather, Raynham is now writing a letter home in time to catch the Furness liner Sachem, sailing for Liverpool next Monday. Of course, Raynham hopes to be on the other side long before the first sprouts of his flowers have peeped their heads through the ancient cricket sod where his hangar now stands, and he is equally hopeful of getting across before the liner to which he is intrusting his letter, but he realizes and tries to take humorously and calmly the possibility of a long delay.

Both pilots discussed today the means to be used to prove their crossing to the Irish coast. If they reach it, as the prize rules make the winner the one who first goes from coast to coast, the Royal Aero Club may be asked to make a ruling on this point, as it is possible that one man might reach a spot on the lonely Irish coast somewhere, perhaps, between Valentia and Cape Clear and never be observed until he had continued on to Brooklands. The other might be forced to descend in Ireland, and thus have proof of the time he reached there, while the pair who crossed to the Irish coast would have only their own words. Unless the club directs differently, Hawker will throw out a packet of maps with a message requesting the finder to record the time and forward it at once to the Aero Club, while Raynham will toss an overside message bag containing letters already stamped and ready for posting upon which the finder is also requested to note the time.

MADRID, April 24.—The death is announced of the Countess of Paris, mother of the Duke of Orleans, the head of the Bourbon-Orleans royal house of France. She was 70 years old.

Isabelle de Montpensier, a Spanish infanta and a daughter of the Duke of Montpensier, was married in 1864 to her cousin, Louis Philippe d'Orleans, Count of Paris, eldest son of the Duke of Orleans and a grandson of Louis Philippe. After the death of the Count of Chambord, the direct descendant of Louis XV., the Count of Paris was recognized by the great majority of Legitimists as the heir to the throne of the Bourbons.

The Countess of Paris was the mother of the former Queen Amelie of Portugal, whose son was the dethroned King Manuel; the Duke of Montpensier, the Duchess of Savoy-Aosta, the Princess Jeanne d'Orleans, the Duchess of Guise, and Donna Louisa of Bourbon-Sicily.

It will be recalled that her husband served as a Captain on the staff of General McClellan in the civil war and was the author of a "History of the Civil War in America."

MISS SINTON A BRIDE.

Weds Harold D. Menken at Ritz-Carlton—The Attendants.

The wedding of Harold D. Menken and Miss Harriet Sinton, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Sinton of 270 Park Avenue, took place at 8:15 last evening in the Crystal Room of the Ritz-Carlton. The Rev. Dr. H. P. Mendes officiated and the reception was held in the ballroom. The bride, gowned in white satin and duchess lace and a net and lace veil, was attended by Miss Fanny Moscowitz as maid of honor and by Mrs. Irving Stroock as matron of honor. The other attendants were Mrs. Walter Gitz and the Misses Edith Lowenstein, Frances Goldsmith and Edith Gry. They wore orchid color and blue chiffon and carried delphineum. Little Miss Edith Dorothy Weiler was the flower girl and Master John Clarence Davies, Jr., was the page.

Mr. Menken's best man was Captain Jacques Swaad, who recently returned from service in France, and the ushers were Charles H. Weiler, John Burke, George Fries, Irving Stroock, Lieutenant Walter Gitz, Piza Mendes, Lawrence Roosbath, Nathan A. Menken, and St. Amo Piza.

R. S. WORMSER MARRIES.

Weds Miss Marion E. Werhan in Grace Church Chantry.

The wedding of Robert S. Wormser, a son of Mrs. Maurice S. Wormser of 45 East Eighty-second Street and the late Mr. Wormser, and Miss Marion E. Werhan, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. H. Werhan of 2 Gramercy Park and South Nyack, N. Y., took place quietly at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the chantry of Grace Church, Broadway and Tenth Street, the rector, the Rev. Dr. Charles Lewis Slattery, officiating. None except relatives and a few close friends were present.

The bride wore a dark blue moiré costume topped by a hat to match. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. A. B. McLaughlin, and by Miss Marcia Higgins, also in dark blue, with black tulle hats. Captain George Francis Train was the best man. There were no ushers and there was no reception. Upon their return from a honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. Wormser will live at Scarsdale, N. Y.

The bridegroom's sister, Miss Gwendolyn Ranger Wormser, was married three weeks ago to Harry S. Guggenheimer.

TOKIO, April 24.—Prince Tsunehisa, head of the royal house of Takeda, is dead.

Prince Tsunehisa was born on Sept. 22, 1882, the eldest son of the late Prince Kita-shirakawa. The House of Takeda was newly created on March 30, 1906. The Prince was married on April 30, 1908, to Princess Masako, the sixth daughter of the late Emperor Mutsihito and a sister of the present Emperor Yoshihito. One son and a daughter are living.

CAMILLE ERLANGER DEAD.

PARIS, April 24.—Camille Erlanger, the composer, died today.

J. J. SHUBERT BRINGS THEATRE NOVELTIES

HENRI BERNSTEIN'S 'JUDITH'

"In the Night Watch," by Michael Morton, and "House of Salabacca," a Spectacle, in List.

J. J. Shubert, who returned to New York yesterday on the Aquitania after a two months' visit to London and Paris, brought with him the American rights to a variety of English and French plays, and arranged also for the presentation of many of the Shubert productions in London. On both the English and French stages, Mr. Shubert said, he found "the impress of the American theatre."

In Paris Mr. Shubert arranged with Henri Bernstein for the exclusive rights to that author's writings for the next five years. The first Bernstein play to be produced will be "Judith," a Biblical drama, and it will be followed by "La Griffe."

By arrangement with Charles Cohran, a London producer, the Shuberts will bring over "Bal Tabarin," a musical piece now running in Paris, and "In the Night Watch," a melodrama, by Michael Morton, now on view at the Oxford in London. Madge Titheradge, who is playing the leading part in the latter piece, probably will come to America to appear in it here.

"The Belle of Trouville," a musical comedy, will also be imported, and in association with Andre Charlot of London a London revue called "Buzz, Buzz," will be brought to New York. Two plays by Tristan Bernard were admired, both of which will be produced first in New York and later in London. Arrangements were made with Maurice Donnay to present here "The House of Salabacca," a musical spectacle.

Several French players were placed under contract for the next Winter Garden production, including Madge Derney, a dancer from the Opera Comique Dances for Returning Officers.

A new series of dances for the returning officers of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps will be held at the Holland House, beginning tomorrow evening. Many officers of the fleet are expected to attend.

PLARRE.—Henry C. In sad and loving memory of our beloved Son and Brother, who entered into eternal rest April 25, 1918.

It's been a sad and dreary year
Since you have left our midst.
May God grant you eternal rest
Till we'll again be meeting.
Father, Mother, Sister, and Brother.

STEINBOCK.—In memory of a beloved wife and devoted mother, Jessie Beatrice Steinbock, died April 25, 1915.

An American Railroad in France

In less than eighteen months American engineers built in France a railroad nearly 1,500 miles long with American steel and American dollars. America also provided:

1,700 locomotives
31,700 railroad cars
2,800 engine drivers
2,800 firemen
2,000 conductors
5,700 brakemen

Eighteen billion dollars has been raised in the four previous Liberty Loans to pay for this equipment and for many other purposes. Four and a half billions more are needed to complete the cost of winning the war. Let us supply it quickly and cheerfully.

The Citizens National Bank will be glad to handle and finance subscriptions to the Victory Loan.

It's The Re-Tying That Tells In John David "Indestructo" Scarfs

YOU can't judge a Scarf by the way it ties, but only by the way it re-ties. There's the rub, but the rub doesn't affect an "Indestructo" Scarf. It won't stay wrinkled, because it's spirally twisted not to in the weaving.

Think of a Scarf that unkinks its own kinks! No pulling—no pressing to smooth out creases. The weave presents a surface as mask-like as a poker-player's face. You get twice as much out of a Cravat for the Price.

AutoStrop SAFETY RAZOR

Provides keen blades and the means of stropping them quickly

AUTOSTROP Razor Blades are made of the hardest and toughest steel produced for razor blade use. They provide the sharpest, finest kind of cutting edge.

It is scientifically known, however, that all razor blades begin to dull after use—that to put a sharp edge back on the blade, stropping is absolutely essential. For this reason the AutoStrop Razor is built with a patented, self-contained blade stropping feature.

This simple, convenient stropping arrangement gives you the means of stropping a blade without even removing it from the razor.

You simply slip the strop through the razor head and pass the razor back and forth along the strop. The strop itself is made of selected hide, specially treated. It keeps the blade edge in prime condition.

A pressure of your thumb adjusts the blade for close, medium or light shaving. In fact, the whole AutoStrop Razor is so simply, so efficiently built that you will find it the most convenient razor you have ever used.

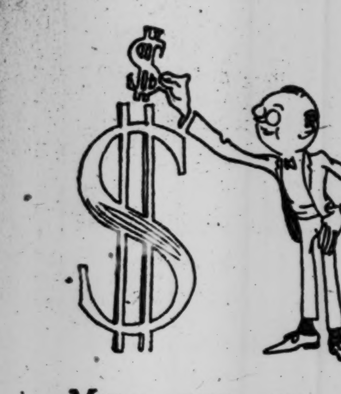
GIANTS RUN AFOUL OF CRAVATH'S CUDGEL IN PHILADELPHIA AND MEET DISASTER



Many years ago when everybody traded on the principle of asking all they could get, we adopted our "one-price" rule and have stuck to it ever since.

Then, as now, it meant making up our minds to be satisfied with a fair profit based on actual cost.

Strangely enough, through the exigencies of war-time trading, we are caught at a seeming violation of this cardinal principle of our commercial code—occasionally have identical goods in stock at two or more prices.

Yet the explanation's simple.

Once a garment, or anything else we sell, is placed in stock, it is marked a fair price in plain figures and stays at that price (unless reduced) until sold.

If meantime cost of manufacture has gone up, new goods, although exactly the same quality, must fetch a higher price.

In other words, we do not advance goods already in stock to bring them up to current market value.

PHILLIES ARE EASY VICTORS

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 24.—Gavvy Cravath was the stumbling block to the Giants today, and the Phillies won by a score of 8 to 5. Old Cactus was in his element. He completely wrecked the aspirations of the ambitious New York hurlers. In addition to scoring three runs himself, Cravath's clouts were responsible for three other runs crossing the pan.

Cravath's double past third in the initial inning and his singles in the fifth and sixth not only proved demoralizing to the Giants' chances, inasmuch as Gavvy reached home after each of those wallops, but they were rapped out with men on, and in each instance the vigor of the clout was instrumental in markers being chalked up to the credit of the Phillies.

To add to McGraw's woe, it was an off day for the Giant twirlers. The New Yorkers' leader essayed to match the cunning of Jack Coombs, who switched his outfield to meet the left-hand offerings of Rube Benton, by yanking out Rube Benton for Paul Jones when only two-thirds of the first inning had flitted by.

The Phils collected bingles off Jones in each inning until the fifth, when Coombs's clan again got out their heavy artillery and pounded the Giants' right-hander for three hits and an equal number of runs. The fact that Jones showed a tendency to become flighty, and was guilty of a wild throw that aided the Phils in swelling their run column, led McGraw to send Bob Steele in to stem the onslaught of the Phils.

It was Cravath who ruined Steele's career in the sixth. Oeschger and Woodward were employed by Coombs on the mound. The former did not meet with as kindly treatment as Woodward and before he retired from the box the Giants plastered the greensward with six bingles that were responsible for putting the invaders out in front with a three-run lead for a total of five runs.

Woodward was steadier in the box than his predecessor, and despite the fact that the Giants succeeded in nicking him for a single in each of the five innings that he performed, the hits did not come at times when they would have benefited. The Giants were unable to score after their big act in the fourth, when they amassed three tallies.

The Phils got an early start. Bancroft's bingle, Benton's wild pitch and wild throw followed by Cravath's double brought in the first run. Cravath scored when Fletcher fumbled Baird's grounder. The Giants came back with a run in the second, Kauff rapping out a clean double to centre and romping home when Smith singled to right. In the third Burns reached first on a screamer past shortstop and went to third when Young lined a double along the third base line. Burns scored when Chase hit a grounder to Pearce and was thrown out at first.

Steele made his bow by issuing a pass to Bancroft in the sixth. Luderus sent a smart single to centre and Bancroft went to second. Cravath added his fourth hit of the day to right field and scored Bancroft. Young made a wild throw trying to catch Luderus, and the Phils' first baseman cantered home.

Whitted flied out to Kauff, and Cravath advanced. Cravath scored on Baird's sacrifice fly to Young. The quietus was put on the Giants' scoring with their three runs in the fourth. Smith walked and Jones fouled to Cady. Burns worked Oeschger for a free pass and Young smashed a single to centre, scoring Smith. Young went to second on the throw-in and Burns went to third. Chase came through with a timely rap to left that netted a single and scored Burns and Young.

The Phils came from behind in the fifth, when Cravath started the onslaught with a single to left. Whitted connected with a single past second, and Cravath reached third. Cravath came home when a double play missed fire, Baird hitting a grounder to Fletcher, who attempted to catch Whitted at second, but failed. Doyle threw out Baird at first. Whitted race home on Meusel's single, and the latter counted when Woodward hit a sacrifice fly to Kauff.

REST MAY HELP YANKEES.

April Showers Cause Postponement —Quinn May Pitch Today.

April showers intruded upon the second baseball game of the season yesterday, causing a postponement of the Yankees-Boston game at the Polo Grounds. The Yanks were disappointed for they are anxious to show that they are not as bad a ball club as they appeared to be on opening day.

The clubs will clash this afternoon. Jack Quinn is likely to be the pitching selection of Huggins, while Manager Barrow may start Sam Jones or Babe Ruth. The Brooklyn-Boston Braves game in Boston was also postponed.

MARSTON CAPTURES LAKEWOOD MEDAL

LAKEWOOD, N. J., April 24.—Although bothered somewhat by the greens, a trifle heavy at the outset due to the early morning rains, Max Marston of Baltusrol, kept going steadily enough to win the qualifying round medal with a score of 76 to start the Spring open golf tournament at the Country Club of Lakewood today. The nearest to the former New Jersey champion was J. C. Parrish, Jr., of the National Links, who chalked up a 79.

Out of a total of ninety entries seventy returned cards, more than enough to fill four sixteens for which prizes had been offered. At the finish those with scores of 87 or better were safely in the first sixteen, and they included the three Princeton lads, W. R. Woolworth, Richard A. Haight, and J. S. Dean.

Haight, who had Marston for a playing partner, was hitting the ball "a mile," if not always straight, and it was one of these wide ones, a slice out of bounds at the fourteenth, that hurt his score. After the out of bounds his next effort from the tee resulted in a top to the cross bunker, and if it hadn't been for quite a putt after finally reaching the green, he would not even have made the hole in 7. His total for the round was 86. Marston, on the other hand, played steadily, driving a long, straight ball and approaching, if not in deadly fashion, at least well enough to score considerably lower had his putts been dropping at all.

Marston's card:

Out............5 4 4 3 5 5 4 5 5—40
In...............3 4 4 4 4 3 5 4 5—36 76

L. A. Hamilton, entering from Deal, although he also belongs to Englewood, and Ekwanok, had little cause to complain of a round of 80, neither did Maurice Risley of Atlantic City, nor H. L. Bond of Baltimore offer excuses for their 81s. William M. Reekie of Upper Montclair, however, spoiled what might have been a card in the 70s by slipping a cog on two holes. He also had 81.

With two exceptions practically all of those who made the first sixteen belonged to metropolitan clubs. These included the three collegians entering from Princeton.

First Sixteen. — Max Marston, Baltusrol, 40, 36—76; J. C. Parrish, Jr., National Links, 44, 35—79; L. A. Hamilton, Deal, 40, 40—80; H. L. Bond, Baltimore, 42, 38—81; Maurice Risley, Atlantic City, 43, 38—81; W. M. Reekie, Upper Montclair, 43, 38—81; George Dixon, National Links, 44, 37—81; Pierre A. Proal, Deal, 44, 38—82; A. J. FORDHAM DEFEATS ORIOLES.

Collegians Outplay Professionals and Win by 9 to 7.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 24.—Fordham's baseball team defeated the Baltimore Orioles in a fast game here this afternoon by the score of 9 to 7. The hitting of the visitors was hard and timely, twelve safties being registered off the combined offerings of Parnham, Kneisch, and Frank.

Halloran, the Fordham twirler, helped to win his own game by slamming out a triple, a double and two singles out of five times at bat. In addition he pitched a very steady game and was very effective in the pinches.

Frank Frisch, the New Yorkers' shortstop, got a triple, two doubles and a single, scored three runs and handled several very difficult chances in the field without an error. The visitors came from behind and tied the score in the sixth inning with three runs. In the eighth round Fordham tallied again on Frisch's double, a fielder's choice and Carroll's error.

BOSTON SWORDSMAN LEADS IN TOURNEY

W. H. Russell of the Boston A. A., yesterday led the successful quartet of fencers who participated in the combined first and semi-final round of the annual dueling swords national championship tournament at the New York A. C. Russell finished the competition with a slate of seven victories and three defeats. This performance landed the Boston fencer at the head of the four swordsmen who qualified for the final round, which will be held at the Hotel Astor this evening.

Russell's exhibition of form was somewhat of a surprise. He started with an unbroken string of four victories, defeating in succession, Sherman Hall, New York A. C., national foils champion; H. Budd and Ray W. Dutcher, both of the New York A. C., and Paul Meylan of the Fencers' Club. In H. A. Hirsch of the Fencers' Club, Russell encountered a snag, and after a spirited session up and down the strip, the Boston fencer suffered the first touch registered against him. In his following bout, Arthur S. Lyons of the Fencers' Club, scored a touch against the Boston entry, but before the bout was decided some of the keenest and hardest fencing of the afternoon had been produced.

Eleven fencers entered for the title. A new title-holder will be crowned in the present tournament. Leo Nunez of the New York A. C., holding through champion since 1917, has been unable to enter in defense of his title because of his military duties with the Italian Army.

The others to qualify for the finals, in addition to Russell, are Meylan, Lyon, and Schaeffler. With Brackett these three fencers completed their scheduled bouts in a four-cornered deadlock, each winning six bouts and losing four. In the fence-off Brackett was eliminated when he sustained two defeats and encountered a double touch with Schaeffler. This latter bout went as unfenced, but eliminated the Blue and White lad from further contention. Up to this stage of the competition Brackett had shown an impressive form, which brought him victories over six of his rivals in well-contested bouts.

The summaries:

Hall defeated Budd, Hirsch, Riebe, Gottshall, and Schaeffler. Won 5 bouts and lost 5.

Budd defeated Hirsch, Lyon, and Riebe. Won 3 bouts and lost 7.

Meylan defeated Hall, Budd, and Riebe. Won 3 bouts and lost 7.

Gottshall defeated Meylan and Riebe. Won 2 bouts and lost 8.

PRESIDENT'S CUP FOR THUS.

Miss Dodsworth's Saddle Horse Takes Trophy at Brooklyn Show.

Brooklyn's Horse Show was continued last night in the Riding and Driving Club under even more auspicious conditions than those which marked the opening on Wednesday. The President's Cup was up for competition and among the brilliant crowd that saw the coveted ribbon pinned on Miss Alica A. Dodsworth's Thus were representatives of royal families of France and Italy. These distinguished visitors were in a party of five entertained as guests of Miss Lida L. Fleitmann, one of New York's most daring cross-country riders, and they attracted almost as much attention as the spirited animals in the ring. Prince Michel Murat of France was accompanied by Captain Charles Duval and Lieutenant François de Juge of the French Army, while Prince François Rospigliosi was the representative of Italy. Major Harry La Montagne also was in the party.

There was considerable rivalry for the possession of the trophy offered by President Leeming, and the class for saddle horses for which it was given was framed with such liberal conditions that there were twenty-four entries. Miss Dodsworth, who rode her own saddler, Thus, was a favorite with the crowd from the start as, though now a resident of Englewood, N. J., she formerly lived in Brooklyn, and had a host of friends to cheer her on to victory.

The army came to the front in the opening class for jumpers, Lieutenant M. M. Corpening riding in uniform so cleverely that his gelding, Leonard Wood, carried off the blue from a large field. In a jumping class for pairs, Leonard Wood would not jump in unison with Girl O' Mine, and the pair was unplaced. Honors in this event went to a slashing pair of hunters shown by Charles Butler, while Mrs. and Mrs. William du Pont supplied both the second and third teams. Miss Amy Sparks and Sir Ashley Sparks took the fourth ribbon with Mayerdale and Ligamaddy.

The awards:

Takes Aberdeen Purse at Havre de Grace.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 24.—A muddy track caused by heavy rain overnight caused the withdrawal of the Whitney entry, Amaze and Panoply, from the Aberdeen Purse for two-year-olds this afternoon, but even with these formidable contestants out of the way the race resulted in an upset. Ral Parr's Paul Jones, which had been soundly beaten by the Glen Riddle Farm's Peter Coombs when they last met, found the course to his liking and came strongly at the finish to win by a neck from Kallipolis, another outsider in the small field. Peter Coombs, after showing the way for the first half mile, stopped badly when called on and finished next to last.

The distance for the two-year-olds was increased to four and a half furlongs this afternoon, and the extra distance suited Paul Jones as well as Kallipolis. Neither of these could keep pace with Peter Coombs and Minute Man for the first half of the journey. Under strong urging by Mergler Paul Jones was the first to gain ground on the leaders, and with only a furlong to go he was right behind the tiring pair in front. In a few strides more Paul Jones swept by Peter Coombs and Minute Man, but a new danger threatened when Kallipolis, after making a wide turn into the stretch, came with a great rush. Mergler had to keep Paul Jones under a drive to gain the verdict by a neck. Kallipolis beat Minute Man by two lengths for the place.

Commander Ross scored another victory in the sixth race when Monomoy was sent to the post for the first time this season to beat a small field with ease. The Canadian suffered a reverse, however, earlier in the day when Dottie Vandiver was beaten by Onico in the third race.

The summaries:

LA REINE D'ANJOU IS BEST BULLDOG

Though old champions retained their laurels at the eleventh annual specialty show of the French Bulldog Club of America, held in the Hotel Astor yesterday, their margins of victory were very slight, and the real sensations of the exhibit were two young dogs which swept on victoriously from the puppy classes until forced to bow before the mature perfections of the Anjou Kennels' candidates when the winners were called into the ring. In dogs the Anjou Kennels' Ch. Gamin's Rival, Jr., received the winners' award, with the reserve going to Mrs. Henry L. Bauer's cherished puppy Pompey. The brilliant Ch. La Reine d'Anjou not only carried off the winners' ribbon for bitches, but, when pitted against her kennel companion later, achieved the distinction of best in the show, to add to many similar specials.

Experts who visited the Sun Parlor in the Astor at the all-day session were more interested in the eleven-month-old puppy Pompey than in the Anjou representatives. Pompey was bred by his owner in Brooklyn, and is one of the first litter of Nana, which had been kept as a household pet for five years before her owner decided to breed her. Mated with La France Richelieu, the result was in Pompey, a rich seal brindle, with tight screw tail and a massive square head. Shown for the first time at the Westminster show, Pompey took two firsts and seven specials, and yesterday improved on this record by capturing seven blues and being placed reserve in the winners' class to Ch. Gamin's Rival.

An even younger aspirant than Pompey provided the sensation in the competitions for bitches. This was the seven-month-old Princesse d'Or, owned by Donald W. Sherwood, the Secretary of the French Bulldog Club. This smart young Frenchie began with the puppy class and garnered ribbon after ribbon until her string of successes stopped when she met Ch. La Reine d'Anjou.

CASSIDY WINS TWO BOUTS.

New York Boxer Is Victor in Crescent A. C. Tourney.

Frank Cassidy of the Ozanam A. A., national and metropolitan A. A. U. boxing champion at 135 pounds, won the only final round victory for New York last night in the inter-city amateur boxing tournament at the Crescent A. C. of Brooklyn. Cassidy, after scoring a technical knockout in two rounds over Edward Burke of Pittsburgh in his semi-final bout, won by default from L. Lewis, another Pittsburgh boxer, in the final round.

The summaries:

118-Pound Class, Special Inter-City Bouts.—H. Regan, Boston, defeated George Etcell, Union Settlement A. C., three rounds, judges' decision; M. Arra, Quick Step A. C., defeated E. Mirman, Paulist A. C., three rounds, referee's decision.

RELAY CARNIVAL ON TODAY.

Penn's Great Annual Games Attract Stars from Colleges.

PHILADELPHIA, April 24.—Pennsylvania's relay carnival starts tomorrow afternoon at Franklin Field at 2:30 P. M. with thirty-one events on the card for decision. The features of the afternoon's sprt are found in the sprint and the distance medley relay championships and the Pentathlon or all-around championship of the colleges of America. More intercollegiate champions of the East and West and intercollegiate point winners are due to start in these two races than have ever before faced the started in two events.

ASSAILS BURLESON, DENIES POSTAL LOSS

ATTACKS THE ZONE LAW

Declares That Burleson, and Not the Publishers, Needs Defense Before the People.

Charles Johnson Post, Director of the Publishers' Advisory Board, an organization composed of representatives of about 300 periodicals in this country, with offices at 200 Fifth Avenue, replied yesterday to Postmaster General Burleson's attack upon the owners of newspapers and periodicals. Mr. Burleson in his statement attacked the "selfish combination" which had opposed the zone law and singled out four unnamed individuals for especial criticism. Washington dispatches of yesterday mentioned Mr. Post as the representative of the Publishers' Advisory Board in the fight against the zone law.

Mr. Post in his comment yesterday on the Postmaster General's statement asserted that it was the Postmaster General himself who needed defense and not the publishers. He further said that the statement made by Mr. Burleson that the Post Office Department would sustain a deficit of $50,000,000 per annum even under the Postal Zone system was untrue.

The organization of which Mr. Post is the head consists of the Periodical Publishers' Association of America, the Associated Business Papers, Inc.; the American Medical Editors' Association, the New York Medical Publishers' Association, the Agricultural Publishers' Association, the Association of Religious Press, the Allied Printing Trades Council, and the Authors' League of America.

"Mr. Burleson," said Mr. Post, yesterday, "in the demoralized postal service he has developed and which we all experience, by his censorship in refusing the telegraph to a news dispatch criticising him, by his revival of a postal zone system in defiance of condemnation of the postal zone system by United States Postal Commissions, has established the record of an official who must defend himself before the bar of public opinion for demonstrated incapacity and reckless malevolence.

"The amazing official statement by Postmaster General Burleson in his own defense, following his refusal to transmit the news dispatch of The New York World because such dispatch reflected upon his incapacity, is a challenge to every serious thinking American—even though he rescinded such order the following day. That such a Prussian and vicious one-man censorship can be established in the Post Office by Mr. Burleson or any one else, reveals a menace to our nation and American ideals far beyond Mr. Burleson's point that he thinks he has been criticised too harshly.

"In substance Mr. Burleson apparently defends such a censorship—in so far as his angry tirade against publishers may seem to suggest any line of thought—because of what he alleges is 'organized propaganda directed against the Post Office' and which, he further alleges, 'does not have for its real purpose any desire for improvement in the postal or wire service.'

Calls Service Demoralized.

"Whether the postal service is good or bad is not a matter of argument or of Mr. Burleson's personal opinion. The public knows from its own experiences, suffered day by day from the camps in France to the commerce of San Francisco, and as evidenced by the impartial investigations and the resolutions of the most reliable business organizations of the country. These investigations by sober business men in all lines show that under Mr. Burleson's postal administration the postal service has been demoralized to a degree that did not seem possible under even the worst standards of political, partisan incapacity. Mr. Burleson's postal incapacity stands bluntly demonstrated by its fruits.

"What Mr. Burleson thereupon calls organized propaganda is the expression of sentiment of hundreds and hundreds of responsible business organizations, with their many thousands of business members, Chambers of Commerce, educational institutions, labor organizations, religious organizations, and cultural organizations that have formally condemned the various inefficient postal methods and principles which he champions.

"He specifically upholds the vicious and un-American postal zone law, with its unfair postage increases against distant American communities, and alleges that the publishers of the country, newspapers, and periodicals, are in a conspiracy to ruin him. Those whom Postmaster General Burleson is attacking by means of the zone law are not publishers, but they are the reading men and women, the reading homes of this nation. For by this postal zone law he demands that any periodical shall cost more in postage to an American reader because of and in proportion to that reader's accidental remoteness from any point of publication. And when public-spirited and representative organizations, such as the American Federation of Labor, the Merchants' Association of New York, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the National Grange, the National Education Association, and hundreds of others protest against this vicious and un-American law, he says that such expression of opinion does not have for its real purpose any desire for improvement in the postal or wire service, but is intended to aid in accomplishing a reduction of the rates of postage on second-class mail, (newspapers and magazines.)

Explains Publishers' Attitude.

"On the contrary, the publishers of the country are fighting in order that every American shall pay the same postage for the same American periodical or newspaper, no matter where he happens to live. Publishers are fighting for equal postage to every American everywhere—why does Mr. Burleson oppose that sound postal principle? It was a just postal principle established by Abraham Lincoln and remained until Mr. Burleson overthrew it.

"Let the facts be clearly understood: A postal zone system once existed in this country whereby readers paid postage on their periodicals and newspapers according to their distance from the point of publication. Newspapers and periodicals are primarily sources of information and education, differing in that respect from ordinary merchandise. After a careful and broad investigation of the fundamental, social, educational, and economic factors involved by Postmaster General Blair, Abraham Lincoln abolished the postal zone system in 1863. Since then every United States Postal Commission appointed to investigate postal questions has absolutely condemned the zone system which Postmaster General Burleson has revived and which he so angrily defends.

"Mr. Burleson in his statement has, with every evidence of deliberateness, endeavored to give the public the impression that there is an annual postal deficit in the Post Office Department of $70,000,000 and that under the postal zone system it will still be $50,000,000 per annum. In his own signed reports since 1916 there appear postal surpluses over and above all expenditures as follows: 1916, $5,829,236.07; 1917, $9,836,211.90; 1918, $19,979,798.08.

"These surpluses, mind you, during a war period when the volume of mail matter of the United States governmental departments, carried absolutely free of cost, was greater than at any period in the entire history of the country; that the franked mail of Congressmen, consisting of millions of pieces and hundreds of thousands of packages of free seeds and free letters for keeping their political fences mended, are carried without a penny of cost; as well as over 58,000,000 pounds of privately owned county newspapers carried free of any postage whatsoever in the county of publication.

"Mr. Burleson in putting forth these figures implying a postal deficit instead of a postal surplus in his department, did not give good faith to the public, for he did not tell the public that the fantastic belief in the $70,000,000 deficit and the $50,000,000 annual deficit was made up by guesswork eleven years ago and submitted to the United States Postal Commission known as the Hughes Commission—the most recent Postal Commission to pass on the subject—and that this Postal Commission, after careful investigation and analysis, utterly condemned these figures as unreliable and furnishing no adequate basis for a finding of costs of separate classes of mail.

Says Figures Have Been Condemned.

"Mr. Burleson's naïve tirade and guesswork figures, well known by him to have been condemned as unreliable, are boldly deceptive, but without ingenuity. He renders himself ridiculous when he alleges that some publisher promised to make a great man of him in public estimation if he would acquiesce in the repeal of the zone law; it may be pointed out that what a wise Providence did not do could hardly be accomplished by a publisher.

"Mr. Burleson has thrown all of his prestige, influence, and weight as Postmaster General to the flattering attentions of an organization which has for years devoted its entire energies to attacking the publishers of this country. This organization has spent many thousands of dollars in sending out letters lauding Mr. Burleson and urging their readers to write letters to him in praise of his 'strength and perseverance and necessary fearlessness' in reviving this vicious postal zone system that was condemned and abolished by Lincoln over fifty years ago. This same organization developed very great activity following the adoption of the parcel post—which for years had been demanded for the people of this country by periodicals and newspapers—and its peculiarly synchronized activities were denounced by Charles H. Ingersoll of New York as nothing but a red herring dragged across the trail of the parcel post.

"No organization, however malevolent its purposes, could ever have discredited Postmaster General Burleson in the public mind in the way and to the degree his own acts and incapacities have discredited him. He is typical of a phase that thoughtful Americans deplore and hoped had passed. The fact that his personal fortunes were interwoven with the convict labor system, with its convict whippings, does not conform to what we like to think are typical American ideals.

"His contemptuous disregard of the employes in the Post Office Department and his hostility to their organization, and to organized labor in general, does not conform to typical American ideals. His reckless censorship, which culminated in his refusing the use of the telegraph wires for a news dispatch of The New York World because it reflected upon him, Burleson, does not conform to typical American ideals.

"His revival of a postal zone system abolished by Abraham Lincoln and also condemned by United States Postal Commissions does not conform to typical American ideals. It is not the publishers or their organizations or their readers that need defense in the eyes of the American people. It is the Postmaster General, who uses the powers of his office to discriminate by unequal postage rates for the same publication against the spread of information and news, thereby breaking down habits of reading, and who attempts an irresponsible censorship by barring the use of the telegraph wires to news dispatches or articles that criticise him."

Mr. Post asserted further that through the ignorance of the Post Office officials news articles printed in trade journals or other periodicals were sometimes classed as advertising because of the mention of the name of a manufacturer in explaining the type of machine or utensil. He said that a report made to the Post Office by the publisher of a farm journal that a certain issue of the paper contained 45 per cent. advertising was changed at Washington to 56 per cent. in view of the naming of different makes of rakes and other farm implements.

There were in the United States, Mr. Post said, approximately 4,630 periodicals as distinct from daily and weekly newspapers, and all of these would be forced to increase their subscription rates because of the zone law, as it would be impossible from a financial standpoint for the publishers to send their papers at the present rates.

NEW CHARGE BY BURLESON.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Two statements, both aimed at the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company, were issued from the Post Office Department today. The first of these, made by Postmaster General Burleson, alleged that of 10,000 telephone and telegraph companies in the United States the Postal was the only one with which Mr. Burleson "has had controversy or even an unpleasant experience." The other statement, made by the Wire Board, was issued in answer to contentions of William J. Deegan of the Postal Company that The Postal Telegraph, the house organ of the Mackay companies, and other literature had been barred from regular distribution because they contained matter opposing Mr. Burleson's views. The Wire Board's statement contends that Postal employes have been using the wires and the time of the Government to distribute "propaganda" directed against Government control.

"There are over ten thousand telephone and telegraph companies in the United States, furnishing service to the public," Mr. Burleson's statement said. "The Postmaster General has had controversy or even an unpleasant experience with only one—the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company.

"The remainder are working harmoniously and in a spirit of co-operation with the Postmaster General and his organization. The Postal Telegraph Company is also the only company, so far as ascertained, whose sworn statements before the Interstate Commerce Commission as to receipts, disbursements, value of property and depreciation of reserves, are in conflict with their sworn statements to the Postmaster General.

"The bitter attitude of its officials can only be attributed to the fact that its dealings with the Postal establishment made it necessary to disclose the fact that its records have been so kept as to prevent the State tax officials of the various States from access to figures showing the value of the property subject to local taxation as presented in their sworn statements to the Postmaster General. And its refusal to go to the Court of Claims cannot be explained on any theory other than a fear to support these statements in court and to make further exposure of the actual facts."

The Wire Board's statement was as follows:

"With reference to the assertion that the Postmaster General is applying the 'gag rule' to employes in the telegraph service, the Wire Board stated today that it was discovered some time ago that the deposed officials of the Postal Telegraph Company had, while they were operating those properties for the Government, made use of the telegraph without payment and of employes in the Government service for the circulation of propaganda to incite insubordination and to disorganize and obstruct Government operation of the wire systems and thereby impair the use of the wire service to the public.

"The instructions issued forbid the use of the telegraph for this purpose without payment, and the consumption of time of employes in the Government service during regular hours of business in the circulation of propaganda to hinder the service.

"The distribution of the Postal Telegraph Magazine through the telegraph offices and the use of the wires without payment for this purpose were prohibited. It was expressly stated that no ban was placed upon the circulation or receipt of the magazine by mail, and that there was no desire to interfere with the personal views of employes of the company or the ordinary expression of these views with reference to the Government ownership or operation of the wires; but that the operating organization and personnel of the wire service must not be employed for the purpose of spreading propaganda in obstruction of operation.

"In a report to the Postmaster General on this subject, Mr. A. F. Adams, Federal Manager of the land line operations, states the Postal Magazine has, and for some time past, been used to carry on a propaganda for reflecting the views of the Mackay Companies, and was not being used in connection with the operation of the Postal system on Government account."

The statement of the Wire Board then quotes Mr. Adams as saying in his report:

"I found the wires of the Postal system were being used in violation of the long established operating rules of this system, for the distribution to employes and the public of propaganda directed against Government control and Government operation of wire companies. The Postal Telegraph system operating organization was also being used for the same purpose. I considered such use of the wires in violation of operating rules and such use of the operating organization for the distribution of literature or propaganda of any kind in the interest of any person or corporation was improper and not within the scope of the work to be performed by a wire operating organization under Government control. I therefore directed the issuance by General Manager Bruch of the instructions.

"I call especially to your attention that this order forbids the distribution of literature or propaganda for or against Government operation, and that the specific purpose of the order, as stated therein, was to forbid such free use of the system, wires and operating organizations or the furnishing of any service which is not performed for any customer under established rules and also to direct that in the future all messages must be handled strictly in accordance with the established traffic rates, operating rules and regulations, so that all customers of the system will receive exactly the same service."

"MAD DOG" CRY IN LONDON.

Rabies Panic, First in Years, Due Perhaps to Pets of Soldiers.

LONDON, April 24.—The first panic over rabies in twenty-one years is spreading through England. Several cases developed in the country recently and two were this week discovered in London. The Board of Agriculture issued an order yesterday that all dogs in London and surrounding counties must be muzzled or led, and that none can be taken in or out of these boundaries.

One local firm placed 60,000 muzzles on sale, but a newspaper placard on the streets last night said "700,000 muzzles wanted." Naturally, there has been an unexpected demand, which has swamped the stores and led to charges of profiteering.

Three hundred stray dogs were killed in the lethal chamber, Battersea, yesterday. If a stray dog seems excited and runs fast he is pursued and stoned to death. Some owners are taking their pets there to be put to death by gas, as the most merciful manner in which to deal with the situation. The newspapers assert wealthy women are smuggling their dogs away in railroad trains, and demand a penalty of imprisonment for endangering the lives of others.

There are rumors, but no proofs, that the disease was introduced by soldiers' dogs brought across the Channel in airplanes to evade the standing quarantine against dogs. The past policy of the Government with regard to dogs and rabies has been effective and has freed the country from the danger of hydrophobia.

When a number of cases appeared in 1897 the Board of Agriculture issued a muzzling order for the whole country, in force for two years. A quarantine under which every imported dog must be impounded for six months has been carried out ever since. The annual average death rate of human beings from rabies before 1897 was 20, and there have been virtually no authentic cases since that year.

By a strange coincidence the outbreak of rabies comes at a time when humane societies are making a fight against a vivisection bill which is supported by prominent doctors. The Times, in an editorial, points out that the lymph for the Pasteur cure can be obtained only through vivisection, and that it has been impossible to maintain a Pasteur Institute in England, although the Government sends sufferers from rabies to France to be cured. It calls this attitude hypocrisy.

INVITED TO JOIN LEGION.

Brooklyn and Long Island Men to Caucus on Saturday.

"Delegates from Brooklyn and Long Island to the St. Louis caucus of the American Legion, which will take place on May 8, 9, and 10, will be elected at a district caucus on Saturday night at the 23d Regiment Armory, Atlantic and Bedford Avenues, Brooklyn.

"For the purpose of obtaining a true representation from New York State, the State has been divided into five districts. No. 2 includes Brooklyn and the whole of Long Island, which will be represented at the St. Louis convention by sixteen delegates and sixteen alternates, 60 per cent. of whom are to be enlisted men.

"Any man who has been in service, in either the army or the navy, may enroll in the American Legion by communicating with Sergeant Frederic W. Baldwin, Jr., 123 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn, who is serving as Secretary of the temporary committee."

ROOT SAYS 2.75 BEER IS NOT INTOXICATING

CLOSES CASE FOR BREWER

Root Contends War Prohibition Is Unconstitutional and an Usurpation of State Rights.

Judge A. N. Hand in the Federal District Court yesterday intimated that he would not grant the brewers an injunction against United States Attorney Francis G. Caffey, whom the brewers seek to prevent from proceeding against them after May 1 if they continue the manufacture of beer containing an alcoholic content of 2.75 per cent.

As for Internal Revenue Collector Richard J. McElligott, jointly named with Mr. Caffey as co-defendant by the Jacob Hoffman Brewing Company, Judge Hand gave no inkling as to his state of mind. The intimation of Judge Hand as to his proposed action was conveyed to William D. Guthrie of counsel for the plaintiff at the end of the day's session. The day's proceedings consisted of a three-hour argument by Elihu Root, senior counsel for the brewer and of the rejoinder of Special Assistant Attorney General William C. Fitts. Briefs will be filed by both sides within a week and shortly afterward it is expected that Judge Hand will make known his decision.

One of the arguments used by the complainants in endeavoring to obtain the injunction was that United States Attorney Caffey had made threats as to criminal prosecutions of brewers after May 1. At the end of the hearing Mr. Caffey confronted Mr. Guthrie and demanded to know if he had any proofs as to threats alleged to have been made, and Mr. Guthrie replied that he had not. Previously Mr. Caffey had said that he was not disposed to begin prosecution under the emergency prohibition act until the court had had time to consider the case before it. He would not undertake, however, to make any promise that he would delay prosecution until after the termination of all litigation in the matter.

Mr. Caffey's promise was qualified, however, by the assertion made by Mr. Fitts that producers of the 2.75 per cent. beer will manufacture that commodity after April 30 at their peril.

Sees Act Unconstitutional.

In his argument Mr. Root asserted that the wartime prohibition measure was unconstitutional and was enacted "under false pretense as every man and woman knows." He said that the measure was designed not to aid in carrying on the war, but to bring about a state of prohibition before the date fixed by the writing into the Constitution of the prohibition amendment. Reading the words of the statute forbidding the manufacture after April 30 and the sale after June 30 of "beer, wine, and other intoxicating malt or vinous liquors for beverage purposes," Mr. Root held that the prohibition stood only as against intoxicating liquors in which class, he said, the 2.75 beer manufactured by his clients was not included.

He contended that the injunction was necessary to prevent "the threatened high-handed action" of the Internal Revenue Department, which "would ruin before its owners could obtain a court decree as to their rights," the brewing business of the entire country.

Mr. Root said that the complainant had adjusted his business to the line conforming with the proclamation of President Wilson, in which he drew the line between the beverages containing 2.75 alcohol and those containing more, permitting one and prohibiting the other. To this condition, he asserted, the complainant had adjusted his business and "conformed to that line of policy which is to be made the instrument of their destruction if the construction of these gentlemen is allowed to prevail."

Special Attorney General Fitts declared in his address that the criminal law of the United States could not be enjoined by enjoining the United State Attorney. He charged that the brewers were attempting to be different from other people who have a complete remedy at law; that they were asking to be advised in advance of any action as to what would happen if the law were disobeyed. He charged that the brewers, "no matter how respectable the company they bring with them," were trying to obtain "assurance from the court that they would be safe in violating the law."

Mr. Fitts declared that the act was constitutional. He contended that all beers and wines were included in the prohibition to prevent the opening of "blind tigers" and operation of "bootleggers" through which intoxicants could be sold to soldiers under the guise of nonintoxicating drinks.

MAY 1 ENDS BREWING OF BEER.

Prohibition Includes 2.75 Per Cent., Says Revenue Bureau.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Brewing of beer will stop next Thursday, May 1, under the food conservation act of November 21, 1918, it was said today, at the internal revenue bureau. This prohibition will affect all beer, including that now being produced by many manufacturers, containing 2.75 per cent. alcohol, for which the internal revenue authorities now issue revenue stamps without having decided specifically whether this production violates existing laws and regulations.

Internal Revenue Commissioner Roper today would not discuss the tangled status of beer production and consequently the statement that production of all malt liquors would stop on May 1, was not regarded as final. Regulations heretofore issued by Commissioner Roper provide: "The act of Nov. 21, 1918, provides that no grains, cereals, fruit or other food products may be used in the production of fermented malt liquors after May 1, 1919. * * *."

Officials stated that the 2.75 per cent. beer could hardly be construed as anything other than "fermented malt liquors."

Reports today indicated that many brewers were rushing their output of beer so as to acquire before next Thursday stocks to fill demands between then and June 30, when prohibition becomes effective.

Persons who may be planning to make liquor in their own homes after national prohibition becomes effective on July 1 are to be warned by revenue authorities as to the penalties to which they will be subject. The Internal Revenue Bureau has sent to revenue collectors and agents a summary of laws on the subject and penalties, with the suggestion that they be made known widely.

The schedule of penalties for various violations is as follows:

For failure to register still, $500 penalty, fine of between $100 and $1,000, and imprisonment of between one month and two years; for making liquor in a community where it is prohibited by local or State laws, tax of $1,000; for violating war-time prohibition, $1,000 fine or one year's imprisonment or both; for making a whisky mash or a beer, fine of between $500 and $5,000 and imprisonment of between six months and three years. Beer-making comes within the same prohibitions.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 24.—United States Internal Revenue Collector Gilligan received instructions today from Internal Revenue Commissioner Roper at Washington directing him to issue stamps to brewers making beer of 2.75 per cent. alcoholic strength.

In issuing the stamps the Internal Revenue Department gave out a statement as follows:

"The Government in issuing this order does not acquiesce in the contention of the brewers as to the lawfulness of the manufacture and sale of beer. That question is in the hands of the Department of Justice."

10-Hour Limit for Servants.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 24.—Ten hours is to constitute a day's work for women in domestic service in California, according to the terms of a bill which is before Governor Stephens for his signature. There was opposition to the bill in the lower house, but it passed 43 to 23.

Circulation greater than that of any other New York morning newspaper.—Advt.

Did They Quit?

THEY did not. And they are not quitting now. Neither did you while we were winning the war.

Well, are you going to quit now—when the war is won? Our job isn't finished yet—not by a long shot. And it's a man-sized job, too—if we are going to turn our victory to real account, if we are going to make from it a more prosperous America and a better world to live in.

We have fighting men to bring home and find jobs for. We have our wounded to care for and our crippled to rebuild into confident, successful citizens. There is still work for our fighting men to do in Europe, if we are to gain from our victory the kind of world we have been fighting for.

It's a big job! If we leave it unfinished now — when the end is in sight —Chateau-Thierry and the Meuse will have been fought and won in vain.

There's a bill of some billions of dollars to clean off the slate.— before we can call it a day and enjoy the new world that we have won.

Yesterday's stock market had neither the scope nor the exuberance of that of the previous day, yet it was a big and a busy market, with the total of transactions again running well in excess of 1,000,000 shares, and in the early hours it developed considerable strength. As on a number of previous occasions, however, the early strength was not well maintained, and in the closing hour there were some fairly extensive reactions, as, for instance, when United States Steel common, which had been up to 102, fell below par just before the closing. A number of other prominent issues also sold off rather sharply at the end of the day, and net losses were somewhat more numerous than net gains. It appeared that a good deal of profit-taking had been indulged in, presumably by powerful speculators, and this, probably more than any other one factor, brought about the decline in the standard shares and the irregularity elsewhere.

Among market operators there was a disposition to place great stress on the present rather delicate situation at Paris. In most quarters where market comment was heard there were expressions of the utmost confidence in a peaceable and orderly solution of the Fiume problem. Nevertheless, the market was pronouncedly influenced by the reports which came to hand, and whether big operators took advantage of the developments to sell stocks, or whether the general market following was mildly alarmed, the fact is that the worst declines in values occurred almost simultaneously with the reports of fresh trouble at Paris. In the afternoon an Italian officer was quoted as saying that his Government would occupy the disputed territory, and this served as a signal for a general selling movement.

The Paris reports were not confined to advices concerning the Fiume situation. Japan, it seemed, was again causing some embarrassment, and Wall Street exhibited more than a passing interest in the announcement that the Mexican Minister to France had been withdrawn, following the refusal of Mexico to recognize the Monroe Doctrine. As the financial community views this particular phase of the situation, Mexico seems intent upon causing embarrassment whenever it appears that the United States is engaging in a serious argument with some other nation. A reaction of about 2 per cent. in Mexican Petroleum and a fall in other of the so-called "Mexican barometer" shares were generally attributed to this cause.

Industrial developments were almost ignored. The announced reduction in the dividend of Bethlehem Steel undoubtedly contributed to the heaviness of the two classes of Bethlehem stocks and it is likely that the failure of the representatives of the Railroad Administration and the Industrial Board to find a common ground in the price controversy added to the unsettlement in steel issues, but, on the whole, the stock market paid no more attention to the state of industry than it has been paying for several weeks. The market has been showing a very marked contempt for all industrial changes, and it has been notable on many occasions that the price movement was entirely out of keeping with what was going on in the several trades. Yesterday's trading affair was no exception to the general rule.

In the money market it was said there was a trifle easier tone. Call rates ruled about where they have been all week, but time money was said to be somewhat easier to obtain. In the exchanges, sterling was steady, reflecting no quotable change, but exchange on Paris again moved against that point. Italian rates were substantially unaltered, while rates on the European neutrals were irregular within a very narrow range.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Discuss Steel Situation.

While the steel manufacturers have asserted that the stabilization plan is a dead issue, the Industrial Board and the representatives of the Railroad Administration continue to hold conferences which are apparently productive of no basis of agreement. One was held yesterday in Washington, after which it was announced that nothing further could be done without communicating with Director General Hines of the Railroad Administration, who is now on the Pacific Coast. Meanwhile the steel manufacturers are endeavoring to bolster up business conditions on their own account, but admit that the task appears formidable.

Copper Company Earnings.

The reports of copper companies for last year, many of which have been appearing during the last few days, are testimonial to the unsettled conditions which prevailed during the latter quarter of last year, and which have since continued, with the difference that they have been if anything intensified. A number of companies are reporting deficits after dividend payments, while others show a margin for surplus, which is decidedly below taht of the preceding year. On this basis the outlook for the immediate future is not considered propitious by copper men, who continue to point to the price of copper as being below the cost of production.

The Glamor of Oil.

One of the outstanding features of the present bull market is the attention which has been devoted to the oil stocks. Normally such shares are not in particular prominence but for the present at least, some of the enthusiasm which has always attended speculation in the oils on the London Stock Exchange has been imported to New York. Yesterday two of the low-priced rails, Texas and Pacific and Missouri, Kansas & Texas, were prominent because of the magic in the word oil. The former made a gain of 2 points, crossing 41, and both the preferred and common of the latter closed the day with a fractional gain. At 20¼ M., K. & T. preferred was nearly double the price quoted less than a week ago.

Dividend Reductions.

Evidence of the temper of a rising market is shown in the utter disregard with which the Street looks upon dividend reductions. Most of the copper companies have been reducing disbursements as have many of the industrials. Also further reductions are not considered improbable, yet the action of Directors is only scantily reflected in the stock market. Wall Street's vision may still be centred on the future, which, from all accounts, is of rosy hue.

There is a disposition to believe that when Director General Hines undertakes to place new orders for steel rails for the Railroad Administration he will find the price higher than that which was quoted to the Industrial Board by the manufacturers not long ago. One concern was reported yesterday to be offering Bessemer rails for export at $55 a ton and open-hearth at $57, the price in both cases being an advance of $10 a ton over the stabilization schedule.

Ann Arbor Note Extension.

Official announcement yesterday that arrangements had been made between the Ann Arbor Railroad Company and the War Finance Corporation, for the extension of the company's three-year 6 per cent. notes, due May 1, did not cause particular surprise in the financial district, following the announcement some weeks ago that May 1 requirements of the carriers would be taken care of. The Ann Arbor notes will be extended for two years at 6 per cent., with a cash payment of 2½ per cent., or there may be a cash payment of 20 per cent. of the face amount of the notes and then the payment of the same interest for two years with a similar cash payment of 2½ per cent. on the extended portion of the notes.

There was a sharp break in Russian Government 5½ and 6½ per cent. bonds on the Curb yesterday. The former sold off to 46 from an opening at 50 and closed near the low, while the latter opened at 59 sold off to 55 and regained the majority of its losses before the close. The bonds were offered freely and there was little evidence of supporting buying.

Ohio Cities Gas.

Just what Directors of the Ohio Cities Gas Company will do when they meet to discuss dividends is an unknown quantity among professional traders and those who have speculated in the stock recently, and there was evidence yesterday that some of the faint-hearted were getting rid of their stock. The talk that the dividend may be reduced from a $5 to a $3 basis continues, but has not been proven more than gossip. The stock closed yesterday with a net loss of ½ of a point.

Victory Notes Distributed.

The Federal Reserve Bank has received and is distributing to the banks notes of the smaller denominations of the Victory Loan, many of which will before long be in the hands of the early subscribers.

Rails Turn Dull.

Market observers were not surprised yesterday when the railroad shares, which had been lifted out of their rut by the speculative enthusiasm of the fore part of the week subsided easily and showed the generally dull characteristics which had prevailed in this group just before their recent advance. The exceptions to the rule were the so-called "oil rails," which have attracted a big speculative following.

An Estimate of March Earnings.

Unofficial returns from some of the railroads of the eastern district, indicate that total revenues in March will probably be somewhat less than they were in the corresponding month of last year. Freight revenues are indicated to have been about the same in spite of the 25 per cent. increase in rates which went into effect in 1918, which would tend to show that there has been a decrease in freight traffic in the month of about 20 per cent. Passenger revenues indicate an increase over March 1918, but this is attributed to the increase in passenger rates, and while it appears that operating expenses have not decreased proportionately, it is estimated that March net earnings may be as unfavorable as those of the first two months of the year.

Senator William M. Calder will serve on the National Committee on Amortization of Mortgage Loans of the Savings Bank Section of the American Bankers' Association, according to an announcement made last night.

War Debts and World Trade

THE United States never before had the golden opportunity now within its grasp of securing a large share of the world's trade.

"We have the ships, we have the men, and we'll have the money, too"—when we have taken up the VICTORY LIBERTY LOAN, get our war debts out of the way, and thus put our business men, farmers, manufacturers, exporters and steamship lines in a position to give their undivided attention to business.

The prosperity that world trade can bring the United States will reach into every household in the land.

It will mean bigger factories and more of them, more jobs than there are people looking for them, plenty of money in business for good salaries and wages to everybody on the pay rolls.

Every manufacturing nation is looking forward to the time when its war debts will be paid up and it will be free to go after its share of this world trade.

After subscribing the Victory Loan, the United States will have the lowest debt in respect to its wealth of any great power. But the Victory Loan must be fully subscribed.

THE VICTORY LIBERTY LOAN will probably be the last popular loan you will be asked to subscribe to. Its success will mean that OUR war debts are provided for—that the period of world trade and general prosperity for the people of the United States can begin.

Invest in the
It is Practical Patriotism.

Are You Grateful?

ON the battlefields of France—wherever Yanks served overseas—they gave their all that you might be free—74,000 American boys who loved life and laughter dearly.

For you 200,000 fell wounded at the front—tens of thousands maimed for life.

A million and a quarter other Americans again and again offered their lives for you at Chateau-Thierry, St. Mihiel, in the Argonne and along the Meuse.

Are you grateful? The A. E. F. will answer that question not by the number of flags you wave as it comes marching home, but by the way you take the new Victory Liberty Loan. The A. E. F. is today sizing up the new America, to which it is returning, by its works and not by its shouting.

If there are not more individual subscribers to the Victory Loan than to any previous loan, if it is not more heavily oversubscribed, the A. E. F. will make up its mind once for all that the old saying that republics are ungrateful is true. It will not listen to any excuses—soldiers never do.

It rests with you to show the two million men who fought for you, that you—that America—is grateful.

Subscribe to your utmost to the Victory Loan. It is the only practical way you can demonstrate your gratitude to the entire A. E. F. for what it has done. And it is the least you can do—to lend to the limit to the country for which it has fought to the limit.

SOUTH COMPLAINS TO SHIPPING BOARD

SENATOR SIMMONS BITTER

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Delegations from five Southern ports, representatives of the Governors of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida, and three Senators participated in a spirited hearing before the United States Shipping Board today and charged discrimination in the allocation of ships for foreign commerce. While great congestion continues at the Port of New York, the speakers insisted, the Shipping Board has allocated but one ship to the South Atlantic, and that one is old and unserviceable.

"The South is still a part of this country," shouted Senator Simmons of North Carolina, near the close of an argument, during which he repeatedly pounded the table about which members of the Shipping Board sat. "I say it respectfully, but I say we know our rights and shall insist upon them.

"This board in its work is acting as a Trustee for those who are paying taxes and making shipbuilding possible, and the present system of long railroad hauls and congestion is uneconomic. Why are our ports denied ships when I am informed that recently forty ships have been allocated to private firms to do our business—the business of a section which must ship to New York to export its products?"

Senators Smith of South Carolina and Trammell of Florida also protested against the alleged discrimination in favor of northern ports and supported the plea of the South Atlantic Maritime Corporation for fourteen ships for Latin-American commerce at the ports of Wilmington, Charleston, Brunswick, Savannah, and Jacksonville.

Senator Simmons said he had discussed transportation questions with both Director General McAdoo andthe present head of the Railroad Administration, Director General Hines. He charged that the Shipping Board had not properly co-operated with the Railroad Administration in moving the foreign commerce of the South and relieving congestion both on railroads and at ocean terminals in the northern section. While the war was on, said Senator Simmons, aid from the Railroad Administration was limited because there were no ships except for war supplies and food. Now, he added, the Railroad Administration wants to assist the Southeast, but the Shipping Board refuses ships, although they are being allocated to private concerns in the North.

"I regret to state," said Senator Simmons, "that while the Shipping Board is co-operating with the Railroad Administration up North it is refusing to co-operate down South. We are going to demand our rights. With this great accumulation of ships—you are turning them out all the time—it cannot be said that this failure of co-operation is because of a lack of ships.

"The cotton, lumber, rosin, cement, and other products of the South Atlantic States must be hauled five or six hundred miles to New York, then put on a ship and brought right back past our ports, which are idle and discriminated against. This is not economical administration. We should trade directly with Latin-American countries which are almost just off our shores. The Government asks our farmers to produce foodstuffs, but our nitrates from Chile must go all the way up to New York and then be hauled down the coast on the railroads. It is an indefensible arrangement."

BETHLEHEM CUTS DIVIDEND.

Reduces Payment on "A" and "B" Shares to 8 Per Cent. Yearly.

The Directors of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation yesterday made a cut of ½ of 1 per cent. in the quarterly disbursement on both the "A" and "B" common shares. The dividend declared is 1¼ per cent. regular on both classes of stock and ¾ of 1 per cent. extra, payable July 1 to stock of record June 16. Three months ago the disbursement on the stock was 1¼ per cent. regular and the same amount extra, thus continuing payments on the basis of 10 per cent. a year, a rate which has obtained for some time. The present disbursement places the stock on the basis of 8 per cent. yearly.

Following the meeting of the Directors, Eugene G. Grace, President of the corporation, refused to make any comment on the dividend or on present earnings. The plants of the corporation, he said, were working at about 50 per cent. of capacity.

The reduction in dividend was not unexpected in view of the lack of business which has been apparent in the steel industry for some time. The action on the dividend was only slightly reflected in the market action of the stock. The "A" shares sold off 1⅞ points and the "B" 1⅛.

The distinction between regular and extra dividends was evident in the disbursements of the Bethlehem Corporation for the first time three months ago. When asked then concerning the differentiation President Grace remarked that any inference could be drawn which the statement seemed to imply.

ASK FREIGHT DIFFERENTIALS

New York Industries Want Pre-War Conditions Restored.

Representatives of ten of the most prominent industrial organizations in the metropolitan district met at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday and appointed a committee to confer with the Railroad Administration in an endeavor to bring about a restoration of the pre-war freight rate differentials. It was alleged that under the present system there was an advantage for the Gulf ports over New York and Northern shipping points. Belief was expressed that if a change were not instituted immediately the discrimination would curtail the commerce of the Northern ports.

The following committee was appointed to confer with the Railroad Administration: J. C. Lincoln, Merchants Association; P. W. Moore, Queensborough Chamber of Commerce; Charles J. Austin, New York Produce Exchange; E. J. Tarof, New York Board of Trade and Transportation; John F. Wallace, Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York; Robert Wallace, Jersey City Chamber of Commerce; S. Evans, Jr., Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, and J. C. Fagg, Freight Traffic Service.

'Change Seats Up to $75,000.

Three memberships on the New York Stock Exchange were sold yesterday, the price in each case being $75,000, an advance over the last previous sale of $5,000. The membership of I. Wistar Kendall, deceased, was sold to Daniel A. Loring, Jr.; that of Charles D. Wadsworth, to Walter E. Travers, and that of J. Prentice Kellogg, deceased, to William V. C. Ruxton. A Robert Elmore was elected to membership.

COTTON UP, THEN DOWN.

Paris Rumors Cause Advance and Definite News Brings Relapse.

An early bulge, which later appeared poorly founded, sent yesterday's cotton market up well above Wednesday's closing figures, but a subsequent reaction sent it back again, and in the last hour a further drive against values brought about net losses ranging from 25 to 37 points in the active new style contracts. The market was as irregular as on other recent days and also was again dominated more by speculative interests than by trade interests.

The early rise was based mainly on a supposition that because the Liverpool market behaved rather better than some of the alarmists had expected the situation at Paris was entirely free from the besetting influences which have been causing so much trouble in all markets for the last few weeks. It was calmly assumed that Italy had agreed to the conditions laid down by President Wilson and on fresh speculative buying from Wall Street houses prices rose 30 to 40 points above the levels obtaining at the close of the previous day. This strength continued throughout the morning and until shortly after 1 o'clock. Then, as the day's news advices began to come in from Paris, and it appeared that the situation at the Peace Conference was no better than it had been all along, the market began to slide. At the very top the South began to sell and kept up selling until the price average was back to Wednesday's closing. After that selling became general and many of the early buyers turned sellers.

Trade and weather conditions were somewhat mixed. The weather was reported as more favorable over most of the belt, and this may have had some weight in the afternoon selling. The trade situation, especially at the more important Southern points, was said to be slowing down.

At the close of the day prices were down 25 to 37 points for the active new style months other than May, which was unchanged.

Tennessee Copper Earns $477,512.

The Tennessee Copper and Chemical Corporation reports a surplus after expenses and taxes of $477,512 for last year, equivalent to $1.21 a share, compared with a surplus of $68,978 in the preceding year. During the year the company produced 283,092 tons of sulphuric acid, a new high rate of production. The production of copper was 9,819,838 pounds.

Republic Steel Buys De Forest Plant

Files Motion to Dismiss Action of Consolidated Co., Which Seeks a Higher Rate.

SAYS PROOF IS INSUFFICIENT

Figures on Which Complaint is Based Taken for Inly One Year, He Asserts.

A motion to dismiss the suit of the Consolidated Gas Company, which sought to have the eighty-cent gas law declared unconstitutional and confiscatory and asked for injunctions restraining the city and State authorities from attempting to enforce the law, was filed in the Federal Court yesterday by District Attorney Swann, one of the defendants. The other defendants are the Attorney General and the Public Service Commission.

Mr. Swann alleges that the complaint fails to state sufficient facts to constitute a cause of action; that the eighty-cent gas law is a valid statute; that it is not shown that the rate is confiscatory, and thta the remedy sought should not be applied for in a court of equity.

It is also stated in the motion that although the law has been in force for twelve years the complainant selected as the basis of proof to show that it was confiscatory, receipts and expenditures only during the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1918. It is also charged that expenditures and receipts were bulked together and that no comparison can be made with those of former years because the complaint failed to present the necessary figures.

Mr. Swann alleges that the purpose of the suit is to enable the complainant to charge a rate for gas to consumers that would be unfair, exorbitant, and in excess of the rate found by the United States Supreme Court to be fair and reasonable. The question of jurisdiction is also raised.

The suit was instituted last January, and in the complaint the company alleged that its net income for the fiscal year which closed Oct. 31 last was only $99,241.65, or less than one-fourth of 1 per cent. on ints investment of $69,697,000. It was stated that the company's gross operating revenues for the year from its gas business amounted to $15,764,288.11 and that the cost of manufacturing and distributing its gas, together with taxes and other operating expenses, amounted to $15,665,046.46.

Argument on the motion may be heard within a few days.

YOU don't have to have a good head for figures to know that our Victory cost a lot of money.

For instance—

It's worth more than that, isn't it?

There are still something like 1,560,723 of our soldiers over in Europe. They will stay there for a while—until we get a regular Peace instead of an Armistice. And it's going to cost $200 apiece to bring them home when they finish their job.

That's $312,144,600 more.

13,574 Liberty Motors
19,516 Freight Cars
5,409,000 Blankets
109,271,380 Pounds of Beans

We went about this war in the regular American way. The cost wasn't the principal factor—we were in it to win.

And we did win.

Now we're going to pay the bill in the same American way. That's what the Victory Loan is for.

The Victory Loan as an Investment Opportunity

EVERY consideration of patriotism and duty urges support of the Victory Loan. Yet the Victory Loan offering has features which make it very attractive to individuals and corporations from purely investment considerations.

We have just published a pamphlet which gives information regarding the investment value of Victory Notes. It includes:

A table showing the yields—ranging, for various incomes, from about 4% to nearly 14%—required from taxable investments to give the same net return to individuals as Victory Notes.

A table indicating the yields—ranging from about 4% to nearly 21%—required from taxable investments to give the same net return to corporations as Victory Notes.

This pamphlet will be sent on request, and we shall be pleased to give you any specific information desired. The facilities of our BOND DEPARTMENT are at your disposal without charge.

We invite your subscription.

Loans at 4¾ Per Cent

To facilitate subscriptions to the Victory Loan, we will lend up to 90% of the amount of subscriptions placed with us for the Victory Loan at 4¾% for a period of 90 days, with the privilege of one 90-day renewal.

Y Oil & Gas Company
Par Value $1.00

The Company has established production of oil and gas from 7 wells in Oklahoma and owns diversified leases in the most productive fields of Wyoming and in the Ranger fields of Texas.

Present earnings are about $30,000 monthly and an annual dividend of 6% is being paid. The company has no bonded or other indebtedness and has ample cash reserves.

Increased earnings are to be anticipated because of the new wells being drilled in proximity to productive leases.

COPPER INCOME DECREASES.

A decrease of approximately $11,000,000 in total net income is shown in the annual report of the Utah Copper Company for last year. The operating revenue of the company was $44,525,129, as compared with $48,797,423 in 1917. The total income was $18,945,780. After all charges, there was a balance available for dividends of $18,445,780, or the equivalent of $11.35 a share on the stock as compared with $28,695,495, or the equivalent of $17.66 a share in the preceding year. After payment of $16,244,900 in dividends last year there was a surplus of $2,200,880, as compared with a surplus of $5,140,390, after dividend disbursements of $23,555,105 in the preceding year. The total profit and loss surplus at the close of the year was $50,494,408, or more than double the surplus at the end of 1916.

The balance sheet shows the value of copper in transit to have been $8,709,791, a decrease of nearly $5,000,000 from the report in 1917. The value of securities held by the company increased from $4,869,283 in 1917 to $11,957,489. The cash on hand, placed at $12,424,000, is a decrease of approximately $3,000,000 from the same item in the balance sheet of the preceding year. The reserve for taxes last year was $5,972,721, or more than $1,000,000 increase.

The net cost of the production of copper, after deducting miscellaneous income, including dividends from Bingham & Garfield Railway and deducting the value of gold and silver content, but not including dividends from Nevada Consolidated Copper Company, was 14.53 cents, as compared with 10.99 cents in 1917. The report says that the costs for 1918 were more than double those in 1914.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Selling pressure in heavy volume in the market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange made for net losses from a fraction to more than a point in the general list. This was particularly true of the industrials and specialties. Railroad shares closed steady but quiet. The selling before the close was centered in the standard industrials, and, with the decline in these issues, the remainder of the list sold off sharply. The best prices of the session were around midday, when substantial advances were recorded in the active stocks.

To the Holders of the First Mortgage 5% Bonds of the United Traction and Electric Company

As a number of bondholders have not been able to make deposit of their bonds before April 15, 1919, but have signified their intention of so doing at an early date, the Protective Committee has decided to extend the time and to accept under the Agreement of March 15, 1919, all bonds deposited on or before May 15, 1919.

Deposited bonds should bear March 1, 1919, and subsequent interest warrants. Registered bonds should be accompanied by transfers in blank.

Copies of the Deposit Agreement of March 15, 1919, are available at either of the Depositaries or the Agent, and negotiable receipts will be issued for all bonds deposited.

The interests of the bondholders will best be protected by concerted action, and all bondholders are urgently requested to make immediate deposit of their bonds. Over 50% of the bonds have been deposited.

Please address all communications to the Secretary of the Committee, William P. Goodwin, Treasurer of the People's Savings Bank, Providence, R. I.

International Traction Company

Collateral Trust Four Per Cent. Gold Bonds

NOTICE is hereby given that the undersigned Protective Committee has limited to the close of business on MAY 1, 1919, the time within which bonds of the above-mentioned issue may be deposited under the Protective Agreement, dated December 10, 1918. After MAY 1, 1919, bonds will be received only upon such terms and conditions as undersigned Committee may deem to be just and expedient.

Bonds may be deposited with the GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, Depositary, at 140 Broadway, New York City, the CITY TRUST COMPANY, Agent for the Depositary, at Erie County Bank Building, Buffalo, N. Y., or the FIDELITY AND COLUMBIA TRUST COMPANY, Agent for the Depositary, at Fourth and Main Streets, Louisville, Ky. Depositors will be entitled to receive certificates of deposit issued in their names. Registered bonds must be accompanied by instruments of assignment approved by the Depositary, and coupon bonds must be accompanied by all coupons maturing on or after January 1, 1919.

NOW FINISH YOUR CORPORATION TAX RETURN

THIS AUTHORITATIVE WORK (COPYRIGHT 1919)

1. Shows you the simplest way to analyze and classify cost of goods sold, gross income, Liberty Bond interest, expenses, depreciation, profit or loss, compensation, surplus accounts, adjustments of invested capital, intangible assets, inadmissible assets and tables for computing same;
2. Supplies you with the forms for Supplemental Schedules and Balance Sheets required by Government Official Form 1120, but which are not supplied by the Government;
3. Gives an accurate and ingenious formula for computing the Corporation Tax.

George C. Holton, Esq., of the New York Bar, an expert in Tax Law, and Anselm P. Anderson, accountant, have prepared a complete set of twenty-four Schedules and Balance Sheets, arranged in accordance with Government requirements.

The entire set is suitably indexed, printed in triplicate, and bound in book form, perforated so that any or all the forms may be detached. This provides an original to file with return, a copy to retain, and a triplicate for working sheet purposes.

Sold to Midvale Steel & Ordnance Co., L. E. Waterman Fountain Pen Co., Thomas A. Edison, Inc., Ansonia Clock Co., U. S. Industrial Alcohol Co., Corporation Trust Company, Haskins & Sells, Liberty National Bank of New York, and thousands of other banks, accountants, lawyers, corporations, etc. Suitable for any corporation, large or small.

Modern Factory For Sale

The Poughkeepsie Chamber of Commerce desires to get in immediate communication with a large corporation employing male labor exclusively that could utilize 125,000 square feet of floor space of the most modern factory construction.

The plant in question will shortly be offered for sale at a very attractive figure. No industry employing female labor will be considered and only those employing the highest class of skilled mechanics.

The opportunity is also exceptional for foreign trade development. City is seventy-two miles New York City; five means of traffic transportation. Principals only.

Rising Cost of Operating Coal Mines

¶ We undertake the management of properties on the same principles we have employed in operating our own mines through more than thirty years of unbroken success. We manage mines with or without a separate agreement for the sale of the output.

¶ We do more than this—we finance mines, appraise coal lands, do engineering and supervise construction. We also serve as agent for the purchase of the fuel supply for manufacturers, railroads and dealers.

¶ An inquiry will bring an explanation of our service.

3. $518,000 principal amount of the First Mortgage Gold Bonds of The Niagara Falls and Suspension Bridge Railway Company, due July 1, 1923, bearing interest at 6%, secured by mortgage or deed of trust to The Fidelity Trust & Guaranty Company of Buffalo, as Trustee, dated May 10, 1893.
4. $22,500 principal amount of the First Mortgage Gold Bonds of Niagara Falls Whirlpool and Northern Railway, due July 1, 1923, bearing interest at 6%, secured by mortgage or deed of trust to The Fidelity Trust & Guaranty Company of Buffalo, as Trustee, dated July 24, 1894.
5. $40,000 principal amount of Mortgage Bonds of the Tonawanda Electric Railroad Company, due April 1, 1927, bearing interest at 6%, secured by mortgage or deed of trust to John Cunneen, as Trustee, dated April 1, 1895.
6. $4,344,000 principal amount of Refunding and Improvement Five Per Cent Gold Bonds of International Railway Company, due November 1, 1962, secured by mortgage or deed of trust to Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, dated November 1, 1912.

The said securities will be offered for sale in one lot and as an entirety, and will be sold to the highest and best bidder, subject, however, to the conditions herein stated.

No bid will be received unless the bidder shall have first deposited with the Trustee or the Auctioneer fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) in cash, or a certified check for that amount drawn upon a bank in the City of New York, payable to the order of the Trustee, as security for the completion of the purchase of said securities in accordance with his bid and these terms of sale.

The Trustee will give appropriate receipts for all deposits so made and will immediately after the sale return to the unsuccessful bidders any deposits made by them.

The successful bidder will be required to sign a memorandum of his purchase at the time and place of the sale. The purchase price will be payable without further notice at the office of the Trustee, No. 140 Broadway, New York City, within seven days after the sale, the deposit of the successful bidder being applicable in part payment thereof. The securities will be delivered upon payment of the purchase price in full.

If the successful bidder shall fail to complete the purchase of said securities in accordance with his bid and these terms of sale, such bidder shall be liable to the Trustee for any loss or damage resulting from his failure to so complete said purchase, including the expenses of any resale of said securities, and the Trustee may hold the deposit of such bidder and apply the same to the payment of any such loss or damage.

The successful bidder, for the purpose of making settlement or payment for the securities, will be entitled to turn in Collateral Trust Four Per Cent. Gold Bonds of International Traction Company and any matured and unpaid coupons thereof, in order that there may be credited as paid thereon the sums payable out of the net proceeds of such sale to the holder of such bonds or coupons, as his ratable share of such net proceeds, after allowing for the proportion of the total purchase price required to be paid in cash to pay the costs and expenses of the sale, or otherwise; and the successful bidder will be credited on account of the purchase price of the securities with the sums payable out of such net proceeds on such bonds and coupons so turned in.

The Trustee or any holder or holders of said Collateral Trust Four Per Cent. Gold Bonds of International Traction Company, in person or by attorney or agents, may bid for and purchase said securities.

The Trustee may from time to time adjourn the sale by announcement at the time and place fixed for the sale or for such adjourned sale, and may hold such sale as so adjourned without further notice.

Date, New York, April 24, 1919.

JAPAN MAY LEAD IN COTTON TEXTILES

John Skinner Tells Manufacturers That Competition May Become Serious.

SUGGESTS TARIFF REFORMS

George W. Norris Says America Has Entered Upon New Sphere of World Trade.

The fact that Japan may soon wrest the supremacy in cotton textiles from the United States was presented yesterday at the second day's session of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, at the Hotel Biltmore. In addition to the future of the industry, speakers discussed the present-day problems of labor, production and markets.

The growing danger of Japanese competition was pointed out in the report of the Committee on Tariff and Taxation, presented by John Skinner, as Chairman. It read in part:

> It having been announced that, as soon as Congress assembles, the Ways and Means Committee of the House will begin a general revision of the tarif, this committee is making preparations to see that the interests of the textile industry are placed before that body in a fair, impartial and informing manner. Looking at the conclusions of certain investigations now in progress, it may recommend that representatives of the association qualified for the task be immediately dispatched to Japan to study the methods and labor costs of that country, which promises at no distant date to become a serious competitor of American mills, not only in foreign fields, but also in our home markets.
> It is the belief of the members of this committee that any revision of the tariff undertaken at this time, while assuring adequate protection to both American capital and American labor, should also be so fair and just in its provision as to win the approval of all classes. We earnestly recommend that in its present meeting the National Association approves this view as the matured conviction of the textile industry as a whole.

Discussing American ships for American goods, George W. Norris, Federal Farm Loan Commissioner, pointed out the importance of developing American shipping. He said that Amrica had entered a new sphere of world trade due to the war, and that the new responsibility carried with it obligations to see that this mission of supplying the world was not done only half-way. He urged that the nation could not safely assume or satisfactorily perform this obligation without a strong navy, and that there could be no such thing as a stronger navy without an adequate reserve of transports and supply vessels.

Mr. Norris also discussed briefly Mr. Hurley's proposal for the sale of the merchant ships owned by the Government, and, while expressing himself as being opposed to either Government ownership or Government operation as a general principle, suggested that the mere operation of such a large addition to our merchant marine involved grave financial problems.

An address prepared by Allen Walker, Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, was read by A. H. Baldwin of the Foreign Trade Bureau of the Guaranty Trust Company. The paper, on the subject of "Banking Facilities as the Key to Trade Expansion," was in part as follows:

> There is no doubt that for a long time to come there will be business for Americans to do. In more than one sense this land of ours is the hope of the world, but we must remember that it is a present hope. He who would be successful must watch closely the currents of trade as they reshape themselves after this war. There will be a shifting of the strategic trade centres of the world:
> The rearrangement of the highways of the sea, which began with the opening of the Panama Canal and which was temporarily checked at the outbreak of the war, will be carried out. This would mean leadership for the United States, with its resources of men, materials, and money, such as no nation from the beginning of time possessed. It means a horizon as broad as the earth. But its realization will come only after we have successfully fought our way to victory.

Other speakers, yesterday included Harry F. Atwood of Chicago, Dr. Hollis Godfrey, President of the Drexel Institute, Philadelphia; B. M. Anderson, Jr., of the National Bank of Commerce, New York City; O. P. Austin of the National City Bank, and W. Frank Shove of Fall River, President of the association.

The convention will close tonight with a victory dinner at the Biltmore. Among the speakers will be Francis P. Garvan, Alien Property Custodian, who will tell of the hidden side of the war; Colonel James H. Perkins, and Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick.

Greene-Cananea Passes Dividend.

Directors of the Greene-Cananea Copper Company yesterday passed the quarterly dividend upon which action was to be taken. Three months ago a dividend of $1.50 a share was declared, and for some time prior to that the quarterly payment was $2 a share. After the meeting one of the Directors said that the dividend had been passed to conserve funds.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Western Pacific Railroad Company has been authorized by the Director General of Railroads to pay a 1 per cent. dividend on its preferred stock, in lieu of the dividends to have been paid April 1.

James Speyer has been elected a Director of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway Company, succeeding Horace E. Andrews. Samuel E. Kliner has been elected to represent the English interests in the company.

The National Bank of South Africa, Ltd., has added $1,000,000 to its reserve, thereby making it $5,250,000. It will declare a dividend of 6 per cent. and a bonus of 1 per cent.

The Registrar and Transfer Company has been appointed transfer agent for the stock of Underwood & Underwood.

CITY HEADS CONFER ON FAMINE IN FLATS

TO ASK A SPECIAL SESSION

Gov. Smith to be Appealed To for Legislation—Three Bodies Hold Hearings on Rents.

With the rent profiteering and apartment shortage situation growing more serious every day, Mayor Hylan and several city officials decided at a meeting in his office yesterday afternoon that radical action would have to be taken without any further delay to prevent the situation from becoming really critical. It was decided to start with a public mass meeting, at which the Mayor will preside, to consider various remedies suggested and to listen to new suggestions.

It was also decided to call on Governor Smith to summon a special session of the Legislature especially for the purpose of passing housing legislation if it appeared from the facts brought out at the mass meeting and from other sources that this might be advantageous. The time and place of the mass meeting, it was said, would be announced later.

One suggestion being considered by the Mayor is the housing of homeseekers who are unable to obtain city apartments in the buildings of the Naval Reserve cantonment in Pelham Bay Park, provided they will be vacated in the near future.

Another incident in the situation yesterday was the first examination of landlord and tenant by Commissioner of Accounts David Hirschfield. His interest in the matter is considered one liable to prove very potent in reaching the "conscience" of the rent profiteer. He is not connected officially with the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, headed by Chairman Nathan Hirsch, but his office is next door in the Municipal Building.

May Lead to Higher Taxes.

Commissioner Hirschfield's idea is that if an apartment house nets today considerably more in rents than it netted two years ago, that is prima facie evidence that the value of the property itself has materially increased; therefore, he argues, its assessments should also be increased and the landlord should pay higher taxes.

One landlord spent several uncomfortable hours answering questions put by the Commissioner yesterday, and was faced at the hearing by one of his tenants whose rent had been raised since last July from $45 to $70 a month. A landlord present was overheard to remark that it began to look as though money might be saved by reducing rents.

There also was a hearing by the Welfare Committee of the Board of Aldermen at the City Hall, and the Advisory Council of the Housing Commission of the New York State Reconstruction Commission, which is headed by Abram I. Elkus, held a meeting late in the afternoon in the Hall of Records to consider reports based on its canvass of housing conditions and the recommendations to be made to Governor Smith based thereon.

Attending the Mayor's conference were Corporation Counsel William P. Burr, Chairman Hirsch, John P. Leo, head of the Board of Standards and Appeals, and the Mayor. Corporation Counsel Burr returned to the Mayor's office later in the afternoon with an additional suggestion, which it was said later was being considered. This one, if carried to its conclusion, would introduce the army billet and cantonment methods as a solution of New York's housing problem. It was that a survey should be made of all the city-owned properties in and near Manhattan with a view to repairing vacant buildings and erecting temporary structures or barracks on vacant lots until the problem had been solved through other means.

The city owns many buildings partially or completely abandoned, and now only awaiting sale, Mr. Burr pointed out. These include former office buildings, now bare and with broken windows and doors in some cases but capable of being repaired at relatively moderate cost; houses beneath or near bridges across the East River, that had to be condemned when land was acquired for the bridge piers, and a miscellaneous group of other buildings for one reason or another partially or wholly vacant.

Many of them were never intended for residences, of course, but that was equally true of hundreds of the buildings in which people lived abroad during the war. People could at least camp out under their roofs, it was pointed out. In addition there are many acres of vacant lots owned by the city, and Mr. Burr suggested that buildings patterned after the quickly constructed and relatively cheap buildings thrown up by the Government at the various cantonments could be erected on these lots for temporary use.

More Than 75,000 Apartments Needed.

It is estimated that 75,000 more apartments are needed than are available in the city. At the Mayor's conference the belief was expressed that 30,000 of these could have been procured through the passage of Senate Bill 133 upon which the session of the Legislature just closed failed to act in its rush to adjourn. It was introduced by Senator William C. Dodge, at the instance of John P. Leo, and was backed by the Tenement House Commissioner, the Fire Commissioner, Real Estate Board, State Federation of Labor, Building Trades Employers' Association and various taxpayers' associations, it was said.

This bill provided for amending the Tenement House act so as to make it possible for many private dwelling houses in the city to be turned into three or four family apartment houses. A large number of these, it was said, are now capable of paying only a very poor rate on their investment, whereas if they could be altered they might both help toward solving the problem and become paying investments.

It is for the purpose of getting this, and possibly other legislation, acted upon, that the special session will be sought. It was also said that Federal action would be sought if it developed that this might help, and it was suggested that official efforts be made to bring landlords and tenants together on the question of leases to prevent rent raising from month to month.

Mayor Hylan sent out letters last evening, as a start in procuring the information needed to carry out the idea of using city property for "billets," to John Korb, Secretary to the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, and to Rear Admiral James H. Glennon, Commandant of the Third Naval District. The letter to Mr. Korb asked him to supply immediately a detailed list of all city property with unoccupied buildings which could be improved to accommodate tenants. The letter to Admiral Glennon was as follows:

Rear Admiral James H. Glennon, Commandant, Third Naval District, 280 Broadway, New York.

Dear Admiral: Will you be good enough to advise me as soon as possible when the buildings and land held by the Navy Department in Pelham Bay Park will be unoccupied? The unfortunate position in which many of the people of this city find themselves because of rent profiteers makes it necessary for the city to find available space where families can be provided with housing at a reasonable rental, and I am anxious to do all I can in this connection without delay. Sincerely yours,

Novelty Sweater Good Seller.

In comparison with the usual business done on staple and fancy goods in the women's sweater line, novelties at the present time are getting more than their share of orders. One number that is said to have had an exceptionally good call is a coat style model, open in the front and caught with a belt. The collar is carried right down the sweater in an exaggerated lapel effect and is made with a satin facing, which is embroidered.

Style Points to Full Dresses.

The dress styles that are among the early offerings of the manufacturers for the Fall season give indications that full and puffed-out shapes will be featured. The designers expect that when conditions are settled the wide-skirted models will be well received. The initial orders being placed by buyers have seemed to favor the full-fashioned styles, and if the sentiment continues the manufacturers believe these designs will feature the new offerings.

The Fall Silk Demand.

While some filling-in orders continue to be received by the silk manufacturers for Spring and Summer goods, the Fall business is well under way. At present it is a little early for the silk makers to determine just what fancies will be good for the next season, as the demand so far has centred mostly on staples. From present prospects, satins and satin-faced goods seem to be in for a heavy run, although taffetas are showing increased strength. The buying is somewhat of the same character as last season, and commitments, though large in the aggregate, are scattered in a number of purchases.

More Material in Suits.

While the exceptionally large orders placed for men's wear fabrics for Fall clothing cannot be traced altogether to the fact, the styles that are being featured for the next season contain, as a rule, more material. Particularly is this true, it was pointed out, in view of the cloth economies that were carried out during the war under Government regulations. The return of patch pockets and the introduction of flare skirted coats have increased the expenditure of material by an appreciable percentage.

Diversity of Men's Styles.

If the styles that are being launched for next Fall prove popular, as the manufacturers have every reason to believe they will, there will be considerably less hesitation in the trade in taking up novelty designs. It has been the contention of many of the clothiers for some time that men's styles did not show or offer enough diversity. These contenders, it was remarked, had an eye on the profits in the women's wear lines due to the wide latitude permitted the designer. The results, therefore, of the next season will be watched very carefully, to see if the design of clothing has entered a new era.

Glove Prices Will Stay High.

Leading factors in the glove trade assert that high prices for this merchandise are inevitable for some time to come and that if any break does come it will not be before the next Spring season. The reasons advanced for this are that the marked shortage in glove leathers, particularly the better ones, continues, and that these materials will not be plentiful for some time. Even if they were to be had in quantity it was said yesterday, the shipping situation is such that it is not easy to get them here. The same thing applies to make-up lines of imported gloves. Abroad, as well as here, higher labor and general production costs are having a bullish effect on prices, and little relief in this direction is expected in the immediate future.

Gray Goods More Active.

Buyers of gray goods got busy in the local market yesterday, with the result that closing prices on a number of constructions were higher than the opening quotations. All of the 38½-inch 64-60s that were available at 11½ cents were cleaned up, and some sales of Eastern goods of this construction were put through at 11¾ cents, which is now the general asking figure. Business was done on 38½-inch 60-48s at 9½ cents. For 39-inch 80 squares 17 cents was paid, while for 68-72s 13 cents was paid in a large way. Now the asking price for them is 13¼ cents. In the sheeting end of the market, 13 cents was paid for four-yard 56-60s and 12 cents for 37-inch four-yard 48 squares. Fine goods continued active and firm. Sateens and twills met a good demand at prices that are about 2 cents a yard higher than at this time last week.

Raw Silk Prices Firmer.

With buying active, both for American and home consumption, prices have taken on a firmer tone in the Yokohama raw silk market, and are now quoted on the basis of 1,630 yen for Sinshiu No. 1. Visible stock has been reduced to 14,000 bales, and supplies of the best silks are very small. Reports received from Canton by H. L. Gwalter & Co. of this city say that American buyers have been active there and that holders are very firm in their views as to prices. Stocks of "short reels" are reported exhausted. Shanghai reports the market there as unchanged. The same situation prevails at Milan, but Lyons tells of more business. The local market is strong and advancing, the call for Japanese silks, both for immediate and future deliveries, being heavy.

All Ready for Lace Week.

Plans have been completed by many of the stores interested for lace and embroidery week, which begins tomorrow, and present indications point to marked success for the plan. After many false starts, wholesalers say that the revival of this merchandise is actually under way and that business will continue to improve as time goes on. In support of this belief, it is asserted that never before have laces been employed in so many different ways at one time. Not only are they being used as trimmings for various under and outer garments, for neckwear, &c., but they are also being made use of by the millinery trade in the new hats for Summer wear. Looking ahead, wholesalers predict the best Fall season that laces have seen for several years. Last Fall the signing of the armistice came too late to save the retail season, but this year a genuine rennaissance of laces is confidently expected.

Bleached Cottons Going Up.

The rising market for gray cottons, which is furnishing a substantial basis for advances in bleached goods, is playing havoc with the feelings of wholesale buyers, who stayed out of the market earlier in the year in the hope that the bottom had not yet been reached by the last-named fabrics. The result is that they have been caught, for not only have several of the leading brands been advanced in a fairly substantial way, but at least one of them has been put on an "at value" basis. But, what is worst of all from the viewpoint of these buyers, there are strong possibilities of still further increases in bleached cloths unless the unforeseen occurs in gray goods. It was said here yesterday that numerous attempts to beat these advances are now being made.

ENGLAND LIFTS TRADE BAN.

Machine Tools and Parts Among the Imports Now Admitted.

LONDON, April 24.—The Board of Trade has removed restrictions from the importation from neutral and allied nations of twenty-one classes of materials, the most important of which are machine tools and parts.

The order also provides for restricted imports of carpets, cotton duck, coal, rolled steel, ball bearings and retainers and plated and gilt wares.

Dealers Hold Much Bituminous Coal

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Stocks of bituminous coal in the hands of industrial concerns, public utilities, and the iron and steel industries declined 25 per cent., or about 8,000,000 tons, in the three months from Jan. 1 to April 1, 1919, the Fuel Administration announced today. Retail coal dealers had 40 per cent. less on April 1 than on Jan. 1, but this amount was one-fourth as great as their sales for the first three months of the year. It was stated that such stocks were regarded as large for April and were the result of the large accumulations last Summer and Fall and the small demand during the months of open Winter weather.

Ask More Ships for South Atlantic.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Claims of South Atlantic ports to a greater share of the nation's foreign trade were presented to the Shipping Board today by a delegation composed of Southern Senators, State representatives, and the South Atlantic Maritime Corporation. It was stated in this connection that interior cities in the Southeast were eager to establish direct relations with Pan America through the starting of regular steamship service from ports near them.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Elaborate plans have been made for the beefsteak dinner of the Garment Salesmen's Association, which will be held at Reisenweber's on Monday night. Particular stress is being laid on the entertainment features.

Joseph Slater, who for many years was associated with Rosenthal Brothers, has begun the manufacture of silk waists. He is doing business at 244 Fifth Avenue under the trade style of Slater & Slater, Inc.

Eleven fur houses have added their displays to those on the Fur Floor of the Bush Terminal Sales Building. They are Bossak & Co., Inc., Dattelbaum Bros., Fritz & Co., Goldberg & Goodman, the Greenberg Fur Company, J. H. Herbst & Co., Louis Katzman, Inc., Kruskal & Kruskal, Inc., Spirer Bros., Kaufman & Oberleder, Inc., and the R. E. Weiss Company, Inc.

WAR ARTICLE BY PHILIP GIBBS.

Now that the censorship has been raised, Philip Gibbs, famous war correspondent, will contribute next Sunday, April 27, an article on the reasons why the Germans failed on the western front. This article will be the fifth of the series of articles by Mr. Gibbs now running in the Sunday edition of The New York Times.—Advt.

HOADLEY'S EVIDENCE FAILS TO CLEAR CASE

REPORT OF DEATH DELAYED

Undertaker's Assistant Fails to Explain Embalming of Body Before Seeking Permit.

The gas fixtures in the room in which Mrs. Fannie C. Hoadley died of gas poisoning ten days ago at her home, 18 East Eighty-second Street, will be inspected this afternoon by Dr. Charles Norris, Chief Medical Examiner, and his assistant, Dr. Schwartz, and Assistant District Attorney Dineen, head of the Homicide Bureau. It was said that the testimony of Joseph H. Hoadley, President of the International Power Company and the Hoadley-Knight Coal Mining Machine Company, concerning the circumstances of the death of his wife, had not assisted the authorities in clearing up certain features of the case.

When Mr. Hoadley appeared as a witness at the office of the medical examiner and had objected to the decision that Mrs. Hoadley had committed suicide, it was observed that he had a wound or cut in his forehead. It was then learned that when the butler had told Mr. Hoadley that his wife was dying he had hurried toward her room, but fell on the stairs and was injured by striking against the railing. He contended that Mrs. Hoadley had died by accident, as reported by Dr. J. A. Burke.

Mrs. Hoadley died at 10 o'clock in the morning, but the records of the police and the Medical Examiner's office, it is said, show that reports of it were not received until night. Police Captain John H. Ayres of the Bureau of Missing Persons, questioned yesterday as to the reason for Hoadley's telephone message and request to call at his home on the day Mrs. Hoadley was found asphyxiated, replied that he had not asked Mr. Hoadley about it. Joseph H. Shipley, desk man for the Frank E. Campbell Company, undertaker at 1,970 Broadway, told the chief examiner that he was unable to explain the alleged law violation in embalming the body of Mrs. Hoadley before a certificate had been applied for to the Medical Examiner, which could not be issued until an investigation of the circumstances of her death had been made.

Assistant District Attorney Dineen, who has been present at the entire investigation at the office of the Chief Medical Examiner, will report to District Attorney Swann today, it was said, who will determine if there is sufficient evidence based on the testimony at the inquiry warranting him to proceed against any one concerned.

Hungary Sent 3,437,776 to War.

Of the 3,437,776 men that Hungary put into the field during the world war, 471,193 were killed, 590,000 wounded, 382,282 made prisoners and 408,000 recorded as missing, according to a statement made by Minister of War Böhm before a session of the Budapest Workmen's Council on Feb. 25, and reported in the Vienna Arbeiter-Zeitung. Herr Böhm said that about half of those reported as missing could be counted as dead, and he also stated that the losses of the last Italian offensive, which were estimated at 400,000 in killed, wounded and prisoners, were not included in his statement, as the exact figures were not yet available. He said the army had foodstuffs consumed had cost about $1,400,000,000.

REPORT 332 KILLED IN KOREAN RIOTS

WASHINGTON, April 24.—An official statement by the Japanese Embassy today characterizing as exaggerated current reports of cruel measures employed by the Japanese authorities in suppressing Korean disturbances, says one person was killed and six wounded in outbreaks at Seoul, and that the total number of casualties in the provinces has been 331 killed and 735 wounded. The statement follows:

"The exaggerated character of the current reports about the cruelty of the measures employed by the Japanese authorities in suppressing the Korean disturbances is more than borne out by an official dispatch reaching the Japanese Embassy today.

"Only one person was killed and six wounded in Seoul from the start of the disturbance until very recently. The number of casualties in the provinces is all told 331 killed and 735 wounded. That is on account of the fact that the riots in the provinces were more truculent and extravagant than those in the capital. In many instances the police and gendarmes were forced to resort to arms to prevent the destruction of and incendiary attacks on the offices and residences of provincial officials, schools, post offices, and means of communication, as well as in self-defense where the mobs were strong enough to attack them.

"Up to date there have been four killed and 76 wounded among the Government forces, and one killed and 24 wounded among the Japanese and Keorean officials. Perfect care is being taken by the authorities, aided by the Red Cross, of all the wounded, who have been taken to charity and official hospitals in the provinces. The charge that churches, schools, and houses of riotous meetings were destroyed by the authorities is entirely unfounded and in no case have the leaders of the disturbance been put to torture.

The statement of the embassy that only 331 persons had been killed and 735 wounded was declared "incredible" in a statement issued tonight by Dr. Lyngman Rhee, who said:

"I have in my possession private and official cable dispatches from Shanghai, Peking, and elsewhere stating that several thousand Koreans had been killed up to April 12."

BELGIAN CREDIT OPENED.

Banks Called Upon for First $10,000,000 of $50,000,000.

The first instalment of $10,000,000 on account of the $50,000,000 acceptance credit arranged here for the benefit of Belgian merchants has been called for by the New York managers of the syndicate and will be available probably today. This is the credit which was created about a month ago by a group of banks headed by the Guaranty Trust Company, and including the National City Bank, the National Bank of Commerce, and J. P. Morgan & Co. It was said yesterday that probably the first instalment would be advanced by these institutions; the balance of $40,000,000, which is later to be made available for Belgium, will be forthcoming from the other members of the syndicate, which includes banks in many parts of the country.

It was also learned yesterday that the Belgian Government has entered into a contract with Prentiss M. Gray, formerly Director at Brussels for the Commission for Relief of Belgium, under the terms of which Mr. Gray will have charge of the buying of supplies for Belgium in this country and the shipment of such supplies abroad. It was said that Mr. Gray will have at his disposal nearly 90,000 tons of shipping at the outset, and it is understood the United States Shipping Board has tentatively agreed to turn over approximately 250,000 tons additional. The latter is expected to be available about May 1.

For purposes of convenience Mr. Gray will form a new shipping company, to be known as P. M. Gray & Co., Incorporated. Mr. Gray will have associated with him Alexander Hemphill, Chairman of the Board of the Guaranty Trust Company, and William B. Walsh. The offices of the company will be at 115 Broadway.

HORSES TO FEED EUROPE.

PIERRE, S. D., April 21.—A corporation to dispose of "light" animals to European dealers in horse meat has been formed by South Dakota horse dealers. For many years light horses have been of little value to South Dakota ranchers. The plan is said to have been discussed at Washington as one means of providing the poorer classes in Continental Europe with meat.

Those behind the corporation say the American market has shown little interest in the horse meat industry.

U. S. MARSHAL'S NOTICE.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that Lee's Towing Line, Inc., chartered owner of the steamtug Herman Lee, has filed a petition for the limitation of its liability for any loss, damage or injury arising out of the collision claimed to have occurred between the schooner Cora F. Cressy, which was in tow of the steamtugs Herman Lee and Maren Lee and the barge Cumberland on or about the 12th day of April, 1917; value of the vessel and freight $8,000.

All persons claiming damages because of any such loss, destruction, damage or injury, must prove their claims before Roger B. Wood, Esq., Commissioner, at his office, No. 87 Wall Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on or before the 19th day of May, 1919, or be defaulted.

THOMAS D. McCARTHY,
United States Marshal, S. D. N. Y.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The disturbance over Western Lake Erie Wednesday night has moved to New England, and high pressure now prevails to the westward as far as the Rocky Mountains. West of the Mountains pressure is low, with the centre of disturbance over the Northern Plateau.

Low temperatures continue in the Northwest, and it is decidedly colder in the Plains States, the Central Valleys, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee, the lake region, and the Middle Atlantic States, with temperatures from 10 to 28 degrees below the seasonal average. The lowest temperature reported during Thursday was 8 degrees above zero, at White River, Canada, while light snows were quite general in the lake region. It is also colder in the Middle and Southern Plateau region and the Pacific States, with temperatures below the seasonal average in the last-named section.

In addition to the light snows in the Lake region there were rains in New England and the Middle Atlantic States, Western Missouri, and Kansas, and scattered showers in extreme Northwestern Texas, Colorado, Idaho, and Washington. Elsewhere the weather was fair.

Showers are probable by Friday night or Saturday in the Lower Ohio Valley, Tennessee, and northern portions of the East Gulf States. Elsewhere in this forecast district fair weather will prevail Friday and Saturday.

It will be colder Friday in New England, in the eastern portions of the Middle Atlantic States, in the South Atlantic States except Florida, and northern and central portions of the East Gulf States, while over the remaining districts east of the Mississippi River, low temperatures will continue, although with some moderation Saturday.

Storm warnings are displayed on the Atlantic Coast from Boston to Norfolk and on Lake Ontario.

FORECAST TODAY AND SATURDAY.

New Jersey—Fair and colder Friday. Saturday, fair; not quite so cold in the interior.

Northern New England—Clearing and colder Friday. Saturday, fair.

TO CREDITORS OF BAY STATE STREET RAILWAY COMPANY WHO HAVE PRESENTED OR SHALL PRESENT THEIR CLAIMS IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE PROVISIONS OF THE DECREE OF MARCH 11, 1919:

Notice is hereby given that creditors of Bay State Street Railway Company who on the eleventh day of March, 1919, had presented, or who thereafter have presented or shall present, their claims in accordance with the provisions of Article Thirteenth of the decree entered on that date in the District Court of the United States for the District of Massachusetts in the Consolidated Cause, entitled The Archibald McNeil & Sons Company v. Bay State Street Railway Company, in Equity, No. 834, and who have claims subordinate in lien and inferior in equity to the Refunding First Mortgage dated July 1, 1904, from Boston & Northern Street Railway Company to Adams Trust Company (American Trust Company, successor), or to the Refunding First Mortgage dated July 1, 1904, from Old Colony Street Railway Company to Old Colony Trust Company, may, subject to such regulations and requirements not inconsistent with the provisions of said decree as the Reorganization Managers from time to time shall establish, participate in said plan and agreement by filing with Old Colony Trust Company, Boston, Mass., Depositary for that purpose, on or before April 18, 1919, or in case of creditors who shall hereafter present their claims as aforesaid, within seven days after such presentation, a written declaration of their desire to participate in said plan and agreement accompanied by such data, information and assignments of their claims as shall be required by the Reorganization Managers all in such form as shall be required by the Reorganization Managers, and upon the filing of such written declaration and other papers shall receive therefor certificates of deposit of said Depositary in form approved by the Reorganization Managers, upon the acceptance of which they shall be entitled to participate in and shall be bound by the provisions of such plan and agreement, subject, however, to the right of the Reorganization Managers in their discretion at any time, either before or after the acceptance of the assignment of any such claim or the issue of certificates of deposit in respect thereof, to require that such claim be judicially established or determined by arbitration as a condition precedent to participation or to further participation in said plant and agreement. No rights under such plan and agreement shall accrue in respect of any such claims unless so deposited. If any such claim is non-assignable, the holder thereof may, nevertheless, participate in said plan and agreement in the manner aforesaid, substituting for an assignment of the claim such other documents in respect thereof as the Reorganization Managers shall require.

For further information reference is made to said plan and agreement, particularly at pages 15 and 21. A copy of said plan and agreement will be sent upon application to the Old Colony Trust Company, Boston, Mass., Depositary.

PRIZE FOR BROOKLYN BABES AT MILK SHOW

WOMEN HEAR FOOD TALKS

Prizes Will Be Given to Manhattan Children Today — To Give "Financial Sensation" Luncheon.

Brooklyn Day was observed yesterday at the Milk and Dairy Farm Exposition in the 71st Regiment Armory, and, to quote the press representative, it was the day on which Brooklyn's beautiful, bouncing babies received gold pieces and certificates from Health Commissioner Dr. Royal S. Copeland. Eight babies received awards, $20 gold pieces and certificates going to the Borough winners in each class and $5 in gold and certificates going to the district winners.

The competitions, which were open to all the children of the city, were held in Brooklyn several days ago. The little ones were brought to the health stations and there, after thorough physical examinations, were judged as to their physical perfections. They received their awards yesterday, and a large crowd gathered at the show to inspect the babies and watch Dr. Copeland hand out the certificates.

Gladys Rosen, 6 months old, of 274 South Second Street, was judged the best baby under 2 years of age in the Borough of Brooklyn contest. Alice Wolfe, 1,613 Eastern Parkway, was the Borough winner in the class for children from 2 to 6 years of age. Alice is 2 years and 6 months old. Brooklyn Borough was divided into three districts. The following children are the district winners: District No. 1—Under 2 years of age, Elizabeth Gammon, 191 Court Street, 15 months; 2 to 6 year class, Edward Wade, 332 Fifteenth Street, 2 years and 4 months. District No. 2—Under 2 years of age, Dinah Stoloff, 201 Varet Street, 10 months old; 2 to 6 year class, Catherine Sherman, 100 Bedford Avenue. District No. 3—Under 2 years, Florence Frankenberg, 179 Amboy Street, 16 months; 2 to 6 year class, Henrietta Bernstein, 124 Lott Street, 3 years of age.

Women representing many organizations and interested in the milk problem met yesterday in the Church of the Messiah, 61 East Thirty-fourth Street. This meeting was a feature of the exposition. Miss Alice Lakey was the Chairman, and the principal speakers were Dr. S. Josephine Baker and Dr. Harvey W. Wiley. The former spoke on "The Undernourished Child" and the latter drew upon his experience as a dairyman to discuss the cost of milk production. The meeting adopted a resolution calling upon the Federation of Women's Clubs to take some action to bring about better relations between the farmer and the consumer and to see what can be done to increase the use of milk as a food.

More than 200 guests will take part in an unusual luncheon this afternoon at the Waldorf-Astoria. It will be given in honor of Financial Sensation, the valuable bull shown at the exposition, and will be given by its owners, John Andrews and Hugh Van Pelt of Waterloo Jersey Farm, and S. M. Sharples and Dale Andrews of Greystone Farm. Financial Sensation will be present. He will be paraded to the hotel and taken up in an elevator to the dining hall.

Today prizes will be awarded to the best babies under 2 years of age and the best child from 2 to 6 years of age from the Borough of Manhattan. On Saturday, the closing day of the show, Mayor Hylan will award $50 Victory bonds to the best baby under 2 years and the best child from 2 to 6 years in New York City, and the Mayor's gold medal to the best child in the city under 6 years of age.

UNEMPLOYMENT DECLINES.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Employment conditions throughout the United States are steadily improving, reports from 3,417 representative concerns in 58 cities received by the United States Employment Service today show.

Twenty-seven cities report a surplus of labor of 59,957, as compared with a surplus of 73,576 in the previous week. Six of the cities show a combined shortage of 3,600 skilled and unskilled laborers—an increase of 150 for the week. The rest of the cities report an approximate equality of supply and demand.

Three cities reporting a surplus of labor last week were dropped from the surplus list. They are Butte, Mon., St. Louis, and New York. The principal decreases in surpluses during the week were at Los Angeles, San Francisco, Meriden, Conn.; Atlanta, and Portland.

Conditions in the New England States, especially in Connecticut, for the current week, showed a marked improvement. Several cities which last week reported heavy surpluses, reported this week an apparent equality of supply and demand.

Of the six cities reporting a shortage of labor all but Seattle are in the South. Louisville, Wilmington, N. C., Charleston and Columbia, S. C., and Memphis report an aggregate shortage of 3,600. North Carolina reports some surplus in the cities and a shortage in the agricultural districts.

Reports received by the employment service from States, while incomplete, indicate that Arkansas, Colorado, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Ohio, and Utah have a surplus of labor. Alabama, the District of Columbia, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, and Wisconsin show an equality, and Kentucky a shortage.

Bay State May Start Public Works.

BOSTON, April 24.—Governor Coolidge sent to the House today a supplementary budget recommending expenditures totalling nearly $3,000,000. The principal item is $2,479,000 for public improvements which the Governor thinks advisable as an aid in relieving the unemployment situation.

MUST SUBMIT ITS RECORDS

Court Finds Hirschfield Can Examine School Board Books.

Under a decision yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Hotchkiss, the Board of Education books and records are subject to examination by Commissioner of Accounts Hirschfield, and the contention of Auditor Henry R. M. Cook and Superintendent Ettinger that they are responsible only to the State Board of Education is overruled. The members of the board have already directed Auditor Cook to submit his books for the examination. In his opinion, Justice Hotchkiss said:

"For their guidance and to the end that the city officials may intelligently and lawfully perform such administrative duties as are imposed upon them, it stands to reason that the financial books and records of the Board of Education must be examined. It is also clear that without information as to the honesty, wisdom, and care with which the Board of Education disburses the moneys it receives from the city as the result of the discretion of its officials, the exercise of such discretion on their part would in large measure be based on blind credulity.

"It is inconceivable that the Legislature intended any such inconsistency; that having in mind the huge sums of money which the growing needs of our population demand if our public schools are to perform satisfactorily the great task to which they are devoted, the city officials have been invested with discretionary power to appropriate adequately and at the same time have been denied access to the most efficient sources of information concerning the use made of the moneys by those charged with their disbursement, and whose methods of administering their trust must in large degree control the amount of money to be placed at their disposal."

SOLDIERS' NEW POLICIES.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—New life insurance policies, into which the so-called term insurance carried by soldiers and sailors may be converted, will be ready for issuance about June 1 Director Lindsley of the War Risk Insurance Bureau announced today. Applications for conversion are being received now, but no intensive campaign to promote conversions will be made in order not to overtax the Insurance Bureau with a rush of conversion applications. Efforts will be made, however, to have soldiers keep in force their term insurance, and to encourage discharged soldiers to make the conversion in amounts and at times when they are financially able.

ACCUSES FRUIT EXPRESS.

Federal Trade Commission Charges That It Is Monopolistic.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Citation of the Fruit Growers' Express of Chicago, which furnishes refrigerator cars to railroads for transporting fruits and vegetables, on charges of monopolistic practices, was announced today by the Federal Trade Commission. The company is required to answer June 4.

Complaint principally is made against the so-called "tying contracts" with railroads, which the commission charges are designed to prevent other car lines from competing and to prevent shippers owning their own refrigerator cars from using them on lines of railroads with which the corporation has contracts.

The commission stated that it has reason to believe the corporation already has established complete monopoly over the following lines:

DOUGLAS DIVORCE SUIT

NEWPORT, April 24.—Alleging neglect to provide for her, Mrs. Anne Ward Douglas, who was Miss Anne W. Kountze of New York, today filed a petition for divorce from her husband, Captain J. Gordon Douglas. She also charges gross misbehavior and wickedness, and asks the custody of her two minor children, J. Gordon, Jr., and Barclay. The petition sets forth that Mr. and Mrs. Douglas were married in New York in 1906.

Mrs. Douglas, who has long been a member of the Summer colony here, sets forth that she is a resident of Newport. She has taken a villa here for the Summer.

Captain J. Gordon Douglas is a member of the Rockaway Hunt, the Brook, the Morris County Golf Club, and the Garden City Golf Club.

TO WIND UP WINE FIRM.

Stockholder Wants Joseph Garneau, Inc., Liquidated.

Benjamin S. Donnelly of Illinois began action in the Federal Court yesterday to wind up the affairs of the Joseph Garneau Company, Inc., importers of wines and liquors, with a capital of $300,000, of which he owns $30,000 worth. The action is the result of the embargo put on the importation of wines and liquors in November, 1918.

It is alleged that the firm is now only engaged in disposing of the stock on hand, that all of the salesmen have been dismissed, and that offices elsewhere than in this city have been closed. It is alleged that a suggestion has been made that the concern enter the business of importing olive oils, sardines, &c., but the plaintiff indicates that this sort of business does not appeal to him. Therefore he wants the assets liquidated.

Palmer Won't Rule on Cotton Limit.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Attorney General Palmer has declined to give an opinion on the legality of the action of Southern cotton growers to limit their crop this year in an effort to maintain prices. This opinion, it was explained today, was sought by Secretary Houston to throw light on the situation which had caused complaints from cotton consuming interests. Since the question did not involve directly any administrative matters within the Department of Agriculture, however, the Attorney General declined to rule. This, it was stated, was in accord with a law limiting the Attorney General's opinions to specific problems, arising in governmental administration.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Speculation by professional operators in Washington Heights and Bronx apartments, which has monopolized the market for several weeks past, showed a decided slump yesterday. In fact, it has been falling off ever since the agitation against rent profiteers was started and the city and State began to make investigations.

Despite the speculative buying, which in the majority of cases has been done with very little actual cash, the market shows a decided tendency toward improvement. More cash sales are being made and the small investor, who is the life of a stable market, is coming back slowly, but surely.

The demand for private houses, both for occupancy and alteration as an investment is also on the increase, and before Fall many such structures that have stood vacant for several years will find new tenants.

Buys Dwellings for Business Site.

The recently formed Mordecai Realty Company, Benjamin Mordecai, President, bought from Mrs. William S. Dennett the four-story dwelling at 8 East Forty-ninth Street, and from Mrs. Arthur Hodges the adjoining house, a five-story American basement dwelling, at 10 East Forty-ninth Street. Each building is on a plot 16.2 by 100.5, giving the purchasers a combined plot 32.4 by 110.5, which will in all probability be improved with a business building. The property, which was held at a total of $150,000, was sold through Douglas L. Elliman & Co.

Private Dwellings.

Jessie F. Gatens sold the three-story dwelling at 236 East Sixty-first Street to a client of the Ruland & Whiting-Benjamin Corporation for occupancy.

Frederick Brown sold the two three-story dwellings, on a plot 36 by 100, at 350 and 352 West Thirtieth Street, to M. Weinstein, a builder, who plans to erect a modern apartment on the site. H. M. Weill Company, in conjunction with the John P. Peel Company, negotiated the sale.

John P. Leo sold the three-story and basement dwelling, on lot 17.6 by 99.11, at 210 West 137th Street, to a client of Nail & Parker, for occupancy. The same brokers also sold for Clothilde Bendheim, the house at 221 West 139th Street to Vertner W. Tandy, an architect, for occupancy; the house at 243 West 139th Street to Lily A. Thomas, for occupancy, and the house at 316 West 137th Street to John L. Morris, for occupancy.

Jacob L. Phillips sold the four-story and basement dwelling, on lot 20 by 100.5, at 49 East Sixty-seventh Street, to a client of J. V. Graham. Pressinger & Newcombe, attorneys, represented the purchaser and Hays, Hershfield & Wolf acted for the seller.

The estate of Adelaide Comstock sold the four-story dwelling, 17 by 102.2, at 139 East Seventy-first Street, to a client of the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company, for occupancy.

The estate of Charles Palm sold the three-story and basement dwelling, on lot 20.10 by 100, at 172 East Sixty-fourth Street, to a client of Harris & Vaughn.

Margaret Hawkesworth bought the four-story dwelling, 17 by 102.2, at 18 East Seventy-eighth Street, from Willis and Frank B. Van Brunt, through William B. May & Co.

Mrs. Frederick C. Brown sold the four-story dwelling, 25 by 100, with dining room extension, at 16 West Seventy-second Street, to the Remlu Realty Company, which will alter it into small apartments. L. J. Phillips & Co. negotiated the sale.

The James A. Moffett estate sold the four-story and basement dwellings, on lot 25 by 102.2, at 212 West Seventy-second Street, to an unnamed buyer, who has leased the property to a restaurant concern.

Mrs. J. West Roosevelt sold the four-story and basement dwelling, on lot 20 by 100.2, held at $55,000, at 108 East Seventy-ninth Street, to Foote & Martin through Albert B. Ashforth, Inc.

Brown Buys Another Nineteenth Street Plot.

Frederick Brown has bought from a client of Julian T. Saxe 37 West Nineteenth Street, near Fifth Avenue, a seven-story loft building, on lot 25 by 92, renting for $8,000 per annum. Mr. Brown recently purchased the loft at 21 West Nineteenth Street.

Tenement Deals.

Ennis & Sinnott sold the two five-story double flats, on plot 58 by 100, held at $80,000 and renting for over $11,000, at 506 and 508 West 145th Street; to an investing client of John R. Davidson.

Gladys A. Watkins sold the six-story tenement, 37.6 by 100, at 437 and 439 East 119th Street, through Charles R. Faruolo.

The Land Estates, Inc., sold the three-story flat with five stores at 141 East 119th Street, northeast corner of Lexington Avenue, 15 by 100.11, through Harry Sugarman.

The five-story flat, on a lot 25 by 100, at 406 St. Nicholas Avenue, has been sold by Augustus W. Werner. Mary L. Bannen, a tenant, is the buyer.

Abraham Libowitz bought the five-story tenement on lot 25 by 100, at 455 East 148th Street, from S. H. Frankenheim.

Ella R. Andrews sold the four-story flat, on lot 33.4 by 100, at 415 East 187th Street, to W. A. Abrahamson, through Marston & Co.

The Ess Zee Realty Company sold the six-story new-law apartment house, 40 by 99.11, at 251 West 144th Street, to the Sphinx Securities, Inc., an investing corporation, through Nail & Parker.

Sale on Fiftieth Street.

Miss M. N. Roussel sold the four-story brick building, on lot 25 by 100, at 524 West Fiftieth Street, on an all-cash deal to an investing client of the Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company.

The Bronx Market.

Ignatz Rosenbaum sold to Frank Gans & Co. the two modern apartment buildings at the southeast corner of Stebbins Avenue and 163d Street and the similar property adjoining at 894 East 163d Street, through A. Phillips. The combined properties occupy a plot 154 by 80, containing fifty apartments and eleven stores, all rented. M. A. Rabinowitz and Eisman, Lee Cohen, and Lewine were the attorneys in the transaction.

The Lawyers' Mortgage Company has sold to an investor the two-story taxpayer at 1,347 and 1,349 Boston Road, on a plot 50 by 70. Joseph Shapiro was the broker.

The Benenson Realty Company sold to Emma Meyer 1,872 Bryant Avenue, northeast corner of 176th Street, a three-story hotel, on lot 25 by 115.

Brooklyn.

Meister Builders, Inc., bought the four-story apartment houses, each on plot 60 by 100, renting at $20,112 and held at $130,000, at 480 East Twenty-third Street, between Foster and Newkirk Avenues, and at 573 East Twenty-second Street, abutting on the Twenty-third Street house, from William F. Kenny.

F. Seaverns sold the three-story and basement one-family stone dwelling on lot 20 by 110 at 268 Hancock Street, between Nostrand and Marcy Avenues, to a client of the Bulkley & Horton Company and Edward Lyons.

Mrs. Sarah Levine sold the two-story and basement brownstone dwelling at 541 Forty-seventh Street to Jenny Czerniawszka, through Tutino & Cerny. The same brokers sold for Luemma Hamilton to Isaac Gans the two-story and basement brick dwelling with garage at 565 Seventy-ninth Street; and for John F. Meyer to Maurice J. Pigott the two-story and basement brick dwelling at 427 Forty-fifth Street.

S. W. Fox sold the two-family brick house on plot 20 by 100 at 5,213 Twelfth Avenue to J. Egitto through I. Salzberg.

Clients of R. S. Fisher have purchased the premises at 1,635, 1,641 and 1,645 East Ninth Street.

Queens Borough Sales.

Robert Bruce sold his one-family dwelling at 200 Percy Street, Flushing, to William H. Clayton, through J. Albert Johntra.

The Emerson Construction Company has sold three of its latest improved dwellings on the west side of Emerson Avenue, north of Queens Avenue, Jamaica. The purchasers were C. Femmel, L. Maurer, and C. Kuntz.

G. Schneider, builder, has purchased a plot 100 by 200 on the northwest side of Lefferts Avenue, northeast of Division Avenue, Richmond Hill. The seller was E. Hess.

V. Compton has sold to J. Dehn a plot, 100 by 100, at the southeast corner of the Merrick Road and Salvin Avenue, Jamaica.

O. R. Reichert has purchased from B. Thielle two improved plots, each 27 by 100, on the northwest side of Madison Street, southwest of Onderdonk Avenue, Ridgewood.

A. Reed has purchased a plot 248 by 566 on the north side of Rockaway Turnpike, adjoining the holdings of J. Dengler. The seller was I. Woods.

Suburban Sales.

John Chew sold his house with a large plot on Wilwood Road, Larchmont, N. Y., to Charles Connolly through Griffen, Prince & Ripley.

Ira Leo Bamberger sold a plot of eight lots at Mamaroneck, N. Y., to an investing client of Fish & Marvin. The same brokers sold for the Suburbs Holding Company a plot of three lots at Larchmont, N. Y., to W. M. Wilson, who will build a bungalow on the site.

Harold I. Pratt to Build.

Harold I. Pratt of the Standard Oil Company, who on Monday last purchased the property on the southwest corner of Sixty-eighth Street and Park Avenue, plans to improve the site with a dwelling for his own occupancy. Plans are now being prepared by Delano & Aldrich.

Realty Loan Workers Reach $1,000,000 Mark.

With subscriptions of over $10,000 unofficially reported, the total subscriptions to the Victory Loan formally reported by the workers of the Real Estate Division for the first four days of the drive were $990,350, making $1,000,000 of the $6,000,000 goal positively assured by today. The largest subscriptions taken yesterday by the realty men were $15,000 from the Greenhut Building Company, $10,000 from Charles S. Brown, $7,000 from the Robert Hoe Estate Company, $7,000 from the Langham apartment, 135 Central Park West, and $5,000 from Arthur Zinn.

Commercial Leases.

Morimura, Arai & Co., leased the store basement, and two additional floors in the building at 19 Madison Avenue to John Dunlop Sons, through Carstein & Linnekin, Inc.

Barton S. Castles leased the entire building at 43 West Thirty-eighth Street, through Tucker-Speyers & Co., for a period of twenty-one years, at an aggregate rental of $200,000, to a lessee represented by Daniel Birdsall & Co., who will remodel the property for use as a restaurant and apartment building.

The estate of Charles Connor leased the store and basement at 120 West Twentieth Street to the National and New York Packing and Shipping Company, through Louis Schrag.

The Thomas Newbold estate leased, through Rice & Hill, the entire store and basement at 115 Liberty Street to the St. Charles Bakery and Restaurant Company, for a long term at an aggregate rental of approximately $50,000.

Binney & Smith leased two entire floors from the Irving Trust Company in its Franklin and Fulton Branch, through the Charles F. Noyes Company.

CITY GIVES BUILDING FOR SAFETY MUSEUM

PLAN TO EXPEND $125,000

Will Co-operate with City and Schools to Make Streets Safe and to Prevent Accidents.

Park Commissioner Francis D. Gallatin yesterday signed the lease giving the Safety Institute of America the right to occupy the Arsenal in Central Park for the purpose of a permanent exhibition of safety appliances for the prevention of accidents to working people. It is the intention of the institute to restore the building to its original condition, both as to its interior fittings and its sanitary state. It s believed that $125,000 will be necessary to do this. In making the improvements the institute will provide for the police sub-station in the basement of the building. It is expected that it will take at least six months to put the building in a tenantable condition.

James Speyer, one of the officers and trustees of the institute, recently presented it with $50,000, part of which at least will be used in the work of restoring the building. The institute now has its headquarters and exhibition rooms at 14 West Twenty-fourth Street. R. M. Little, a Director of the institute, said yesterday:

"The grant of the city of the Arsenal means a distinct advance in the important work of the Safety Institute. When housed in the Arsenal Building the institute will co-operate with the Department of Public Safety and the schools in striving to make the streets and thoroughfares of the city safe, and to prevent accidents, save life, and also to carry the message of safety to the homes of the people. In doing this work the institute located in the Arsenal can visualize the best type of playgrounds and recreational centres through models, which will be observed by thousands of visitors to the park, and therefore the work of the institute will synchronize with the purpose of the park, and not be an intrusion upon its legitimate use.

"There is a timeliness in securing the Arsenal for the enlargement of this important work, because of the new emphasis upon improved industrial conditions and the relation between employers and employes. In Europe there are more than twenty safety institutes and museums of safety, but only one in our country of any size, and this one is located here in New York. In this great metropolitan district there ought to be a large institution of this type that would exert a commanding influence throughout our country and stand the safest and most helpful conditions for work, for play, and for recreation."

NIBLACK RETURNS HOME

Among the 250 passengers arriving yesterday on the Aquitania other than the troops was Rear Admiral Albert P. Niblack, U. S. N., who was in command of the Eastern Mediterranean waters during the war. He has returned to be Chief of the Naval Intelligence Bureau at Washington.

He said that the American fleet under him consisted of the flagship Olympia, ten destroyers, and six submarine chasers, which patrolled the Dalmatian coast for 100 miles.

"The situation was very tense," he said, "and we had always to be prepared to land a force if necessary to preserve order. There are a number of American relief ships with food putting into Trieste, Fiume, and other ports on the Dalmatian coast, and we had to route them to avoid the mines, which are being picked up as fast as possible."

Major Gen. Sir Henry Thornton, who was at one time General Superintendent of the Long Island Railroad, before he accepted the appointment as General Manager of the Great Eastern Railway in England before the war, returned to see his mother, who is very ill at her home in Newtown, Penn.

Brig. General A. C. Critchley of the Canadian Air Forces, who was also aboard, will remain here two months on a special mission for the British Government. He is the youngest officer of his rank in the British Army, being only 28 years old.

Another passenger on board was Arthur Curtis James, who has been to the Near East as one of the Committee on Palestine and Syria. He said that reports of the suffering in the Near East had not been overdrawn.

HYLAN UPHOLDS CRAIG

Says Controller Was Right in Quitting School Investigation.

Mayor Hylan said yesterday that in his opinion Controller Craig was justified in abruptly withdrawing on Wednesday from the Board of Regents' investigation of the administration of the New York City schools. Asked for his opinion on the matter, the Mayor said it was to be regretted that outsiders from Buffalo and other up-State localities should be brought in here by Ettinger, Cook, and Deputy State Commissioner Finnegan to retard the Controller's endeavor to find out what is done with between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 appropriated yearly for schools.

"Controller Craig acted absolutely proper in leaving the committee room," the Mayor said, "when he found that the stenographer was not taking complete stenographic notes of all that he said and only taking such notes as Mr. Moot of Buffalo wanted on the record."

LIVERPOOL STRIKE ENDS.

Dock Workers Agree to Arbitration, Releasing Atlantic Liners.

LIVERPOOL, April 24.—The dock strike was settled this evening. The grievances of the dock workers are to be arbitrated.

With the exception of the costal trade, the docks of Liverpool were tied up during the day, with 12,000 men out. The settlement of the strike means that transatlantic liners, including the White Star and Cunard fleets, which have been held up, will be able to sail.

Illinois Plans to Build Waterways.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 24.—The Senate today passed a bill providing for the expenditure of $20,000,000 to construct the Illinois Waterway from Lockport to Utica. The measure proposing the building of an eight-foot channel for the Chicago drainage canal to the Illinois River, to open up a Lakes-to-the-Gulf water route, was passed by the Senate yesterday. Both bills now go to the House.

Planned Advertising and President Suspenders

THE PRESIDENT SUSPENDER COMPANY had been advertising for seventeen years, when in December, 1916, they engaged us to make a survey of their market and to submit a plan for 1917.

After two months' study and investigation, we presented our report. They told us that never before in their advertising history, had they seen such a thoroughly practical and constructive plan. We were authorized to go ahead with the 1917 plan exactly as outlined.

At the end of 1917 we took another advertising inventory and submitted our findings.

We were given a "go ahead" on the campaign for 1918.

Two months ago we built a plan for the third year and the advertising is now appearing in such papers as American Magazine, Literary Digest, Collier's, Cosmopolitan, Country Gentleman, Red Book and a long list of agricultural papers.

PLANNED ADVERTISING is proud of its association with the PRESIDENT SUSPENDER advertising. Our success with it is due to the care we have taken in planning from year to year.

Whether you are an old or a new advertiser, we shall be pleased to explain our methods to you.

Is Victory
worth the Price?

ASK the Mothers whose sons are coming Home! Ask the women whose husbands, sweethearts and brothers are being restored to them! Ask the boys themselves, who gave what we can never give.

We prayed for Victory in the dark days when they were face to face with freedom's foes. Our prayers were answered.

We prayed for Victory. Now let us pay for Victory. The cost of Victory, great though it be, is not too much. Victory is worth the price. Measure your Americanism by the number of Victory Bonds you buy.

Have you bought one lately?

from Uncle Sam
to Hart Schaffner & Marx

"Uncle Sam's system of tailoring was to build you up to fit the uniform," said a sergeant of the old "Seventh."

We have never seen so many wide shoulders, straight necks, flat backs and small waists as those of the soldiers who have slipped from uniform into civilian clothes, at our stores, in the last few months.

We are not philanthropists. We are not giving you "something for nothing." But we do want to take the credit of not being profiteers. Remember, it's just at the very beginning of the season—the time when "specials" are unnecessary to give business the proper "urge." We could very quietly have put these 3,500 Suits in our regular stock, collected $30 to $40 for them—and every buyer would be satisfied that he got good value for his money.

But we purchased these Suits "at a price" from 40 premier clothing makers—and we are going to sell them "at a price"—a price out of all proportion to their worth—$26.50. And what is more, we shall sell them with this understanding, namely, if you can duplicate them anywhere for less than $30 to $40 you can have your money back—gladly.

This "Spring Jubilee" has been inaugurated solely for the purpose of more widely advertising this mammoth 2d floor shop of famous clothes for Men and Young Men—the shop that can serve you better, more economically than any other in all New York. Now is the time to buy!
